Frank and Linda Comando (center) accept the award on behalf of The Townsman staff.

This year our Tri-Valley Teachers' Association is making it a point to reach out and recognize organizations and businesses within our community who are our "partners in education."

For our December recognition, we chose to thank The Townsman newspaper for its continued commitment to the Tri-Valley community and its students.

The Townsman is a newspaper that makes our entire community very proud. We truly appreciate their desire to spread the good news going on within our school. They are consistent advocates for our students! Our TVTA recognizes all that The Townsman does. We are grateful for all the support they give to us and our students.

Thank you, The Townsman newspaper, for being our partner in education. Together, we make a difference!

Tri-Valley Teachers' Association Wishes a Happy Retirement to an Amazing Teacher

The month of February has started, but unfortunately one very special teacher won't be here with us. After spending his entire career at Tri-Valley, Mr. Chuck Rehm has retired.

Chuck started his career at Tri-Valley in 1986 as a math teacher. He devoted thirty-three years to our school, making a huge impact on so many students.

Outside of the instructional setting, Chuck also spent time as a coach for cross country and track and field.

Mr. Rehm has always been a proud, active member of our school. His absence will be felt, but we are very happy for him. Thank you, Chuck, for everything you have done for the Tri-Valley Central School and community! May you be blessed with many happy and healthy retirement years!

FCSD Presents Workshop on Poverty and Volunteers

One of the Volunteers in the Classroom at FCSD, Mrs. Alana Sherman

On January 10, 2019 Fallsburg Central School District Family & Community Liaison Dr. Aleta Lymon presented a workshop entitled "Bridging the Gap from Misconception to Understanding of the Realities of Poverty" to staff and members of the FCSD Volunteers in the Classroom. Present was Dr. Stefanie Phillips, Board of Education Member and one of the founders of the VIC Program. This program has been flourishing with several volunteers at both school buildings in the District.

Dr. Lymon's work is part of the My Brother's Keeper Grant awarded to Fallsburg and some other neighboring school districts earlier last year. The objective of the day was to define poverty; understand the culture of poverty; identify psychological strategies that relate to the realities of poverty; experience the emotional realities through role play simulations; and to develop ways to affect social change in the community. LETTER OF THANKS

On behalf of the Nash and Mitchell Families, I would like to extend heartfelt words of "Thanks, Love and Appreciation" to all the wonderful people in our communities. The support shown to Kim and our families with love, friendship, words of encouragement and finally heartfelt words of sympathy during these past weeks, months and even years means more than we can possibly say. I know that Kim will be remembered for her beautiful smile and friendliness, her endless energy and willingness to help others. She loved people, and even more she loved feeding them.

In the words of a dear friend: "Over at a quaint and rustic Deli counter, where the best egg sandwiches were made, a sandwich maker made the BEST subs for us High School Seniors... yaas... we were allowed to walk to the store, have lunch or just chill. A well respected Mom, touching her community in such a loving way, -- she took care of us. Time flies... she made those awesome subs in the next town over --- and her smile still warmed our hearts. I still see her in the deli, the grocery store, or at the checkout counter; her smile warming my heart and making it the best day ever. She was a Mom to most of us and a relative to all... (Thank you Charles Martin!!)

Kim was the last born in the Mitchell family and I am sure she absorbed every ounce of love that was lavished on her -- she stored it inside her heart and then doled it out to everyone she came in contact with. We, her family will miss her, as will her friends and community but we can take comfort in the thought that she will continue to send that love to us all from her new resting home. THANKS AGAIN to everyone. You have helped make her memory that much sweeter.

Nature Column - Linda Comando

A Splash of Green

A drive through Peekamoose this time of the year is spectacular, if you love the winter scene. For those who are anxiously waiting for the landscape to turn from white to green, if you look hard enough, you can find some green.

Although the leaves are dull and rather a greenish gold this time of the year, and look a bit wonky, the leaves of the Mountain Laurel (Kalmia latifolia,) do hang on through winter. Mountain Laurel is an evergreen shrub native to the Catskills. Mature plants can reach 6.5 to 10 feet tall. Leaves are evergreen, sclerophyllous, leathery,

1 to 4 inches long, and 1 to 2 inches wide. The majority of Mountain Laurel leaves survive for 2 to 3 years. Mountain Laurel leaves begin to die in the late spring during their 2nd growing season while a few persist into the 3rd; hence, about half of the leaves on any given plant are the current year's production.

Flowers bloom April to June from buds that form during the previous growing season.

