UC Exec Ryan Announces Additional Funding to Support Youth Programs

As a part of the next phase of Project Resilience, County Executive Ryan announces expanded support for child care programs

KINGSTON, N.Y. - County Executive Pat Ryan is pleased to announce an additional round of Project Resilience child care funds to support school-aged, full-day programs in Ulster County. Project Resilience, with the assistance of United Way, allocated $72,000 in funding to the Center for Creative Education, The Boys and Girls Club, and the YMCA, directly supporting scholarships to 218 youth throughout the winter. The scholarships to these programs are vital to keeping local youth in safe and enriching environments with access to the internet and computers and support for their remote learning.

“As a parent, I fully understand the burden that this pandemic has put on our families and youth,” County Executive Ryan said. “Having a safe place for our children to learn helps to protect the next generation of Ulster County residents while allowing their families to keep their careers on track. I am so grateful for the community's support for Project Resilience so that we can continue to provide these much-needed services.”

“Project Resilience has made it possible for us to provide a safe place for youth to go while the parents are at work, with the providing proper role models to guide them through their virtual learning,” Dan Whalen, from the Executive Director, Boys and Girls Club said. “These funds aided us in extending the hours our facility is open and has allowed us to provide a safe place for teens to go in the evening when they are at most at risk.” (Contd. The Sullivan County Office of the Civilian Defense Administration has announced that a house to house survey will be made in the Town of Neversink starting this week. Household Hints:

Does the wood paneling in your den look dull and dreary? Liven it up with this simple homemade remedy: Mix 1 pint warm water, 4 tablespoons white or apple cider vinegar, and 2 tablespoons olive oil in a container, give it a couple of shakes, and apply with a clean cloth. Let the mixture soak into the wood for several minutes, then polish with a dry cloth.

Nature Column - Linda Comando

A tribute to the memory of all of the Townsman Ladies that we have lost and loved so much... Peggy DeWire, Avril Pappa, Joan Hall, Polly Hill, Joyce Lockhart, Jean Helthaler, Karen Curry and Barbara Slater.

Where are all the Red Berries?

Where are all the red berries that we usually see during winter? They are there, but we just can't see them. Things are looking pretty drab out in the backyard. Without the winter white background – snow – even the brightest of red berries seem to fade into the dreary landscape.

The exception are the attractive cluster of seeds from the Staghorn sumac (Rhus typhina). Just a slight dusting of clinging snow and they tend to brighten the scene with a vibrant contrast.

Staghorn sumac is native to eastern North America, Southeastern Canada, the Midwestern United States and in the Catskill Mountains. You will often see Staghorn sumac along highways as it tolerates pollution and smog. The Staghorn sumac is not too fussy and is often found in dry, rocky soils. But it doesn't usually grow in heavy clay as it does not like its roots to stay wet for too long. They do like sun or partial sun.

The Staghorn sumac is a deciduous shrub or small tree that grows from 4 to 15 feet high and 20 feet wide. There are male and female trees.

During the summer a quick glance of its lush green foliage, might give the impression that it is a type of tropical plant. Its lengthy branches are heavily lined with multitudes of long, odd-pinnately lobed, flame-shaped leaves that are compound, with up to 15 leaflets on each side.

Its common name, "staghorn", refers to the fuzzy appearance of the young shoots. They look like the branched antlers of a male deer in velvet.

In early summer, conical clusters of yellow flowers appear at the tip ends of branches. By mid-summer the flower cones evolve into fuzzy, tightly packed, red berries that grow in an upright cluster of red drupes (little fruits with a single seed in each). They are easy to spot, even from a distance.

The berries are edible but very tart. Most birds will eat them as a last resort during winter when other food sources have diminished.

Native Americans used the berries in cough syrup. Beekeepers use the wood from the sumac as fuel for their smokers. The ground-up clusters are valued as a spice in some parts of the world. A natural dye can be made from the leaves, stems and fruit. And the berries can be made into a lemony-tasting drink that needs lots of sugar!

The wood of the Staghorn sumac is soft. They are often considered as junk trees as they are weedy little trees. However, like any other weed, it becomes that because it is growing where it shouldn't. There are however, many people who grow the Staghorn as ornamentals and hedges.

This year, the crowning glory of the Staghorn sumac was in the fall when their bright flaming foliage and clusters of red fruit were distinctly visible.

Looking at the weather forecast it looks like nature's palette will lack the luster that can only be enhanced by a showy snow backdrop.

Tuskegee Airmen Announce Annual Scholarships: Tri-Valley Central School Student Among Winners

The New Windsor-based Maj. Gen. Irene Trowell-Harris Chapter of the national Tuskegee Airmen Inc. organization has announced eight scholarships totaling $13,000 to be tendered to deserving Hudson Valley high school seniors. The awards will be made at a "virtual dinner" to be held on February 6, 2021 at seven p.m.

