Blue Skies and Blueberries

On Saturday, along Canal Street and at Liberty Square in Ellenville vendors lined both sides of the streets. The parade of attendees at the 16th Ellenville Wawarsing Chamber of Commerce Blueberry Festival walked to the ongoing musicprovided by the four bands that played throughout the event. Children with painted faces, had a lot of fun scaling the climbing wall or playing on the huge inflatables.

The aroma of the many ethnic foods tantalized anyone's appetite. There were samples of tasty treats along the way served by some of the local restaurants.

And of course there were Blueberry treats galore, including Blueberry Water!

According to event organizer, Dianne Turner, a/k/a Mother Blueberry, there were approximately 175 venders sell-ng their wares including Blueberry Festival hats and T-Shirts, Jewelry, soap, Terrariums, Jams & Jellies, baked goods, arts and crafts, paintings, and much more.

has watched this event grow over the years. Her hard work and great organizational skills certainly has made this event a Thank you!

A glance up Canal Street shows just a few of the tremendous crowds of people who enjoyed this year's Blueberry Festival under the bright blue sunny skies on Saturday.

Why are Squirrels Turning Black?

Has anyone noticed all of the black squirrels? There was a time when it was a rare occasion to see a black squirrel, but for the past few years, now black squirrels are quite popular in the Tri-Valley area.

Mutation that causes the change in the genes has not been restricted just to humans. Have you wondered why the coat of a black squirrel is different from the grey squirrel we have been so used to seeing?

The black squirrels that are becoming an increasingly common sight are a result of a genetic mutation which stops their fur from turning to grey. Scientists are saying that this due to a faulty gene that could also make them more immune to diseases.

If you look closely at grey squirrel hairs, they are not actually grey at all but are a combination of white, black and orange stripes. However, the hairs of black squirrels have no stripes; they are just plain black.

In grey squirrels the pigment gene works by producing two hormones.

Researchers claim that one hormone turns the switch on to make black fur, and a different hormone turns the switch off to make orange and white fur. In the grey squirrel, as the fur is growing, the switch turns on and off to make the stripes. However, in the black squirrel, because there is a piece of DNA missing, a piece of the switch is also missing.

The first hormone that switches it on still works and black fur is made, but the second hormone that should switch off, actually switches on as well. The off switch fails and the black fur continues to grow. In black squirrels the missing piece of the gene means this 'switching off' process never happens and their fur remains jet black.

The mutation in pure black squirrels is not a threat to our grey squirrels. The black squirrel is the same species as the grey squirrel. Black squirrels can mate with grey squirrels and if this happens offspring will have a combination of faulty and fully working genes, The mutated gene is inherited from both parents that have a piece missing which is involved in producing pigment.

The first black squirrels were sighted in the early 1900's, but it was a very scarce sighting.

The call is still out on what has caused this mutation in an animal that has inhabited this country for eons. When the first settlers landed in America, there were probably a billion squirrels living in the dense hardwood forest that blanketed eastern America. Would you believe that a squirrel could travel from Grahamsville to Mississippi without ever coming down to the ground.

One hundred years later when our wilderness began to be opened up by lumbering and burning and settlers planting corn and grain fields in the woodland clearings.

In the shrinking habitat squirrels overran the small farms and were shot by the thousands.

In the early 1900's, hunting seasons were established and the squirrel population leveled off throughout the U.S.

Today in America squirrels have adapted to living at the edge of human civilization quite comfortably. Squirrels still live in city parks where they compete with pigeons, on farms and in our backyards, they occasionally visit our birdfeeders.

If one of these little visitors to your birdfeeder isn't one of the mutated squirrels, maybe soon you'll get lucky and have a black squirrel appear at your feeder, too.

Household Hints

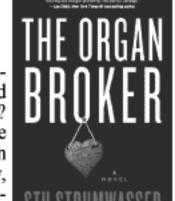

Clean your Hummingbird Feeder

There are a lot of Hummingbird Feeders on back porches throughout the Tri-Valley area. Hummingbirds are innately discriminating creatures, so don't expect to see them flocking around a dirty, sticky, or crusted-over sugar-water feeder. Regularly clean your feeders by thoroughly washing them in equal parts apple cider vinegar and hot water. Rinse well with cold water after washing, and air-dry them outdoors in full sunlight before refilling them with food.

The Organ Broker Mysterious Book Report No. 206

by John Dwaine McKenna

Are you aware that there are now more than 120,000 patients-folks just like you and me who are on waiting lists for organ transplants in America . . . or that there are three-hundred thousand more on kidney dialysis, but not yet on transplant lists . . . and shamefully, that here in America, twenty people are dying every day from renal (kidney) failure because of a lack of organ donors? The average wait for a donated organ, eighty-five percent which are kidneys, is Seven Years. People are dying before they make it to the top of the list for a replacement. This fact, and it is indeed a tragic fact-and wait, it gets worse-has given rise to a modern phenomenon known as transplant tourism. Simply put, those who can afford to pay are going to foreign transplant specialists where they get a healthy, life-saving new organ. "Well isn't that just dandy," you say . . . but then, after a moment's reflection you ask, "So, where, exactly, does this life-saving and healthy new donor organ come from?" Well Mr. and Mrs. Peabody, that's where the rub comes in. The transplant specialists are located in countries with large and growing populations of poor people. Human beings whose yearly income can be stated in hundreds of dollars.