The complete flowerhead including stems, stalks, bracts, and flowers will produce a compound flower cluster of showy saucer shaped flowers, 1/2" to 1 inch wide that are generally light pink. Stems are long and narrow with furrows and ridges, often sloughing in narrow strips or flakes. The fruit is a small capsule that bears hundreds of small seeds. Below a basal burl (knotty growth), Mountain Laurel has a thick rootstock that supports numerous other vertical and horizontal roots that may reach up to 30 inches in depth.

Mountain Laurel is monoecious, having both the male and female reproductive organs. Pollination is by insect or self-mediated. Bumblebees are the primary species of insect-mediated pollination. Mountain Laurel anthers are positioned under tension which is suddenly released when a bumblebee or other insect lands on the flower. If the flowers remain unpollinated, the anther will self-release pollen onto the flower's own pistil. Seeds are contained in small fruit-like capsules each containing 300 to 700 seeds. Seedfall begins in the fall and continues through the spring.

Mountain Laurel stem growth occurs during the spring and ceases during summer.

Mountain-laurel's leaves, buds, flowers and fruits are poisonous and may be lethal to livestock and humans. However, white-tailed deer, eastern cotton tails, black bear, and ruffed grouse are known to utilize this species especially as winter forage or during years of food shortages

The wood of mountain-laurel has a long history of uses by native and Euro-Americans. It has been used in the manufacturing of pipes, wreaths, roping, furniture, bowls, utensils, and various other household goods and novelties.

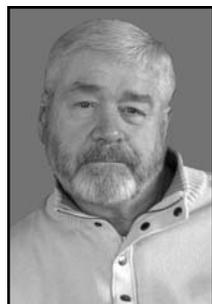

For now we can appreciate the splash of green that the Mountain Laurel offers to the white winter landscape. It won't be long though, and the intricate white and pink flowers of the Mountain Laurel will begin to explode into pastel pink bouquets delicately decorating the hillsides and announcing that warmer weather has returned to the Catskill Mountains.

Household Hints

Keep windows and windshields frost-free

As you probably know, salt greatly decreases the temperature at which ice freezes. You can use this fact to keep the windows in your home frost-free by wiping them with a sponge dipped in salt water, then letting them dry. In the winter, keep a small cloth bag of salt in your car. When the windshield and other windows are wet, rub them with the bag. The next time you go out to your car, the windows won't be covered with ice or snow.

Cherry

Mysterious Book Report No. 362

by John Dwaine McKenna

Every person in America today who pays attention to the news and current events is aware that we're dealing with an unprecedented drug and opioid crisis. The numbers are staggering . . . and the statistics sobering . . . there were more than 70,000 drug overdose deaths in the U.S. during the year 2017, according to the latest available figures from the CDC, or Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia. Numbers like those are not only heartbreaking, they're absolute proof that the so-called War on Drugs, now fifty-plus years old, is an utter failure. Some are in favor of tougher laws and more enforcement with harsher penalties. Still others favor the legalization and decriminalizing of all illicit substances, including the synthetic ones like spice and Fentanyl . . . known causes of havoc and death.

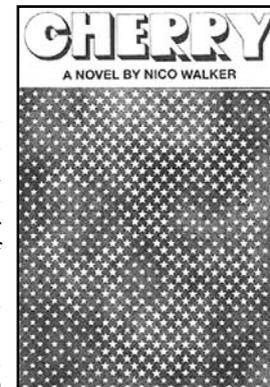

That's one side of the story. But like all stories, there's another side to it, told in an unapologetic, matter-of-fact and gut wrenching way by a young former heroin addict and talented writer who's currently in prison for aggravated armed robbery.

Cherry, (Knopf, $26.95, 313 pages, ISBN 978-0-525-52013-9) by Nico Walker, is the tale of a confused young man who sets off to college in Cleveland, Ohio, where he meets Emily, and they kinda, sorta, fall in love while fooling around on the periphery of the drug scene . . . much like a lot of young, dumb and confused kids do. But, the drugs and alcohol soon become overwhelming. Emily decides to transfer to a college in Canada, while the unnamed protagonist and narrator flunks out. Adrift and clueless, he joins the Army and trains as a medic, then gets sent to Iraq, where for him, there's no end of drugs, porno movies and death. He comes home to Cleveland with a raging case of PTSD, just in time to reconnect with Emily and meet the opioid pandemic head-on. Before long, they're shooting heroin every day and he's robbing banks to get the money to support their combined habit.