In years past, the Newburgh Free Academy has always been the home school of multiple winners, but this year, Cornwall Central High School students won three of the scholarships with a fourth from Cornwall-on-Hudson's Storm King School. The winners are:

- o Michaela Brown, Cornwall Central High School
- o Hannah Cullen, Newburgh Free Academy
- o Nicole Davis, Cornwall Central High School
- o Dominique Gooden, Storm King School
- o Celest Ibarra, Tri-Valley Central School
- o Manpreet Kaur, Middletown High School
- o Nathan Woinicki, Cornwall Central High School
- o Mya Zilberberg, Newburgh Free Academy

The Trowell-Harris Tuskegee Airmen chapter has been granting tuition-assistance awards since 1999. During those 22 years, it has bestowed a total of over $238,000 on students bound for colleges and vocational schools. The chapter has now established the Hudson Valley Tuskegee Airmen Endowment Fund to guarantee the viability of future scholarships in perpetuity, as part of the chapter's mission to protect the legacy of the original World War II Tuskegee Airmen and their part in the vast movement for Civil Rights for African Americans

Message from Daniel Pierce Library Happy New Year!!

While 2020 was a tough year, I am hopeful that 2021 will be better for all of us. My hope for 2021 is that we will soon be able to enjoy time together with family and friends. I'm also hopeful that we will be able to resume programming and enjoy time together with our patrons here at the library.

While our goal was to be reopened for normal hours early this year, with the second wave of Covid-19 currently hitting the US, we have put that on hold for now. Currently we are still open for limited hours, we are limiting time patrons can be in the building or on a public computer, and we are still offering curbside pick up. With that in mind, I thought it was time to resume our e-communication with patrons so that we can keep you up to date with what's going on at the library and what to look forward to in the coming months.

Our wi-fi is available from the parking lot 24 hours a day 7 days a week - no password needed! During the nicer weather we encouraged patrons to use the back patio to access wi-fi. The patio is not maintained during the winter months, therefore it is closed until the spring. While we can't allow patrons to stay in the building for extended periods of time, we encourage you to park in the parking lot and access the wi-fi for any of your internet needs.

Our online resources have been a focal point this year for not only our library, but all of the libraries in the Ramapo Catskill Library System. The Libby and Overdrive apps have thousands of books available for you to choose from.

As a Daniel Pierce Library card holder you can also access Rosetta Stone - for FREE. Just call the library and ask a staff member how it works.

We are as anxious as you are to welcome patrons and groups back in to the building. Myself, along with the Board of Directors, continue to monitor Covid-19 numbers in our county to decide when it is safe to reopen as normal. For now, we continue to encourage everyone to utilize our curbside services, come in for limited browsing, or call to make an appointment to access one of our computers (30 minutes limit).

Sincerely,
Jessica Dymond

Following Continued Advocacy, Gillibrand Announces $1.5 Billion in Funding for the Impact Aid Program to Provide Critical Resources for Schools on Federal Land

FY2021 Bipartisan Appropriations Package Included $15 Million Increase In Funding To Support Several School Districts In The North Country, Western New York And The Hudson Valley

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand announced that the recently passed bipartisan FY2021 government funding package includes $1.5 billion in funding for the country's Impact Aid Program. The funding delivers a $15 million increase from previous years. Federally impacted school districts educate some of the most vulnerable student populations - including Native American and military connected children - and rely on Impact Aid for resources. As these school districts struggle to respond to the challenges caused by the coronavirus pandemic, this continued funding will help alleviate expected state funding cuts and avoid lay-offs, provide adequate technology for online learning, and spur economic recovery in their communities. Earlier this year, Senator Gillibrand led a bipartisan letter alongside U.S. Senator James Inhofe (R-OK), urging appropriators to prioritize Impact Aid Funding to support more than 1,200 school districts across the country including several near Fort Drum, West Point, and Native American lands in Western New York.

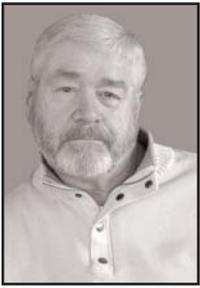

"I'm proud to have delivered this vital $15 million increase in Impact Aid funding to provide a lifeline for federally impacted school districts that have struggled to adapt to the challenges of the COVID-19 crisis," said Senator Gillibrand. "This pandemic has only increased the learning gap and this funding will help students who attend schools affected by federal activity have equal access to the same educational opportunities as other children. Continued funding for the Impact Aid Program will deliver necessary resources for school districts to address the unique challenges of the pandemic and ensure their success in the future."

The Impact Aid Program is a federal program designed to supplement school budgets in districts that are on a large portion of federally owned, nontaxable land, such as military bases and Native American reservations. Several districts in the North Country around Fort Drum, including the Sackets Harbor Central School District, the Carthage Central School District, and the Indian River Central School District rely on this funding in order to support educational development at schools. Old Anger

Mysterious Book Report No. 430

by John Dwaine McKenna

Although this novel was released in late 2020, it's still as timely as tonight's news. That's because it's about racism and how it's felt from both black and white perspectives.