The Organ Broker, (Arcade Publishing, $24.99, 280 pages, ISBN 978-1-62872-523-0) by Stu Strumwasser, is an outstanding new novel by a debut author whose voice speaks loud and clear about a critical issue of our times-one with important legal, ethical and moral overtones that could very well affect every one of us at some point in our lives. Best of all, he's fitted his information into a beautifully-written crime novel that's full of intrigue, action, suspense and treachery. Just what we enthusiasts love in summertime reading! The protagonist, a shady character known as 'New York Jack,' is the organ broker. He's living large, enjoying life on a lavish scale, traveling first-class, dining in exclusive restaurants and staying in five-star hotels. He tells himself that he's saving lives by procuring human organs for those who are wealthy enough to buy them. Jack gets $150,000 for a kidney, which he splits with a cohort, a man who goes by the name Wallace, he's the one who obtains the clients-those sick enough and rich enough to buy whatever they wish, no matter what the price. Kidneys are called "eighty-fives," because they're 85 percent of the pairs transplant business, and they've done thousands of them over the years. "Fifteens" are livers. They go for half-a-million a pop. And hey, great news for the organ donors, fifteens regenerate. Eventually. But the big money, the really big money . . . the kind that will buy a whole Caribbean Island and a lifetime of anonymity . . . that only comes with specials. Those are hearts. A healthy one only comes one way, with death. Excluding accidents and executions, the only other way to get one creates a moral barrier that only a sociopath is willing to cross . . . Don't miss The Organ Broker by Stu Strumwasser. It might be the most talked about book of the summer of 2015. It's certainly one of the best!

Once again I am happy to share what is going on in the County!

Another upcoming event that may interest you is the Hazardous Waste Cleanup. Bill Cutler from Public Works is the man in charge. Dates have been set to allow you to bring in any/all of your hazardous waste to the county landfill to be properly disposed of and remove them from your property. The designated date August 30th. You MUST contact Mr. Cutler in advance to get a date/ time assignment and explain what you are bringing in. This is a vital step that will both expedite the process and insure the safety for all in securing the materials properly. If you wish to use this "Clean" Up" opportunity please call Bill at 845-807-0291.

There are a number of other projects ongoing at the County level. The Agriculture & Sustainability Committee is working with various towns on two major projects which are moving forward:

1) Helping towns decrease energy costs by switching out lighting systems to the more efficient LED systems that will save in overall town electricity costs.

2) Climate Action Plans & Micro Grid Projects that will help in Energy Cost savings and decrease the adverse effects should we be affected by energy shortages (brown/black outages).

Finally, I want to remind you that this November will be an Election Year for not just Legislative seats in our County Government but also for County Clerk, County Treasurer and Coroner. People will be coming around asking you to sign petitions to allow candidates to be placed on the ballots. I will also be asking for your help. If you are a registered voter please sign the petition, the petition only goes to party association allowing candidates to be on the November Ballot. If you are not yet registered to vote, I encourage you to do so, remember it is both a privilege and a right as an American Citizen that many people in other countries do not have. Elections that impact you are not limited to the National Elections it is the county level that holds many decisions and policies that govern your everyday life.

Please reach out to me and let me know how you feel regarding these developing topics. Your Legislator, Kitty Vetter

Fiddler on the Roof comes 'to life' at the Rivoli

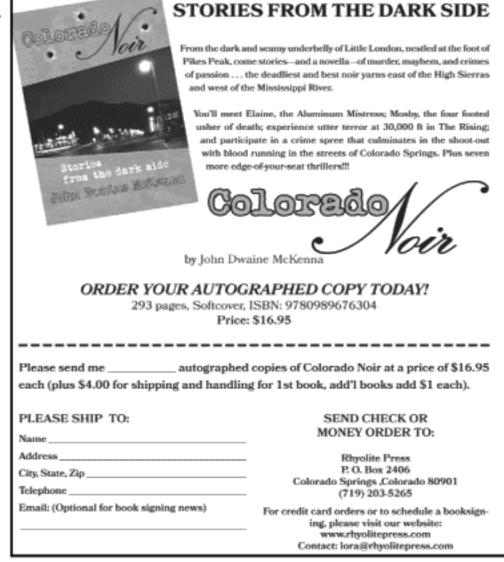

(South Fallsburg, NY) A fiddler on the roof -sounds crazy, no? Perhaps, but the premise of the cherished musical that centers on "tradition" has been delighting audiences since its Broadway debut in 1964 and in revivals over the past five decades. The latest incarnation of the story of Tevye, the milkman and the trials and tribulations of the people of Anatevka will come "to life" onstage at the Rivoli Theatre in South Fallsburg for three weekends in August as the Sullivan County Dramatic Workshop stages the classic, Fiddler on the Roof.