Told in visceral, raw and graphic language, this novel is not for the faint of heart, nor those easily offended by violence and coarse language. But for those who've shed their rose-colored glasses and want to know more of the real world, the opioid disaster and at the same time gain a better understanding of the society we live in today, you need to read this book. It's honest and tough, and it comes straight from Nico Walker's heart, holding nothing back, and making no excuses. It's a fascinating, sobering and heartbreaking testimonial that should be required reading for every member of Congress, the entire Department of Justice, as well as every Judge and Administrator in the country. Then maybe they'd do something about it . . .

Like the review . . . let your friends know, You saw it in the Mysterious Book Report . . . The greatest compliment you can give, is to like us and share it with others on Facebook. Follow us on Facebook, Twitter, Goodreads, Instagram.

Interview With The Author: Nico Walker

by John Dwaine McKenna

Our interview this week is thanks to the extra effort of Emily Reardon at Penguin Random House in NYC and our own Lora Brown here at Mysterious Book Report. Together, they coordinated our questions and corresponded with author Nico Walker, who's currently an inmate at the Ashland Federal Correctional Institution where he's serving an eleven year sentence for bank robbery. His debut novel, Cherry, is reviewed in MBR No. 362. He is a gifted writer, a decorated war veteran, a former heroin addict, armed robber, convict and PTSD sufferer whose personal story is available on Buzzfeed in an article by Scott Johnson entitled, "How a War Hero Became a Serial Bank Robber". Nico Walker is thirty-three years old, with one of the most unique and original voices in American crime fiction. He's scheduled for release in November of 2020. His answers are some of the most insightful we've ever received and, just like his novel, come straight from his heart. With many thanks . . . here's Nico Walker:

Why do you write?

I write because they (Correctional Officers) let me. And I'm grateful to them for that. It's the only way I can win in this life.

Where do you write?

In the housing unit library/card room, H-unit B-side, Ashland FCI. Also in the typing room in the education department, where the typewriters are.

Are any of your characters autobiographical?

Some of them.

Who's your favorite author?

Alive - Tom McGuane. Ever - Hemingway.

Do you plot-outline or wing it?

Usually wing it.

Do you read your reviews?

Yes. Negative reviews help me write. I want to prove them wrong.

Does luck play into success?

In my case, luck was everything. That and I had stories and I knew how to write a sentence. It helps if you take yourself seriously. Always take yourself seriously. If someone insults my writing, and he's a dude, I want to fight him. If a woman insults my writing I get real depressed about it.

What makes a character compelling?

Fallibility.

What makes a character endearing?

Conitration.

What makes a character despicable?

Lack of empathy.

Do any one of the above attributes make a more interesting character than another?

Fallibility is more important than contrition.

How did your book first get published?

Blind luck.

How long did it take?

Four years.

Do you use humor in your work?

I try to. It's good to have it. You can't make them cry if you haven't made them laugh. Because that's life.

What method do you use to keep track of plot details?

I get so into it that I can't forget things.

Where do you get most, some, or any your story ideas from?

Real life. Despair.

Do you belong to a writers group?

No.

Do you use long, detailed and in-depth descriptions of your characters and their environs?

No, I don't. I rely on dialogue and actions to show who they are. (One trick with the dialogue is you can use variations in word order to distinguish one character from another.)

I only use the big descriptions if it helps what I'm doing read well. If it sounds good I'll use it. I don't force anything if it messes the sound up.

Does your style make use of adjectives and adverbs?

I use adverbs sometime, just not to describe verbs if I can help it. I don't like to use tons of adjectives. Two in a row's the limit, I think. Usually that's too much, though. I'll try and use noun phrases, clauses, preposition phrases, whatever I can use to try and get away from the dark, stormy night format of description.

What type of scene is most difficult for you to write?

Scenes where I have to know things about what people who aren't failures would do.

Are you more comfortable writing in the first, or third person POV?

First person works better for me. You don't have to know things when you're writing in first. You can be ignorant.

How can we, as writers, promote and encourage more people to read?

Don't be boring. Don't be childish. Don't just say what everyone already thinks. Don't write clichés unless they illustrate ways of speaking that are specific to a type you're trying to show and they aren't generally known. Don't try and be clever all the time. Write honestly about what life's like and what's true.

What's your advice for aspiring writers?

Pay attention to sound. First, make sure you're not full of shit. Then try to sound good. And don't force things. Don't try to write someone else's book. Do what comes natural to you. That's your voice. Trust it.

Bonus question, and your last chance for brilliance . . .

Do you have any other comments, suggestions, tips, anecdotes, quotes or inspirational material you'd like to share?