Old Anger, (Brash Books, PB, $18.99, 277 pages, ISBN 978-1-7343480-7-1) by Phillip Thompson, takes place in present day rural Mississippi and features a white, small town sheriff named Colt Harper. He's a local man who grew up on the area; joined the US Marine Corps. after high school; served in the war in Iraq and returned to his hometown, where he eventually became the County Sheriff. He knows everyone in the area — and along with his friend and main deputy, John Carver, a black man and fellow marine who saw combat with Harper in the Middle East— Colt assumes that he knows all that's happening in the county where he was born and raised. But the truth is . . . he doesn't.

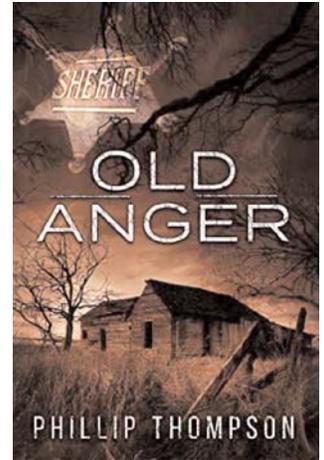

The novel begins when the body of a black man named Lucius Wallace is discovered in a gravel pit. He's been murdered, and his death sets off a chain of events that are reminiscent of the vicious kind of racial episodes which took place in the south during the 1950s and earlier . . . turning Sheriff Colt Harper's world upside down and shattering his belief in harmony between the blacks and whites who live in the community.

When the first arrest in the case turns out to be a well-respected black minister and local leader with motive, means and opportunity, the black community goes into mass demonstrations and protests, accusing the beleaguered sheriff of racism, and causing him to examine his long-held beliefs. After new and further evidence exonerates the man . . . the white community believes Harper has let a murderer loose in their midst. But when two other murders of black men take place in quick succession, the seething racial resentment is near the boiling point. Sheriff Harper and Deputy Carver battle to keep the peace, catch the killer, and bring justice to both races, while outside forces try to start a race war and burn it all down in this thought provoking and easy reading whodunit whose pages are smoking with drama and oozing with irony!

Trivia

In addition to a number of unsettling events this week, last night marked the last taped episode of °∞Jeopardy°± with Alex Trebek. I cried. It was like losing a dear friend or family member who was invited into our home, right after supper, for decades.

When we lived in our farmhouse, my good friend Pat had cable while we had Direct TV. °∞Jeopardy°± aired a half hour earlier on cable. Every night, Pat would call me and tell me the answer to the final Jeopardy question. I would blurt it out impressing my husband with my knowledge of trivia.

We did this for years!
 So, in honor of Alex Trebek, I hope to lighten the mood this week with some light trivia. Try working some of this into a casual conversation rather than discussing politics:
 There is a word for the fear of long words. It's called "hippopotomonstrosesquippedalio-phobia."
 Lake Superior State University in Michigan offers a unicorn hunting license.
 It officially takes 364 licks to get to the center of a Tootsie Pop. Also, Tootsie Rolls were used as part of the rations for World War II soldiers.
 The hashtag symbol is technically called an octothorp.
 It's been said that nearly 3% of the ice in Antarctic glaciers is penguin urine.
 China owns nearly all of the pandas in the world, even the ones you see at zoos. They rent them out for about $1 million a year.
 The heart of a shrimp is located in its head.
 A group of flamingos is called a °∞flamboyance°±.
 Since 1945, all British tanks have come equipped with tea making facilities.

 on Federal Land

Additionally, the Highland Falls-Fort Montgomery Central School District, in the Hudson Valley around West Point, relies on critical Impact Aid funding. Lastly, the Salamanca, Gowanda, Lake Shore and Silver Creek School Districts, which are all located on Native Americans land, also depend on impact aid funding.

Since its creation in 1950, the Impact Aid program has provided assistance to local school districts with concentrations of children residing on Native American lands, military bases or other Federal properties, and concentrations of children who have parents in the uniformed services or employed on eligible Federal properties who do not live on Federal property.

In addition to the letter to appropriators sent in March, Senator Gillibrand has continuously advocated for robust Impact Aid funding during the coronavirus pandemic. During negotiations for the coronavirus relief package, she led a bipartisan group of senators in urging Congress to prioritize Impact Aid funding. Gillibrand also introduced legislation to provide $1 billion in supplemental funding for school infrastructure construction grants through the Impact Aid program to help school districts adapt to, and recover from, the COVID-19 crisis.

Christmas Flooding Storm Response - Statewide

ECOs block closed road in Greene County due to flooding conditions

In response to flooding caused by melting snow on Dec. 24 and 25 in parts of the state, ECOs partnered with additional DEC staff and New York State agencies to respond to emergency calls. Flood Incident Support Team members were staged in Ulster, Broome, Washington, and Schoharie counties and responded to various calls from residents and motorists requesting assistance. Heavy rains on Christmas Eve caused significant flooding in Greene County, as well, resulting in ECOs assisting first responders with home evacuations, welfare checks, and calls for assistance.

UC Exec Ryan Announces Additional Funding to Support Youth Programs

From Pg. 1) “Keeping our youth nurtured and supported during this pandemic is hugely important for our entire community,” Drew Andrews, Executive Director, Center for Creative Education said. “Thanks to Project Resilience we were able to keep our program running this winter while families still urgently need our help.”