Set in Czarist Russia in 1905, Fiddler on the Roof with music by Jerry Bock, lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, and book by Joseph Stein is based on Tevye and his Daughters (or Tevye the Dairyman) and other tales by Sholem Aleichem. The story centers on the father of five daughters, and his attempts to maintain his religious and cultural traditions in a small Jewish shtetl as outside influences encroach upon the family's lives The memo-"Tradition," rable score includes "Matchmaker," "If I Were a Rich Man," "To Life," "Sunrise, Sunset" "Far From the Home I Love" and many more.

Seasoned Director, Lori Schneider and Musical Director, Scott Eckers have assembled a talented cast to bring the story to life, including Richie Chiger (Tevye), Heather Strauss (Golde), Lindsay Malman, Deanna Pereira, Stephanie Krom, Lily Siciliano and Abigail Ruef as their five daughters, Travis Benson (Motel, the Tailor), David Hilfstein (Perchik), Harold Tighe (Lazar Wolfe), Arlene Hussey (Yente, the Matchmaker), Blanche Agugliaro, Daniel Aguirre, Demid Bagirov, Alfred Bungard, Armaan Butler, Naomi Frumess, Scarlet Frumess, Anthony Hartnett, Valeria Henry, Aaron Kaplan, Steve Levy, Melissa McTague, Cole Phillips, Lynne Porter, Joshua Rosengrant, Jeremy Rudick, Lori Schneider, Kailan Odell Schreier, Robert Schreier, John Seidito, Phil Spechler, Michael Steup, Lillian Tighe, Allysia Watts, Rusty Watts and Tyler Young. With Technical Direction by Jim Schmidt, Choreography by Naomi Frumess, Scenic Design by Aaron Kaplan, Costume Design by Ed Berens, Stage Management by Joshua Rosengrant and ASM Samantha Krom, Properties by Jenny Silverman, Makeup by Jeremy Rudick, Fiddler on the Roof is being produced by special arrangement with Music Theatre International, Inc.

The Olive Jar - By Carol LaMonda A Shrinking World

Up to age sixteen, my world consisted of my block, my neighborhood, my town of Freeport, Long Island, and a few trips to my grandparents' homes in New Jersey and Brooklyn. I could get as far as my feet, my bike, a bus, the LIRR, or my parents' car could take me. College expanded my world not much further. In fact, my entire scope of reality was the small campus and town of New Paltz, New York. I did not know about Sputnik until I went home on a spring break because we did not get much reception from the one television in the common lounge. It was a life immersed in academic studies and college fun. It was a time of irresponsibility in the garb of isolation of Academia.

By today's standards, my life was "provincial." I was married with children and forty before I flew on a plane. My first big trip was to Greece with my entire family. My eyes beheld the possibilities of travel and revealed how vast and diverse a world could be. I feasted on new tastes and the cacophonous sound of languages I could not understand. Each new trip opened doors of humanity. At first, I focused on what made us different...unique cultures with colorful outfits, various smells, new and old architecture. Now I focus on what makes us all the same.

My world now seems very small. I can face-time someone in Norway. I can text someone in Mexico. I can face-book someone in Africa. I am bombarded with information and timely news. I have traveled to dozens of countries. I now see that we all want the same thing. Our family's needs for health, food, safety, peace and love are common goals.

Now that we can put faces to our "enemies" and instantly translate their words, we might be able to communicate our common needs and live together on this shrinking planet. Let us hope.

the drain field for a replacement septic system at the home of John and Nancy Cianci in Bovina. The system was engineered by Ed McCarthy of Steele Brook Engineering, Delhi. A slide show on the project, from start to finish, is on the CWC's website, www.cwconline.org (go to Resources/Presentations, or Programs/Septic Rehabilitation and Replacement page). The CWC has funded repairs of more than 4,500 systems in the Catskill-Delaware NYC Watershed since 1997, protecting water quality, aiding homeowners and businesses and supporting dozens of construction, engineering and supply firms and their employees in the region.

CWC Slates Stormwater Training

Town and village planning and zoning board members, code enforcement officers (CEOs), engineers, contractors and others involved in the review, design or implementation of stormwater controls are invited to a training workshop sponsored by the Catskill Watershed Corp. (CWC) in Margaretville on Friday. Sept. 11. The free workshop will be held at American Legion Post #216, 903 Main Street, Margaretville. Register at CEOs may receive two hours of in-service credit. Planning and zoning board members may apply this session towards their annual four hours of mandated training, with approval of municipal governing boards.