Bonus answer: If you want to be a writer, then stop whatever it is you're doing, and don't do anything else except for what's absolutely necessary until you've written a book. For example: don't hang out with your friends. Your friends don't want you to write a book. Your friends just want you to waste all your time hanging out with them and bullshitting. So screw them. Another thing is don't read. Definitely don't read, unless (maybe) if it's for research (and even then probably you're better off not reading and just making some thing up).

Thx again for your insights and expertise, and for taking time out to speak with our audience today. Please keep us in your contacts list and let the MBR know about your next literary project.

The Olive Jar - By Carol LaMonda

Procrastinators Anonymous

Those who know me know that I am an-eleventh-hour person. Actually, make that eleven-forty-five. I work under pressure because I am a born-again procrastinator. Mañana is my mantra; prolonging is my creed.

My husband called upstairs to ask what I was doing. "Writing a column on procrastination," I replied, "but I am having a hard time getting started." He laughed at the irony. I was reminded of the meme about Procrastinators Anonymous who always have a meeting planned for tomorrow.

I never have trouble writing because my brain is always afire with thoughts that become essays that become treatises. Perhaps that is the problem. I can always find one more thing to do before I begin a task, and my thoughts are vectors to tangents of related subjects. Placing my bottom on the chair in front of the computer is the hardest step. Once I sit down to write, the words just flow like a case of mental diarrhea. Martin Luther King, Jr. reminds me, "You don't have to see the whole staircase, just take the first step."

I am usually on time or just a little late. I can get up at six and be late at ten with nothing to do in between. If I do have a deadline, you can be sure I will commence the effort shortly before the product is due. Knowing I produce under pressure, I sometimes place myself in situations that force me into high gear. I will invite people for dinner and repaint a bathroom just before I make the appetizers.

Part of the problem is my retired life style. I am doing only the things I want to do, and today's agenda can easily be slide into tomorrow's. I have to remind myself what author Janet Dailey said, "Someday is not a day of the week."

If it is really important, it gets done...late and in a hurry, but it gets done because I do remember what this famous artist Pablo Picasso said:

"Only put off until tomorrow what you are willing to die having left undone." I think of that as I empty the dirty clothes hamper into the washer each night before

There's a great deal going on at the Daniel Pierce Library for Children and Adults

This recent cold spell has us all wishing Spring was already here! Well, that's no different for all of us at the Daniel Pierce Library. We are so excited for Spring because not only does it bring warmer weather and sunshine it also is the start of our spring programs.

On Wednesday, March 13th we will have trained tax counselors here to help you with your tax filing. Please call the library to schedule an appointment today!

On Friday April 5th we are excited to host the New York State Police PBA President, Thomas Mungeer, author of The First State Troopers; A History of the New York State Troopers for an Author talk and book signing. Information on this evening will be announced in the next few weeks.

Monticello Central School District and SC Department of Family Services to open a Community Resource Center

Families of students enrolled in the Monticello Central School District will have greater access to support, thanks to a partnership between the district and the Sullivan County Department of Family Services. Beginning in early February, the district will open a Community Resource Center twice per month at Robert J. Kaiser Middle School where families in need of assistance with food, heating, employment, housing or any other challenge can meet with a caseworker to discuss options and begin the referral process.

"Finding pathways to assistance can be difficult for families who lack transportation, are juggling multiple jobs, or who are unaware of services and supports that they may be eligible for," explained District 2 Legislator Nadia Rajsz, chair of the Sullivan County Legislature's Health & Family Services Committee. "The goal of the Community Resource Center is to simplify the process of finding and receiving help with anything from parenting resources to emergency shelter."

"A parent who visits the Community Resource Center would have the opportunity to meet with a caseworker, who would then be able to assess what support or resources may be helpful for that parent," Health & Family Services Commissioner Joe Todora said. "Our caseworkers are very knowledgeable about the many programs available in this area and are able to connect families with resources that they may not even realize exist."

The Community Resource Center will be open by appointment only on the first Monday of each month from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the third Monday of each month from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Families with students currently enrolled in the MCSD may schedule an appointment by calling 845-796-3058, ext. 20119 and leaving a message.

"We are looking forward to the launch of this newest initiative," Executive Director of Special, Summer and After-School Programs Dana Taylor said. "It's a comfortable and safe space with greater access for our most vulnerable families."

The partnership is the latest in a long list of the district's initiatives to address the social and emotional wellness needs of its students. Since the implementation of the district's holistic approach, graduation rates have increased, disciplinary referrals have decreased and the district recently received the "in good standing" designation from the New York State Department of Education.