Project Resilience provided support for these programs in the fall and is continuing funding through the winter to support local youth and families impacted by the pandemic through an additional round of funding to Center for Creative Education, The Boys and Girls Club and the YMCA so that they can continue to offer tuition assistance to families in need.

As the needs of our county evolve over the winter, the County will continue to re-imagine Project Resilience to meet the needs of the Ulster County community. Project Resilience is made possible through partnerships with the United Way and Community Foundations.

Launched in March, Project Resilience started as a community fund and local food distribution efforts established to support residents impacted by COVID-19. Within 24 hours of its inception, County Executive Ryan secured over $2 million dollars in funding and announced partnerships with municipal governments, local businesses, and not-for-profits. Since launching, Project Resilience has provided nearly 300,000 meals while supporting over 100 small businesses

Donations are accepted here through the United Way of Ulster County. For more information on Project Resilience, please visit: <https://covid19.ulstercountyny.gov/project-resilience/>

DEC Encourages New York Anglers to Try Ice Fishing During Winter Months

Anglers Reminded to Put Safety First Before Ice Fishing and Observe Public Health Guidelines During State's Ongoing Response to COVID-19 State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos encouraged New York's new and experienced anglers to get outside and safely enjoy ice fishing during the winter months

"From small local ponds to large lakes and reservoirs, New York has a tremendous array of ice fishing opportunities for anglers to experience close to home," Commissioner Seggos said. "Many fish species are active throughout the winter months and the fishing can be just as good as during the open water season. As always, before venturing onto the ice, DEC asks all anglers to make sure the ice is thick enough to fish safely."

Four inches of solid clear ice is usually safe for anglers accessing ice on foot. Ice thickness can vary on waterbodies and even within the same waterbody. Anglers should be particularly cautious of areas of moving water and around boat docks and houses where bubblers may be installed to reduce ice from forming. Testing the ice can easily be done with an auger or spud bar at various spots. Fishing with a family member or a friend is also encouraged for safety. Local bait and tackle shops are a great resource for finding out where there is safe ice and what anglers are catching.

As part of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo's NY Open for Fishing and Hunting initiative, the weekend of February 13-14, 2021, is a designated free fishing weekend. The requirement for a fishing license is waived during this period. This is a great opportunity to try ice fishing for the first time or for experienced anglers to take friends ice fishing for the first time. Beginning ice anglers are encouraged to download the Ice Fishing Chapter (PDF) of DEC's I FISH NY Beginners Guide to Freshwater Fishing (PDF, 16 MB) for information on how to get started ice fishing. Additional information, including a list of waters open to ice fishing, can be found on the DEC ice fishing webpage and the Public Lakes and Ponds maps.

The use of fish for bait is popular when ice fishing and bait fish may be used in most, but not all, waters open to ice fishing. Anglers should take these important steps when using baitfish while ice fishing:

- o Review and follow the DEC baitfish regulations;
- o Make sure that the use of baitfish is permitted in the waterbody by checking the special regulations by county section of the Freshwater Fishing Regulations Guide;
- o Use only certified disease-free bait fish purchased at a local tackle store or use only personally collected bait fish for use in the same waterbody in which they were caught;
- o Do not reuse baitfish in another waterbody if the water the baitfish were purchased in has been replaced; and
- o Dump unused baitfish and water in an appropriate location on dry land.

DEC reminds anglers to make sure that they have a valid fishing license before heading out on the ice. Fishing licenses are valid for 365 days from the date of purchase.

Ultimately, ice fishing is a great way to enjoy the outdoors during the winter months while practicing social distancing. Unlike some other styles of fishing, ice fishing is unique because groups can spread out and fish safely together. DEC is reminding anglers to be SMART when fishing this year:

- o Socially distance at least six feet apart;
- o Mask - Wear one when you cannot maintain social distancing, especially in parking lots and along footpaths;

- o Avoid sharing gear when possible;
 - o Respect your fellow anglers and the resource by providing space and practicing ethical angling; and
 - o Take out what you bring in or place trash in receptacles.
- Get Outside Safely, Responsibly, and Locally

New York State's PLAY SMART * PLAY SAFE * PLAY LOCAL campaign encourages residents to engage in responsible recreation during the ongoing COVID-19 public health crisis. New York State Parks and DEC recommendations for getting outside safely incorporate guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the New York State Department of Health for reducing the spread of infectious diseases. PLAY SMART * PLAY SAFE * PLAY LOCAL encourages New Yorkers to recreate locally, practice physical distancing, show respect for all outdoor adventurers, and use common sense to protect themselves and others. Wear a mask, even when visiting the outdoors. For more information about how to PLAY SMART * PLAY SAFE * PLAY LOCAL, visit DEC's website.

Governor announces NYS Scheduling for Vaccinations

On Monday, New York State began scheduling vaccinations for "Phase 1b" groups-the next category of people eligible for the vaccine. This group includes: People aged 75 and up; education workers (pre-K through 12 teachers and education workers, licensed and registered child care providers, and school-bus drivers); first responders (local police, State Police, Sheriff's Office employees, professional and volunteer firefighters); EMS workers (including professional and volunteer paramedics and EMTs); public transit workers (airline and airport employees, passenger railroad employees, subway and mass transit employees, ferry employees, Port Authority employees, and public bus drivers); and public safety workers. About 3.2 million additional New Yorkers will now be eligible.