Sign in is at 9:30 a.m. The morning session, led by NYS Department of State trainers, begins at 10 a.m. "Stormwater Regulation for Local Review Boards" will examine types of development and the potential for environmental damage from increased run-off; best management practices to control it, and the role of project development review boards in mitigating stormwater impacts using local, state and federal regulations.

Following lunch, the afternoon session will address specific programs geared toward stormwater controls in the New York City Watershed west of the Hudson River. "Planning and Funding Stormwater Projects in the Watershed" will address NYC and NYS regulations as they apply to construction projects in the Watershed, and how the CWC's Stormwater Retrofit and Future Stormwater Programs can help pay for design and implementation of these projects. NYC DEP and CWC Stormwater Program Staff will be the presenters.

CWC Stormwater Grant Applications due Oct. 1

Applications are now available from the Catskill Watershed Corporation (CWC) for grants to fund the design, construction, and maintenance of stormwater treatment practices to address existing runoff that is degrading water quality. Deadline for submission of proposals is October 1, 2015.

The Stormwater Retrofit Program provides funds to municipalities, businesses and individuals to correct conditions that are causing erosion or pollutant loading from existing impervious surfaces in the New York City Watershed west of the Hudson River. Grants of up to $50,000 are also available to municipalities to conduct or update community-wide assessments of existing stormwater infrastructure to identify and prioritize potential retro-fit projects.

This is the first of five rounds of renewed Stormwater Retrofit Grant funding, which has not been available for several years.

Program rules, applications and instructions can be found at www.cwconline.org, go to Programs/Stormwater. Contact Program Specialist Kim Ackerley at 845-586-1400 for more information. Proposals will be evaluated by CWC and NYC DEP staff, and will be approved by the full CWC Board of Directors in December. Meanwhile, the CWC invites town and village

Continuing to "Build a Better Ulster County" County Executive Mike Hein Expands the Unprecedented Infrastructure Investment Program-Glenford-Wittenberg Road In Woodstock Is The First Additional Project And Will Be Repayed In August

Ulster County Executive Mike Hein announces that the highly successful "Building a Better Ulster County" program will be expanded to include additional projects. The program provides for an unprecedented investment of $15 million in repairing, upgrading and replacing county roads and bridges and will now include additional projects with no increase in the budgeted cost. This inclusion was made possible by close project oversight, leveraged procurement and construction efficiencies achieved by the County's Department of Public Works. The many projects already completed have been designed beyond traditional construction and repair, and instead make roads safer by widening road shoulders for pedestrian and bike use and use new geo-stabilization technology to reinforce vulnerable road foundations to protect against damage from events such as hurricanes and prevent potential collapses in the future. The resurfacing of a 2.3 mile stretch of Glenford-Wittenberg Road in Woodstock is the first additional project made possible by cost savings achieved by the "Building A Better Ulster County" infrastructure initiative with construction scheduled to begin today and be completed in approximately two weeks.

"County roads and bridges in Ulster County are getting dramatically better, and through strong project management we are able to do even more than was originally planned. This is an unprecedented project as we are in the midst of the largest single year infrastructure investment in Ulster County's history," said County Executive Mike Hein. "Our Department of Public Works team has been amazing in completing this enormous task. Thanks to their ability to complete the work on time and under budget, we are now able to pave additional miles of roads, and we are starting in the Woodstock area."

Donald Gregorius, Ulster County Legislator "The results of County Executive Hein's "Building A Better Ulster County" program are being seen all across the County," said Ulster County Legislator Donald Gregorius. "I want to commend the County Executive for making this important investment in our infrastructure which has been ignored far too long yet is so important to the economic well-being of Ulster County."

Jeremy Wilber, Town of Woodstock Supervisor "I want to thank County Executive Mike Hein for making this investment in Woodstock, he understands the importance of safe roads for our community," said Town of Woodstock Supervisor Jeremy Wilber. "I am sure that I speak on behalf of all of Woodstock when I say that this important upgrade to our infrastructure is greatly appreciated."

In 2015, 7 bridges will be repaired/replaced and 51.8 miles of county roads will be reconstructed and repaved under the Building a Better Ulster County program. The repaving projects include a 13.9 mile stretch of Lucas Avenue, from Route 209 to the City of Kingston. The Ulster County Department of Public Works is also continuing its regularly scheduled road maintenance and repaving projects which include an additional 37.2 miles of roadwork to be completed this year. In total, Ulster County will be repaving/resurfacing more than 89 miles of county roads in 2015, over 20% of all county roads in a single year.

"Poetry of a Watershed Stream,"

"Poetry of a Watershed Stream," a short film highlighting the beauty of Catskill Mountain waterways, will premiere at the Catskill Great Outdoors Experience Festival to be held August 15 and 16 at the Maurice D. Hinchey Catskill Interpretive Center, Mt. Tremper. The film will play continuously throughout the twoday event.