"We believe that there is no insurmountable wall standing between a student and his or her academic success," Superintendent of Schools Tammy Mangus said. "Hunger, poverty, lack of adequate shelter - these are all barriers to success. Students who are focused on worrying where their next meal is coming from aren't able to focus on academic work. Fortunately, most barriers facing our students are breakable, especially when you are surrounded by like-minded organizations and agencies. When you remove these barriers, you reveal a pathway towards true, engaged learning. This is our philosophy, and we are relentless in pursuing new ways to address the needs of our students and families."

According to Lewis (2017), the culture of poverty is both an adaptation and a reaction of the poor to their marginal position in a class-stratified, highly individuated, capitalistic society. It represents an effort to cope with feelings of hopelessness and despair which develop from the realization of the improbability of achieving success in terms of the values and goals of the larger society.

Dr. Lymon showed poverty rates for the Town of Fallsburg in multiple categories. Fallsburg does not fare very well in any of the categories-well below the County and even the State. Scientific evidence shows that the condition of poverty affects the brain from early childhood onward. Dr. Lymon's goal, through the VIC Program and other approaches to enlisting volunteer services, is to foster school partnership with the larger community and lessen poverty's impact.

In November of 2018, RJK launched its "Rachel's Challenge" initiative. Rachel's Challenge is an organization, inspired by the life of Rachel Joy Scott, that seeks to reduce incidents of bullying and violence through sharing the story of the late teen. According to a press release from the organization, Rachel's Challenge awakens individual hope, desire and purpose; which in turn promotes safer, more connected school communities. The program begins with an assembly that tells Rachel's story, followed by a challenge to students and staff to continue to actively seek and execute ways to make their school and community a kinder place.

"It's a really powerful program," RJK School Psychologist Karen Warden, who acts as the coordinator for Rachel's Challenge at RJK said. "So many of our students are just in survival mode and a lot of them put on facades to try to mask the struggles they are facing. This program hits them on an emotional level and helps them to reach that level of empathy that you need if you're truly going to foster change." (Contd. Pg. 11)

Rachelle's Challenge "Chain Reaction" at Robert J. Kaiser Middle School

At 13 years old, Rachel Joy Scott traced the outline of her hands on the back of her dresser and wrote "these hands belong to Rachel Joy Scott and will someday touch millions of people's hearts" within the hand print. Even though four short years later her life was tragically cut short in the Columbine High School Massacre, the prediction that she etched into her dresser has proven true. Nearly 20 years after Rachel's death, her legacy continues to touch the hearts of students throughout the country, including the hearts of students at Robert J. Kaiser Middle School (RJK) in Monticello.

Rachelle's Challenge "Chain Reaction" at Robert J. Kaiser Middle School (From Pg. 8)

After the initial assembly, the school was supposed to select just a few students to be ambassadors for the program. More than 100 students signed up.

With so many students touched by the message, an outpouring of creative ideas to spread kindness has sprung up at RJK, including:

- New Kids Club: a group of students who help new RJK students get acclimated to their new surroundings and incorporate them into their lunch group.
- Chains of Kindness Committee: a group of students who encourage others to write acts of kindness that they either performed or witnessed on strips of construction paper that are then linked together to form a visual "chain" of kind acts.
- Mural Committee: a group that is working to help beautify the school's hallways through arts.
- Rachel's Pantry and Rachel's Closet: a group that facilitates donations of food and clothing for RJK students.
- Weekly Challenge Group: a group that brainstorms weekly random acts of kindness challenges for their classmates to participate in.

TyLia Huise is one of Rachel's Challenge's most fervent ambassadors. The eighth-grade student was inspired by the presentation to make significant positive changes in her own life and also helps to encourage her classmates to do the same.

"I used to get involved in lots of drama," TyLia said. "But once I saw the assembly, I realized that some students really do get hurt by words and actions and I decided that it was time to grow up and stop having kid features."

Since then, TyLia has dramatically elevated her GPA, and is active in several of the Rachel's Challenge groups.

"She has grown up and matured so much," Ms. Warden said. "She's a good leader in her building and I know she is strong enough to carry the message forward when she enters the high school next year."

On March 5, RJK students will participate in Rachel's Challenge "Chain Reaction" during the school day - an interactive, day-long event that aims to help students and staff develop even deeper connections with one another.