There will be many more sites where New Yorkers can get vaccinated as we enter Phase 1b-more on that below-and we will be sure to keep you informed in this newsletter with the latest updates. While we all want to vaccinate even more New Yorkers, we must also keep things in perspective. We have a real supply problem with regards to the vaccine. Without increased supply from the federal government, we expect it will take 14 weeks to vaccinate the Phase 1a and 1b groups, which takes us to...April 16. We are in communication with the incoming Biden administration on the issue of supply, which must increase, but it is critical that all New Yorkers continue to wear a mask, social distance and exercise caution.

Next week, New York will expand to a larger provider network for vaccine distribution. To assist with Phase 1b vaccine administration, the expanded network will include doctor networks, Federally Qualified Health Centers, county health departments, ambulatory centers and pharmacies. Starting next week, 500 pharmacies will come online to assist in the vaccine distribution. All of these new providers will begin accepting vaccination reservations on Monday-stay tuned for more details. Hospitals will continue to serve as vaccination sites as well.

The State Department of Health is setting up 20 mass distribution sites over the next several weeks. One of these sites will be the Javits Center on the West Side of Manhattan, which will open to begin distributing the vaccine on Wednesday by appointment to eligible New Yorkers.

The Scene Too

- Jane Harrison

I have a barometer in my house. Actually, three of them. They are called "cats" and they have never been wrong. And they are eating. And eating. What tells me is this beautiful weather over the weekend will be short lived. What's interesting is that only one of the three ever spent time outside, and he, only for the first two months of his life. But they have never been wrong, so I've stocked up on medicines, heavy cream (can't have coffee without 2 drops of this stuff) cat food and litter.

Ah, medicine. For the first time ever, I have agreed to take one on a regular basis. Pandemic. Idiots. Can you guess what it is?

Ah, idiots. I have to place a large electronic and appliance chain store in this category. I ordered a new TV online...because, well, if I'm not setting foot in a grocery store, I'm not driving thirty five - forty miles to set foot in one of their stores. So, I get the TV (it was sent through the postal service), I hook it up, it works just fine. BUT it's missing the four screws to affix the base to the TV. So, I go online and engage in a 'live chat' because the automated chat does not recognize what I'm saying. The live chat is equally exciting. They keep telling me that "because it's a TV, I have to bring the TV to the nearest (store)." - which is thirty five miles away. This makes no sense to me. The following day, I call the number given by the website for that store. After being on hold for almost an hour, I get to talk to a real live person who tells me that yes indeed to get those four screws I need to pack up the TV, take that bulky box down a flight and a half down the stairs, trundle it into the car, drive the thirty five miles, take it into the store...because in order to get those four screws I have to exchange the entire TV! IF they have one (she assured me the inventory said they did). Ever the pessimist, I enquire about them NOT having one. She then tells me about another store but she's not sure how far that one is because she's in WASHINGTON, "...or you can upgrade." BINGO. Pretty darned slick. For four missing screws! Ummm, no. I ordered 'guaranteed' replacement screws online, and if they don't work, perhaps Gorilla Glue will.

Sorting my yarns recently for my Penance Blanket, I ran across two skeins given to me by my good friend ANNIE CADDEN, former Director of Fiber On Main in Hurleyville. The minute I saw them, what she said as she handed them to me came flooding in "Work your magic". I remember agonizing as to what to make with them, before putting them away. Upon finding them again, there was no doubt because I don't remember starting these socks. I have never ever used worsted yarn (the most common size of yarn) for socks but there I was making these. At the end of each day I relax before bed, a time I really enjoy. I'm always missing one slipper. These will be what I wear then. Period. And I will look at these, propped on the ottoman and think of Annie, as I prop them 'just so' to view my new TV propped against my bookcase.

I hope your next week is fabulous!

Stay well. Stay safe. Stay masked.
Until next time.....

Robert Doherty About Chaos at U.S. Capitol

Monticello, NY - Sullivan County Legislature Chairman Robert A. Doherty (R-District 1) today released the following statement:

"Peaceful protests are an American right and tradition. But once a protest crosses over into chaos or violence, it loses its credibility and reason for being. It's time to accept the results of this presidential election and for Congress to embrace a new era of bipartisanship. And it's time for we the people to allow our elected representatives to do their jobs."

Gillibrand Announces Nearly $25 million for Poison Control Funding in FY 2021 Appropriations Bill

As Overdoses Spike Across New York State, Poison Control and Drug Information Funding Will Help Address the Opioid Crisis and Public Health Challenges;

Washington, DC - Today, U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand announced that $24,846,000 in federal funding was secured for the Poison Control Program in the bipartisan FY 2021 appropriations package. Gillibrand originally called for $30.1 million to support the nation's network of 55 poison control center, however the appropriated funding is a $2 million increase from FY20. As public health and addiction support services operate on thin margins, these increased federal funds are necessary to continue providing life-saving health care services in every state. During public health emergencies, poison control centers serve as first responders to prevent injuries, help reduce poisoning-related health care costs, and save countless lives.