Filmmaker Tobe Carey's six-and-a-half minute production focuses on one feeder stream for the Ashokan Reservoir. The stream stands for the beauty of all Watershed creeks and rivers and emphasizes the need to keep them clean. The film was edited from more than 4600 clips of audio and video collected between August 2014 and August 2015, along with selected materials recorded in previous years.

The four-season imagery speaks for itself, enhanced by the song "Catskill Thunder," composed by the late Artie Traum, and performed by Artie Traum, Molly Mason and Jay Ungar on the CD, The Catskill Collection. A brief call to action drives home the message of the film home the message of the film.

The film will be offered free of charge to schools, libraries and groups in the Ashokan Watershed and will be available online for free downloading. "Poetry of a Watershed Stream" is the perfect short film to set the tone for water conferences, stream management meetings and public gatherings.

"Poetry of a Watershed Stream" was produced and directed by Tobe Carey of Willow Mixed Media, producers of "Deep Water," an award-winning documentary about the building of the Catskill Water Supply of the New York City Water System. Both projects were funded in part by the Catskill Watershed Corporation in partnership with the New York City Department of Environmental Protection. Willow Mixed Media has also produced popular local history films, "The Catskill Mountain and The World Around," "Sweet Violets," and "Rails to the Catskills" and can be found online at willowmixedmedia.org.

UC Continues to Lead the Way in Environmental Stewardship and Has Been Awarded a $500,00 Energy Efficiency Grant from Central Hudson -

The Grant Will Be Used To Upgrade Lighting Systems In County Buildings, Reducing Power Usage and Saving Taxpayers Money
Kingston, N.Y. - Ulster County Executive Mike

Hein announced the award of an energy efficiency grant worth over $500,000 from Central Hudson. The grants will provide for the installation of high efficiency LED lighting systems at county facili-ties which will conserve 632,754 kWh of electricity each year, which translates into an annual savings of over $82,000 for taxpayers.

"I am proud of what we have accomplished in Ulster County; but our work is not done," said County Executive Mike Hein. "Already, 100% of our electricity comes from renewable sources and we are the only net carbon neutral county government in New York State. Now with this efficiency grant, we can replace inefficient lighting systems throughout county facilities and reduce our carbon footprint even further. In addition to the environmental benefit, we will save over $82,000 a year going forward which will benefit our taxpayers. We expect to com-plete the work this year."

ULSTER COUNTY OFFICE BUILDING

Amanda LaValle, Coordinator, Ulster County Department of the Environment -"The County Executive has placed a top priority on helping our environment while simultaneously protecting taxpayers," said Amanda LaValle, Coordinator, Ulster County Department of the Environment. "Even though the County already purchases all of its electric from renewable sources, it is still important to reduce energy consump-tion. This grant not only allows us to significantly reduce our lighting energy consump-tion but also reduces costs and expenses."

The Central Hudson grant, which totals $517,125.00, covers the entire cost of the purchase of the LED lighting systems, as well as the installation which will be done by GreenLeaf Energy at thirteen county locations including the County Office Building and the Ulster County Law Enforcement Center. The electricity saved by the upgrades is the equivalent to the amount of electricity used by 60 residential homes in a year.

Statement from Ulster County Executive Mike Hein on the Passing of Gold Star Mother Marie Kennedy

"It is with profound sadness and a heavy heart that I learned of the passing of Marie Kennedy, a lifelong resident of Kingston. Ulster County's oldest Gold Star Mother, her of Kingston. Ulster County's oldest Gold Star Mother, her son John Senor was killed in action in Vietnam, and a staunch advocate for Veterans, she was a pillar of our community and will be deeply missed. She touched so many of our lives with her grace, dignity and sense of humor and I had the honor and privilege of having known her. Our thoughts and prayers are with her family and friends during this difficult time. Consistent with Mrs. Kennedy's devotion to helping others, her family suggests that expressions of sympathy in lieu of flowers may be made to the Wounded Warriors Project. She truly was a special human being."

dreds of people at the Annual Fallsburg Night Out against Crime that was part of the 32nd National Night Out (NNO) involving 16,540 communities around the country. The Supervisor acknowledged the organizers for bringing so many people together in a dis-play of community spirit. Police Chief Simmie Williams echoed Vegliante and expressed what so many at Brian Ingber Park felt: "This is about keeping our children safe and having families celebrating together." NNO's focus is for young people to make good decisions in their lives, to obey the laws, to respect adults, strengthen neighborhood spirit, and to stay away from crime and drugs.