After the school day is over on March 5, the school will host a community event from 6-7 p.m. in the Monticello High School Arnold Packer Hughs Auditorium. During this event, parents and families will have the opportunity to learn more about Rachel's story, and have the opportunity to look for little ways to make Monticello, and the world, a kinder place.

UC Executive Michael P. Hein Appointed as Acting Commissioner of NYS Office of Temporary & Disability Assistance Acting County Executive Adele B. Reiter To Assume Leadership of County Operations

KINGSTON, N.Y. - "It has been an extraordinary honor to serve the great people of Ulster County," said County Executive Michael P. Hein. "For over a decade, as our first County Executive, I have had the privilege of overseeing some of the most sweeping positive changes in our community's history, profound governmental reforms, and a complete upward realignment of the trajectory of Ulster County's future. In the process, I have had the opportunity to work with incredible people who share my passion for true public service. We now have the lowest County property taxes in a decade, the lowest unemployment rate in twenty years, and the strongest environmental reputation in New York State. Working together we have accomplished what many thought impossible: ensuring access to more services than ever before without increasing taxes. Our Veterans are receiving the level of respect they so justly deserve; we are making an impact on critical challenges like generational poverty, community empowerment, and criminal justice reform; and we have regained public confidence by completing nearly $100 million in infrastructure projects - on-time and under budget. Collectively, we have truly changed our corner of the world for the better."

"Governor Cuomo, who has proven himself to be the most effective and progressive voice in government, has now provided me with the truly humbling opportunity to serve the great people of New York State as the Commissioner of the NYS Office of Temporary and Disability Assistance, where I look forward to continuing my efforts to help those among us most in need," continued County Executive Hein. "It is a responsibility that is very important to me personally, and I am looking forward to this momentous challenge. As a result, it is with the deepest respect for the 180,000 residents of Ulster County that I must now pass the torch and end my tenure as County Executive, effective Sunday, February 10th. I am thrilled to depart with no regrets, as I have truly felt blessed every day to serve as the Ulster County Executive, and to work with some of the finest people ever to work in government service."

"As we look forward," continued County Executive Hein, "I am confident that we have created a strong new foundation for my successors to build upon, and - thanks to our taxpayer protection funds - that we have virtually guaranteed continued property tax reductions for the families and businesses of Ulster County for the foreseeable future. I want to thank everyone who provided such incredible support over the years to myself and my family, as well as to my amazing colleagues who continue every day in their never-ending effort to reinvent County government to best serve its people. Thank you for the true honor you have provided me - I will hold it in my heart forever."

"As I take on my new role in Governor Cuomo's administration, I am thrilled that the reins of County government will now be taken up by my Chief of Staff Adele B. Reiter, whom I have designated to serve as Acting County Executive. Throughout my ten years in office, her deep knowledge of county government and her unwavering commitment to excellence have helped guide and shape the accomplishments that have distinguished this administration. I am confident that she and our team of dedicated public servants will continue to work day-in and day-out to serve the people of Ulster County with great distinction," County Executive Hein concluded.

On Monday, February 11th Deputy County Executive Adele B. Reiter will take the oath of office in a private ceremony and assume the official duties of Acting County Executive.

Local Municipalities Share Millions While Local Businesses Benefit

Ulster County - If you ever financed a home purchase or participated in a closing then you are very familiar with the "sticker-shock" faced by the buyer when 2-5% of additional monies are needed to cover a myriad of expenses, such as legal fees, bank fees, property taxes, insurance and filing fees. One of those charges, and likely one of the more expensive items on the list, is for the "privilege" of recording the mortgage - more commonly known as the "mortgage recording tax."

In Ulster County - home to one of the lowest mortgage recording tax rates in New York State - that fee is .75% of the loan amount. All proceeds are returned to the municipalities where the properties are located though a portion of which reimburses the County for administrative services related to the tax.

Vigorous housing sales have contributed to a rise in the tax, as overall County-wide distributions have reached a three-year high of over $4 million. Most localities are doing well too, with the City of Kingston gaining over $1 million in revenue and the Towns of Ulster and Saugerties each realizing over $900,000 from October 1, 2015 to September 30, 2018.

"The dynamic real estate market has created an economic vitality that has benefitted local government. The secondary impact of a healthy housing market can be felt by hardware and appliance stores, landscapers, home furnishing stores and construction companies," stated Comptroller Elliott Auerbach. "Naturally the market has its ebbs and flows determined by geographic location, inventory and price, but it has been holding fairly strong - especially considering the majority of municipalities that have seen mortgage tax revenue growth over the past three years."