"For over 50 years, the Poison Control Program has been our nation's top defense against injuries, unintentional poisonings, and deaths from poisoning," said Senator Gillibrand. "In addition to saving countless lives, this funding is a smart economic investment and will save $1.8 billion annually in medical costs. As the pandemic has exacerbated our country's addiction and drug poisoning crisis and has placed a severe financial strain on health services, this program is needed now more than ever to keep our communities safe."

The Poison Control Program, authorized by the Health Resources Services Administration (HRSA), is available to the general public and health care providers 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. The program supports 55 Poison Control Centers (PCCs) that utilize their network's information and data capabilities to manage public health emergencies including COVID-19, Ebola, and the Zika virus. Additionally, Poison Control Centers have a database and network that are uniquely positioned to help address the growing opioid crisis. The COVID-19 pandemic has interrupted addiction support services across the country, which were overburdened before the pandemic, making poison control services more critical now than ever.

The services provided by poison control centers lower treatment and medical costs by reducing ER visits, hospital stay time, and work-loss days each year. Every dollar invested in the poison control center system saves $13.39 in medical cost and lost productivity, for a total savings of more than $1.8 billion every year. The Poison Control Program also provides critical surveillance and real-time data to federal, state, and local agencies, including the CDC and Food and Drug Administration.

Gillibrand has long championed poison control prevention efforts such as the Safe Chemicals Act and she recently secured $15.5 million in federal funding to reduce lead hazards in nearly 900 households across New York State. Senator Gillibrand also urged the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy to host prevention and treatment forums to educate Americans on the harmful consequences of opioid use and risk of poisoning.

Attorney General James Issues Warning About Scam Targeting Grandparents During Pandemic “Grandparent Scam” Targets Seniors with Phone Calls from Fraudsters Posing as Grandchild Asking for Money

With Seniors More Isolated Than Ever Due to COVID-19 Restrictions, AG James Offers New Yorkers Tips to Protect Themselves

NEW YORK - New York Attorney General Letitia James today issued an alert to New Yorkers, warning them about the “Grandparent Scam,” a common phone scam that targets senior citizens with calls from fraudsters posing as a grandchild of the victim and asking for money. Attorney General James also shared a public service announcement, in which high school students explain how the scam works and offers tips on how to avoid becoming a victim to grandparents. The announcement features television personality Dr. Ruth Westheimer, who shares her experience about almost falling victim to the scam.

“Due to COVID-19 restrictions, many grandparents have not seen their grandchildren for months and may be especially susceptible to this common and despicable scam,” said Attorney General James. “I urge all New Yorkers to be on the alert for this type of fraud, and to protect themselves and their family members by following these tips. We should all be speaking with elderly family members and warning them that scammers are ready to prey on their love of family in an effort to take their money.” (Contd. Pg. 26)

Mysterious Stone Sites in the Hudson Valley

VIRTUAL Program by the Time and the Valleys Museum

[Grahamsville, N.Y.] - Join the Time and the Valleys Museum for an on-line virtual program: Mysterious Stone Sites in the Hudson Valley, on Sunday, January 24th at 2 p.m..

Author and researcher Linda Zimmermann explores mysteries in the woods of the Hudson Valley of New York and northern New Jersey. Stone chambers, perched boulders, standing stones, and massive walls could be unique historical treasures which should be studied and preserved. Some stone sites are assumed to be the work of colonial farmers, but Zimmermann has found compelling evidence that disputes this misconception. Could the astronomical alignments at these sites provide answers? Could they be the work of Native Americans or Pre-Columbian voyagers?

About Linda Zimmermann:

Linda Zimmermann is a research chemist turned award-winning author of 30 books on science, history, the paranormal, and fiction. Her books, including Mysterious Stone Sites in the Hudson Valley and Northern New Jersey can be purchased on amazon.com.

DEC Proposes Circle Hook Requirement for 2021

Comments Accepted until Mar. 8, on Proposed Regulation for Circle Hooks to Help Improve Striped Bass Survival

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) today released a new proposed regulation for public review and comment that would require the use of circle hooks when recreational fishing for Atlantic striped bass. This proposed regulation would reduce release mortality in recreational striped bass fisheries as required by the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission (ASMFC). Catch-and-release practices contribute significantly to overall fishing mortality in recreational striped bass fisheries and circle hooks work effectively to increase survival. DEC is accepting public comments on the proposal through Mar. 8, 2021.

"From Montauk Point to the Hudson River, New York's waters provide critical habitat for striped bass of all ages and offer some of the best striped bass fishing along the East Coast," Commissioner Basil Seggos said. "Circle hooks improve the survival of fish that are returned to the water, and this requirement further supports conservation efforts that ensure we're protecting this highly sought-after sportfish for future generations of anglers to enjoy."