Many companies and individuals supported the success of the evening with donations of time, money and materials. To name a few are Kathy Kreiter and husband John who did the barbecuing; M&B Associates and Nat Kagan Company for providing the meats; Stewart's Shoppes for water, snacks, and supplies; Shop-Rite for donating salads, snacks, and several staff; the Hurleyville Fire Department for discounting and setting up two large tents to protect the social service agencies speaking with families and the people enjoying the food; Pepsi-Cola for their truck filled with soft drinks; Police Officer Chris Rosa with Police Dog Cobra; and Greg Bennett and the Fallsburg Parks and Recreation Department;

The main organizer of the event for the past eleven years is the Fallsburg Community Coalition (FCC), with the full support of the Fallsburg Police Benevolent Association, the Town of Fallsburg, and the Fallsburg Central School District. Equestrian Day Campers at Frost Valley YMCA Show Off New Skills

Among the various Day Camp programs offered at Frost Valley YMCA, Equestrian Camp is quite popular with local families. On Thursday, August 6, day campers in the six-week Western Adventures program showed off their new horseback riding skills at an afternoon performance set to music in the Frost Valley Equestrian Arena.

Younger campers guided their horses two-by-two walking, trotting, and weaving alongside each other, demonstrating their guidance skills. A second act featured older riders, who performed more advanced techniques such as bringing horses to a canter (faster than most horses' trot but slower than a gallop) and agility exercises.

The Western Adventure Six-Week Session at Frost Valley is for campers entering grades five and up who are looking to improve their riding skills and horsemanship abilities. Campers are given the opportunity to work with the same staff and horses throughout the session, as they progress and learn new skills each week. Western Adventure campers still enjoy participating in traditional camp activities (swimming in Lake Cole, games, and other fun), however, the focus of the program is on horses.

Although this program has ended, families interested in introducing children to the world of horses can still register for the Pony Camp B session of Day Camp. This program runs from August 31-September 1 and is for children entering grades

Pony Campers will enjoy pony rides, and learn about grooming, horse care, and more. Arts and crafts, treats, and games are centered on a horse theme, and campers still get to enjoy traditional camp activities. (Pony Camp is designed for campers with little or no horse experience.)

Spots are still open in Frost Valley's inaugural Farm Day Camp, also taking place August 31-September 1 on Frost Valley's 515-acre working farm. Campers entering grades K-8 learn how to grow and harvest food, create farm-to-table recipes, care for animals, and more.

Families interested in sending their children to Day Camp can register online at FrostValley.org or by calling 845-985-2291.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

An instructional series for anyone interested in improving their usage of the English language by Thorn Winter

LESSON 24: The Complete Subject and Complete Predicate

"When you really know somebody you can't hate them. Or maybe it's just that you can't really know them until you stop hating them." -Orson Scott Card

A sentence can be divided into the complete subject and the complete predicate. The complete subject consists of all of the words that tell who or what the sentence is about. The complete predicate consists of the verb and all of the words that tell what happened in the sentence. Every word in a sentence is part of that sentences complete subject or complete predicate.

The easiest way to identify these two parts is to first identify the simple parts and then seperate the sentence between them. Sometimes a word or a phrase will be between the simple subject and simple predicate. Just ask if the word or phrase adds meaning to the subject or the verb and you'll have your answer. If it is the subject is is part of the complete subject, if it adds meaning to the verb then it is part of the complete predicate.

Beware inverted sentences or those with adverb prepositional phrases.

Underline the complete subject in each sentence.

1. River looks much taller next to her piano.

- 2. Maureen's new car is a white Subaru Impreza. 3. The beat up, old truck belongs to Thorn.

Underline the complete predicate in each sentence.

1. Anchovies and herring always smell tasty to me because I'm both Sicilian and Swedish.

From the sky dove the large, blue heron.

The pointy faced fellow in the white hat and trenchcoat is spying on the pointy faced fellow in the black hat and trenchcoat.

The answers to this lesson will be in the next installment of The English Language. If you want answers the now, workadaywriter.com/lesson24 and scroll to the bottom of the content.

Answers to last week's questions: Compound Subject/Compound Predicate: the stage lights and the house lights/blew, Squirrels and chipmunks/eat, Coffee and tea/are tasty and have caffeine, Birds and airplanes/fly Grappling with the diminishing powers of his mind, Holmes comes to rely upon the boy as he revisits the circumstances of an unsolved case involving a beautiful woman.

Ulster Gets High Marks for Low Stress - Again County_ Comptroller_ Applies State's

Fiscal Stress Test to County Operations
Kingston, NY (August 6, 2015) - Ulster County
Comptroller Elliott Auerbach has released a Quarterly Report for 2015 which subjects Ulster to a State-designed test measuring the level of fiscal stress a municipality is under. Auerbach's office was among the first in the state to utilize the test as a predictive tool when the Office of the State Comptroller (OSC) released it in the fall of 2012.

"Comptroller DiNapoli has provided local government with a tool not only for municipalities in acute distress, but for those, like Ulster, who are performing well," Auerbach said. "We think it's wise to take advantage of this monitoring system and keep taxpayers informed," he continued.

The report concludes that under the scrutiny of the OSC testing standards, Ulster's fiscal position continues to be strong, and reflects sound financial management by the administration.