The full report can be found on the Comptroller's website: <http://ulstercountyny.gov/comptroller/mortgage-recording-tax-report>

Sullivan County Clerk Announces Retirement

Monticello, NY - Sullivan County Clerk Daniel Briggs confirmed today he will retire at the end of his term on December 31, 2019.

"It has been a privilege to serve the people of Sullivan County as their County Clerk these past 11+ years," he said. "I will be leaving with deep pride in the team which comprises my office. I've worked with many dedicated and talented people, and whatever success I have enjoyed has been a direct result of their efforts and commitment."

Briggs' staff encompasses the County Clerk's Office, the Department of Motor Vehicles, and Records Management. Under his leadership, they have instituted electronic land records, including public access to files via the Internet, and have guided thousands of residents through the oft-complicated worlds of pistol permits, driver's licenses (including the newly offered Real ID) and deed filings, to name just a few.

"I was particularly gratified to initiate the Return the F.A.V.O.R. Program (Find and Assist Veterans of Record), which issues identification cards to honorably discharged veterans, entitling them to discounts or services from participating local merchants and shops," he stated. "It's this County's way of saying 'thank you' to everyone who selflessly served in our armed forces."

Raised in Monticello, Briggs has served his fellow citizens in a variety of other public roles, as well: nearly 18 years as County Treasurer, 5 years as County Manager and one year as Assistant Commissioner of the NYS Office of Housing and Community Renewal, plus terms as a Thompson Town Councilman and Acting Village of Monticello Justice.

"Throughout my public service tenure," he remarked, "I have always maintained a primary goal: to be a credit to the County I serve."

He will continue to serve Sullivan County, as he remains a member of the Monticello Fire Department, the Sullivan Renaissance Steering Committee, the SullivanArc Human Rights Committee and the local Eagle Scout Review Board.

Briggs is retiring to spend more time with his family, including fiancée Anna, mom Corinne, sister Nancy, brothers Jeff and Peter, his children and his granddaughter. He will continue to reside full-time in Fremont Center.

"This is, and always will be, home," he affirmed.

SC at Impasse with Teamsters Union

Monticello, NY - Despite two years of good-faith efforts, Sullivan County and the union which represents nearly half its workforce, Teamsters Local 445, have been unable to come to an agreement on a labor contract. As a result, the NYS Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) has begun the fact-finding process, whereby an independent analysis of the situation is being conducted, with recommendations to be made to the County and the union.

County Manager Josh Potosek today sent a letter to all 516 Teamsters employees, outlining the most recent offer that was rejected by Teamsters negotiators.

"It's critical for the County's workforce to be aware of the significant offer legislators authorized my office to make," Potosek explained. "It's also important for them to understand how hard we worked to make this deal happen, and that I share their frustration at the lack of an agreement to date."

The offer, made in December and supported by all nine legislators, would have given every Teamsters member at least a $3,000 increase to their base pay, if not more, and 122 positions would have received a 5% raise on top of that. Adding in a number of concessions, the County's offer would have required the appropriation of $1.6 million more in the County budget.

In return, the County asked for one concession: that Teamsters members hired by the County after January 1, 2019 enroll in the New York State Health Insurance Program's (NYSHIP's) Excelsior Plan and contribute 20% toward the annual premium. (Such an arrangement already exists for a number of other County employees.)

Even before this offer, the Legislature had passed several resolutions to address union concerns - including the concern that some County employees are not making a living wage. In 2017, notwithstanding the contract in force at the time, legislators agreed to increase salaries of positions in Planning, Addiction Services, and Nursing, along with raising the minimum wage of all County employees to $15 an hour by the end of 2019 (well above the $12.50 target the State has set for upstate New York).

In 2018, legislators modified rules for Caseworkers, allowing new hires to bypass the two-year employment requirement before earning their full salaries. Instead of starting at $38,123 and waiting two years to make $40,129, Caseworkers now reach that full salary in six months.

The sum of these initiatives means the average Teamsters member's annual salary in County government is $37,000. The latest offer would increase the average salary to just over $40,000.

The Teamsters contract expired on December 31, 2017, but negotiations began in April of 2017. The County and union negotiators have conferred repeatedly to reach agreement, yet even with outside mediation, consensus has not been forthcoming.

"We are awaiting the fact-finder's report and recommendations, after which the Legislature will be empowered to determine how to proceed," Potosek explained. "I'm hoping the negotiating teams can come to terms before that becomes necessary, but the County has gone as far as it can whilst remaining fiscally prudent and responsible to the taxpayers. Any higher offer will force us to raise taxes beyond the 2% State-mandated cap. It's up to the Teamsters representatives to give their members what they deserve: a fair contract."