The Atlantic coast-wide harvest of striped bass is managed by ASMFC. To address the finding that the striped bass resource is overfished and experiencing overfishing, ASMFC initiated and approved Addendum VI to Amendment 6 of the Interstate Fishery Management Plan (FMP) for Atlantic Striped Bass to reduce harvest, end overfishing, and bring fishing mortality to the target level.

New York State adopted recreational slot size limits regulation changes in 2020 that reflect ASMFC's Addendum measures and are in accordance with the FMP. In marine waters the recreational slot size is 28-35 inches total length and in the Hudson River the slot size is 18-28 inches total length; the possession limit is one fish per angler.

The open seasons and size limits for striped bass in all New York waters have not changed for 2021. Recreational striped bass seasons start April 1 in the Hudson River and tributaries and April 15 in marine waters. New York State worked cooperatively with other members of ASMFC to adopt consistent slot limit regulations and comparable season dates.

The proposed regulation includes all New York State waters where recreational fishing for Atlantic striped bass occurs, including coastal waters of Long Island and New York City, the Delaware River, and the Hudson River to the Federal Dam in Troy, New York. The full text of the proposed regulation can be found at DEC's website. Comments on the proposed circle hook regulation should be sent to fw.marine@dec.ny.gov or by mail to: Division of Marine Resources, 205 N. Belle Mead Rd. Suite 1, East Setauket, NY 11733. The public comment period closes on March 8, 2021. After reviewing public comments, DEC will be adopting and publishing a final regulation.

DEC encourages anglers to check DEC's Recreational Saltwater Fishing Regulations for the most up-to-date information before going fishing. Make sure to also enroll in the annual no-fee Recreational Marine Fishing Registry before going fishing in New York's Marine and Coastal District waters or when fishing in the Hudson River and its tributaries for "migratory fish of the sea" (which includes striped bass.) Anglers can enroll in the registry online or by phone or by visiting a license issuing agent location. To enroll, go to DEC's website

UC Exec Pat Ryan Announces COVID-19 Vaccination Resource Center

The new online webpage will serve as a hub for information regarding the COVID-19 vaccination process in Ulster County

The County releases a new vaccination information request form which will notify the public as the vaccine becomes available to residents in phased roll-outs

KINGSTON, N.Y. - Ulster County Executive Pat Ryan today announced the Ulster County virtual COVID-19 Vaccination Resource Center. The webpage, which can be found at ulstercountyny.gov/vaccines, will serve as a hub for residents to find relevant information about the COVID-19 vaccination process in Ulster County. The webpage includes pertinent information to help residents navigate the phases for the vaccine. Additionally, the hub includes a COVID-19 Vaccination FAQ page that addresses common questions and concerns regarding the COVID-19 vaccine which can be found here. Included in the COVID-19 Vaccination Resource Center is a new Vaccine Notification Request Form. The form will allow residents to sign up to be notified of when they are eligible for a vaccine and to receive instructions on how to register.

"Ensuring all residents are informed of the COVID-19 vaccination roll-out process and have access to the most up-to-date resources and information is critical to our pandemic response," Ulster County Executive Pat Ryan said. "The virtual COVID-19 Vaccination Resource Center will serve as a key component of the County's vaccine distribution plan, assisting us in ensuring we can distribute the vaccine as quickly, safely, and equitably as possible, maximizing efficiency and strengthening our communication with the public as we navigate these next few months and phases together."

The purpose of the form is to gather contact information for individuals wishing to receive the COVID-19 vaccine as it becomes available to the public in phased roll-outs. The form does not pre-register residents for a COVID-19 vaccination appointment-rather, the form will allow the County to notify individuals when appointments become available.

Currently, the COVID-19 vaccine is being rolled out to specific groups included in Phase A outlined by New York State's Phased Distribution of the Vaccine. Individuals who fill out the form will be notified by the Ulster County Department of Health at their preferred contact information when it is your time to receive the vaccine and will be provided instructions on how to register.

Earlier this week, County Executive Ryan announced significant elements of Ulster County's Vaccine Distribution Plan. The county has developed its plan in partnership with the Mid-Hudson Regional Vaccine Hub, led by WMC Health, and the New York State Department of Health. The county has selected the Kate Walton Field House at Kingston High School as its primary vaccine distribution site and The Ellenville Regional Hospital Center as its secondary distribution site. These two locations will be key to the county's efforts to ensure all residents can receive the coronavirus vaccine rapidly, safely, and equitably. These sites will serve as a central component to expanding access to the vaccine through a multi-faceted approach in addition to eventual distribution at hospitals, health care facilities, pharmacies, and other partners throughout the county.

The county will be able to perform up to 50,000 vaccinations a month at these county-led facilities. The primary vaccination distribution site in Kingston will be equipped to be able to perform up to 45,000 vaccinations per month and will be open seven days a week. The Ellenville site will be able to perform up to 5,000 vaccinations per month to start and will be open Monday through Friday. In addition, the County is coordinating closely with other key partners -- including hospitals, health care facilities, pharmacies, and providers -- to add additional vaccination capacity throughout the county. (Contd. Pg. 24)

Why wear a mask?

Out of respect.