Within that healthy range of results, Auerbach's audit team also identifies unique factors and trends worthy of attention in ensuring continued success. According to Deputy Comptroller Joe Eriole, "the highest value of the test is to allow management to be ahead of the curve in avoiding fiscal stress. We trust our report will become just one more weapon in the Hein Administration's continued safeguarding of the County's financial resources."

The report, entitled "Ulster County Fiscal Stress Assessment", can be found at the Comptroller's website, youreyesonulster.com, in the report section, under "Quarterly Reports."

Governor Cuomo Highlights Savings to Craft Distilleries Across NYS Reforms implemented following summits saved over $400,000 in fees

Governor Andrew M. Cuomo today announced that policies implemented following the Wine, Beer, Spirits and Cider Summits have saved New York distillers over $424,000 in fees over the past three years. These savings have been reinvested back into these small manufacturing businesses and encouraged new entrepreneurs to enter the market. In the last year alone, the number of farm distilleries has increased by more than 25 percent from 62 to 78. In 2011, New York had had only 10 such distilleries.

"New York State's beverage industry produces some of the finest wines, beers, ciders and spirits in the world and the incredible increase in the number of farm distillers these last few years is a testament to our efforts to lower costs, cut red tape and make it easier for these producers to open and grow," said Governor Cuomo. "With the small farm based beverage producers on the rise, and their products being shipped worldwide, there is no denying that New York is truly open for business."

As a result of New York's leadership in supporting the industry, the growth of small craft beverage producers is leading to increased tax revenue, job opportunities, increased demand for farm products, and a bolstered tourism impact for the state.

Regulatory and legislative reforms implemented to support the growth and development of New York craft distillers include:

- Elimination of brand label registration fee: On December 17, 2013, the Governor's legislation to exempt small batches of spirits from brand labeling fees went into effect. Since then, the State Liquor Authority has approved 1,699 no fee brand labels, providing $424,750 in savings for craft distilleries. -Elimination of duplicative license for farm distilleries: Prior to the 2012 Summit, farm distilleries needed a permit from the Department of Agriculture & Markets in addition to a liquor license, at a cost of $400. At the 2012 Summit, the Governor eliminated this requirement, saving farm distillers over $30,000.

As a result of Governor Cuomo ending the SLA's longstanding prohibition against issuing multiple licenses at the same location, 23 distilleries have obtained multiple liquor licenses at their manufacturing facilities,. Prior to this policy change, a farm distillery that wanted to produce whiskey from New York produced grain and also make rum from imported molasses needed to build one distillery for the whiskey and an entirely separate distillery for rum. In addition, since 2011 the number of micro-distillers, micro-rectifiers and fruit brandy producers has risen by over 200%, from 14 in 2011 to 46 today.

"Governor Cuomo recognized from the outset the growth potential of New York's small craft producers," said SLA Chairman Vincent Bradley. "By enacting innovative changes to the state's liquor laws, policies and regulations, in addition to slashing fees and paperwork, this administration has significantly reduced both start-up and operating costs for our manufacturers, creating jobs in our communities and new markets for local farm products.'

State Agriculture Commissioner Richard A. Ball said, "Thanks to the Governor's continued efforts to expand our beverage industry, we have seen every aspect of it grow beyond expectation. New York's distilleries have reached new heights over the last few years, and the elimination of unnecessary fees and other cost-saving measures continue to support our beverage producers and boost our agricultural economy."

Brian McKenzie, President, New York State Distillers Guild said, "Since we started our business in 2008, there has been a total transformation in our relationship with state government agencies. It's refreshing to do business in an environment where the State recognizes our contributions to the economy - creating jobs, generating tax revenue, supporting agriculture and creating new tourism opportunities. The regulatory and legislative changes that have occurred over the past 4 years have helped our industry flourish and we believe there are even greater opportunities moving forward."

In October 2012, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo hosted New York's first Wine, Beer and Spirits Summit where he brought together dozens of beer, wine, cider, and spirits producers, as well as farmers, industry officials, and tourism experts. The objectives were to find ways that NYS can continue to cut red tape, increase demand for locally grown farm products, and expand industry-related tourism and economic development. Since that time, continued growth and support have brought the beverage industry an enormous amount of success. Spinal Cord Injury Research Program Releases Funds to Continue Groundbreaking Research and Development Initiatives

(Albany, NY) - Assemblymember Kevin A. Cahill (D-Ulster, Dutchess) announced that New York State's Spinal Cord Injury Research Program (SCIRP) has awarded $5.7 million to several health facilities across the state that specialize in cutting-edge research and clinical trials for experimental and innovative therapies, which restore functioning for people with mobility impairments and other neurological disorders. Assemblyman Cahill led the charge in securing $8.5 million in funding for SCIRP in the 2015-2016 state budget. This round of competitive grants is also the first substantial assistance that has been made available to the medical community since monies for the cause were modestly restored in 2013.