Free Energy Efficiency Tips Can Keep You Warmer This Winter

MONTICELLO/LIBERTY, NY- As the recent winter weather has reminded us, preparation is everything in winter. Whether it's keeping an eye on the latest weather reports for the Hudson Valley, investing in snow tires to keep your car on the road, or weatherizing your home, a little foresight goes a long way to keeping you warm and safe through the winter months. Looking into your home's energy use now can save you dollars, headaches, and the need to ration your heat in the coldest weeks of the year.

Due to the laws of thermodynamics, warm air that you've paid to heat your home will eventually rise through the dwelling. If your home or apartment isn't air tight or well-insulated, you could be paying to heat your upstairs neighbor's place or sending that warm air straight out of your home, doing more harm than good. In fact, if you tend to see big icicles forming from your roof, that could be a sign that your roof is under-insulated, meaning you might be paying more for heat than you have to and potentially at risk for water damage.

The good news is the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) and your local Community Energy Advisors at Cornell Cooperative Extension (CCE) can help. Residents all over New York and the Hudson Valley are discovering programs and incentives to help renters and homeowners take a whole-house approach to reducing their energy burden. Most New Yorkers are eligible for a FREE home energy assessment. Seriously! Just contact a Community Energy Advisor to learn how by calling 845-677-8223.

CCE Sullivan County has scheduled two FREE workshops for homeowners and businesses about Resources for Clean Energy Projects, with an opportunity for questions.

The first class will take place Wednesday, February 20,

b) Five (5) years of experience as indicated in a) above.

Salary Range: $44,000 - $46,000

Full Civil Service job description available online at:

2019 from 6:00 to 7:00 pm in the Robert D. Norris Community Room of the Ethelbert B. Crawford Public Library on 479 Broadway in Monticello.

The second identical class will take place Thursday, March 7, 2019 from 6:00 to 7:00 pm at the Extension Education Center on 64 Ferndale-Loomis Road in Liberty.

Sean Welsh, CCE Sullivan energy resource educator, presents the basics:

- Improving energy efficiency of your home or business
- Upgrading systems in your building
- Utilizing loans and other financing options
- Home energy assessments

Registration is requested in advance by visiting www.sullivancee.org, emailing sullivan@cornell.edu, or calling CCE Sullivan at 845-292-6180. In the event of special accommodations, the public can contact the CCE Sullivan office.

Income-eligible residents can also receive cost-share to make your home more energy efficient to start saving money now. A family of four making less than $53,484 might be eligible to receive energy efficiency retrofits like air sealing, insulation, weatherizing, and even a new refrigerator/freezer at no cost!

Don't wait until the next polar vortex, Nor'easter, or huge utility bill to do something about your home's energy efficiency. Talk to a NYSERDA Community Energy Advisor about what programs, services, and products are right for you. Call 845-677-8223.

About New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA): NYSERDA offers objective information and analysis, innovative programs, technical expertise, and support to help New Yorkers increase energy efficiency, save money, use renewable energy, and reduce reliance on fossil fuels. A public benefit corporation, NYSERDA has been advancing energy solutions and working to protect the environment since 1975. (<https://www.nysesda.ny.gov/About>).

News from the Rondout Neversink Stream Program: (From Pg. 11)Augmented Reality Becomes Reality At Sullivan BOCES

Sullivan BOCES has produced an Augmented Reality (AR) Sandbox Watershed Model. Samuel Rogers, instructor of Natural Resources and Ecology, led thirty-four 11th and 12th grade students in the construction of this ambitious project. The AR Watershed Model projects color-coded topographic lines onto a sandbox. The contour lines instantly adjust as the user shapes the sand into new landscapes. The user is able to "create" rainfall by hovering a single hand over the landscape (see image). Rogers intends to incorporate the AR Watershed Model into future lesson plans. Students will utilize the model's interactive capabilities to improve their understanding of topographic mapping, and further their awareness of local flood hazards. We are excited to see the future applications of this technology unfold.

Thank You From the 2018 Anglers Symposium

Over 50 friends of our projects enjoyed this year's symposium back in November. If you missed Diane Galusha's talk on Edward R. Hewitt, check out this video at <http://www.rondout-neversink.org/the-watershed-project/>. We've made the full program with Shaun McAdams of TU and Carri Marschner of NYS Hemlock Initiative available as podcast at <http://www.rondoutneversink.org/podcasts/>