"The work this fund has facilitated to date is breathtaking, and this nearly $6 million sum will help scientists and doctors move forward with vital research that has been unable to advance due to several years of limited or no assistance," said Assemblymember Cahill. "This money will allow for the expanded study of stem cell spinal implantation, as well as broader development of advanced robotic physical therapies that have shown to improve patient mobility and greatly enhance someone's quality of life."

Seven organizations have been slated to receive assistance ranging from amounts of $340,000 to $1.2 million. Among the recipients are: SUNY Downstate Medical Center ($341,559); Health Research Inc., Wadsworth Center ($442,373); Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai ($751,353); Winifred Masterson Burke Medical Research Institute ($899,397); City College of New York ($990,000); Regenerative Research Foundation ($1,097,684); and Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Yeshiva University ($1,197,182). The allotments will be specifically used for research and experimentation related to cellular regeneration, advancements in rehabilitation methods and equipment and specialized therapeutics.

"Accident victims, people suffering from life threatening sports injuries and even wounded veterans are benefiting from the amazing work being done all over the state, from downstate locations such as NYU and the Burke Center in White Plains all the way to the University of Rochester. Funding SCIRP at its statutorily required amount has made these grants possible, and these additional resources are poised to spur even more scientific advancement and success," added Cahill.

SCIRP dollars come from a portion of a surcharge attached to fines for moving traffic violations. It has been in existence since 1998, but was stripped of its appropriation for several years due to the budget constraints attending the economic downturn of 2008. In 2013, the Assembly paved the way toward financial security by restoring $2 million and negotiating an increase to $7 million in the 2014-2015 state spending plan. After years of advocacy, Cahill and his colleagues were finally able to secure the full $8.5 million appropriation for the program this past legislative session.

"I am elated that the research program is back on its feet and that our ability to peer review potential applications has been established, resulting in this year's research grant awards," said Keith Gurgui, an advocate for individuals with disabilities and a Systems Advocate at the Resource Center for Accessible Living in Kingston, New York. "None of this would have been possible if it were not for the leadership of members in both the Senate and Assembly including Assemblyman Kevin Cahill and Senator John Bonacic as well as those members of the Governor's office that gave us the opportunity to make our case for full funding of the program."

"New York is once again poised to be the preeminent state focused on targeted research to cure spinal cord injury," stated Nancy Lieberman, a quadriplegic and co-founder of New Yorkers to Cure Paralysis. "This never would have happened without the strong support of Assemblymember Cahill and his colleagues in the New York State Legislature, along with the deep commitment of the Department of Health to get funding swiftly to researchers."

For more information regarding this incredible research please visit the New Yorkers to Cure Paralysis website at, http://newyorkersto-cureparalysis.org/program-impact/.

Fourth Annual Big Eddy Film Festival Announces Opening Night Selection

The Big Eddy Film Festival is pleased to announce the official opening night selection for its fourth annual event taking place in Narrowsburg, NY September 18 to 20, 2015. The Festival opens on Friday, September 18 at 8 p.m. with the new romantic comedy/drama "Tumbledown," directed by Sean Mewshaw, written by Desi Van Til, starring Rebecca Hall & Jason Sudeikis, and co-starring Griffin Dunne and Blythe Danner.

Years after the death of her singer-songwriter husband, Hannah (Rebecca Hall, "The Prestige") has settled into a solitary life in the mountains. She spends her days in their lake-front cabin contemplating writing his biography, and indulging in a fling with a local contractor (Joe Manganiello). But a brash New York writer (Jason Sudeikis, "Saturday Night Live") disrupts her quiet existence when he arrives into town to research his own book on her late husband. Initially skeptical of his intentions, she agrees to collaborate with him on the project, leading them both to revelations about life, grief, and love. Featuring supporting performances by Dianna Agron ("Glee"), Blythe Danner, Griffin Dunne, and Richard Masur, "Tumbledown" skillful-ly balances real life emotions with intelligent humor. It's a story about death without being somber, and a story of love without being sappy.

The cinematography takes full advantage of the rural autumn landscape, and the haunting songs of Damien Jurado (whose sound evokes Elliott Smith, Bon Iver, and Nick Drake) bring to life the gone-too-soon musician hus-

The film premiered earlier this year at the Tribeca Film Festival, and is scheduled for a Valentine's weekend 2016 nationwide theatrical release by Starz Digital. The Big Eddy screening is a great opportunity to see the film long before its release date.

The Hollywood Reporter called "Tumbledown" "a warm, gently funny film about moving on.'

Opening night film tickets are $15. All other individual tickets are $10. All-Access Festival passes are $100, and include admission to a Saturday evening cocktail party and a guaranteed seat at all screenings, including opening night. Six-Packs of tickets are available for $40 (which does not include opening night), or Six-Pack Plus for six films, plus opening night and the Saturday evening cocktail party.

All screenings take place at the Tusten Theatre, 210 Bridge Street in Narrowsburg, NY. For more information and tickets, visit BigEddyFilmFest.com or call 845-252-7576.