When you wear a mask you are saying,
I respect my neighbors.

When you wear a mask you are saying,
I respect nurses and doctors.

When you wear a mask you are saying,
I respect other people.

We all need to show respect to one another in difficult times.

Wearing a face covering is a small inconvenience to protect others. We have gotten through this crisis by standing together and doing the right thing. The right thing - the respectful thing - is to wear a mask.

SBA PPP to Re-opens

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), in consultation with the Treasury Department, announced today that the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) will re-open the week of January 11 for new borrowers and certain existing PPP borrowers. To promote access to capital, initially only community financial institutions will be able to make First Draw PPP Loans on Monday, January 11, and Second Draw PPP Loans on Wednesday, January 13. The PPP will open to all participating lenders shortly thereafter. Updated PPP guidance outlining Program changes to enhance its effectiveness and accessibility was released on January 6 in accordance with the Economic Aid to Hard-Hit Small Businesses, Non-Profits, and Venues Act.

This round of the PPP continues to prioritize millions of Americans employed by small businesses by authorizing up to $284 billion toward job retention and certain other expenses through March 31, 2021, and by allowing certain existing PPP borrowers to apply for a Second Draw PPP Loan.

“The historically successful Paycheck Protection Program served as an economic lifeline to millions of small businesses and their employees when they needed it most,” said Administrator Jovita Carranza. “Today’s guidance builds on the success of the program and adapts to the changing needs of small business owners by providing targeted relief and a simpler forgiveness process to ensure their path to recovery.”

“The Paycheck Protection Program has successfully provided 5.2 million loans worth $525 billion to America’s small businesses, supporting more than 51 million jobs,” said Treasury Secretary Steven T. Mnuchin. “This updated guidance enhances the PPP’s targeted relief to small businesses most impacted by COVID-19. We are committed to implementing this round of PPP quickly to continue supporting American small businesses and their workers.”

Key PPP updates include:

- o PPP borrowers can set their PPP loan’s covered period to be any length between 8 and 24 weeks to best meet their business needs;
- o PPP loans will cover additional expenses, including operations expenditures, property damage costs, supplier costs, and worker protection expenditures;

- o The Program’s eligibility is expanded to include 501(c)(6)s, housing cooperatives, destination marketing organizations, among other types of organizations;
- o The PPP provides greater flexibility for seasonal employees;
- o Certain existing PPP borrowers can request to modify their First Draw PPP Loan amount; and
- o Certain existing PPP borrowers are now eligible to apply for a Second Draw PPP Loan.

A borrower is generally eligible for a Second Draw PPP Loan if the borrower:

- o Previously received a First Draw PPP Loan and will or has used the full amount only for authorized uses;
- o Has no more than 300 employees; and
- o Can demonstrate at least a 25% reduction in gross receipts between comparable quarters in 2019 and 2020.

The new guidance released includes:

- o PPP Guidance from SBA Administrator Carranza on Accessing Capital for Minority, Underserved, Veteran, and Women-owned Business Concerns;
- o Interim Final Rule on Paycheck Protection Program as Amended by Economic Aid Act; and
- o Interim Final Rule on Second Draw PPP Loans.

Sen. Martucci Responds to Governor Cuomo’s State of the State Address

ALBANY, NY - Senator Mike Martucci (R, C, I - New Hampton) issued the following statement in response to the Governor’s annual State of the State Address:

“We are living in unprecedented times and that calls for strong leadership. Today’s message included policy proposals I support, such as mobile sports betting, greater access to telemedicine, and providing our nurses with greater access to SUNY and CUNY schools. These are common sense, bipartisan ideas that I look forward to working on with the Governor. However, one thing must be made crystal clear - New York does not have a revenue problem, New York has a spending problem. Broad-based tax increases should be off the table completely, and additional ideas to raise revenue should not be a substitute for making the tough choices needed to address our multi-billion-dollar deficit.

“Budgets are about priorities, and in this budget, I will work to protect our seniors, fully fund our schools, and defend the most vulnerable among us from painful cuts. I will also fight to ensure we cut wasteful spending like the Hollywood tax credit and invest that money directly in our own communities instead. I ran for State Senate with the goal of putting our families first and that is precisely what I plan to do as we move through the budget process.”

Attorney General James Announces Arrests in Nearly Decade-Long Ponzi Scheme that Defrauded Investors Across New York and Nation of More Than $1 Million

(From Pg.13) The complaint lays out that instead of holding the investments in a cash reserve fund, Carro and Doyle deposited investor monies into various accounts, none of which ever had a balance of more than $200,000. An OAG audit revealed that investor funds were used for personal expenses and to pay back previously defrauded investors. According to the audit, Carro and Doyle spent nearly $500,000 on cash withdrawals, more than $200,000 to pay credit card bills, squandered more than $57,000 on pet expenses, and exhausted more than $350,000 to pay previously defrauded investors, including over $170,000 in restitution to victims in Carro's prior criminal cases. Carro and Doyle are charged with stealing between $15,000 and $30,000 from each of the more than 50 victims from 2012 to the present, with total losses to all victim-investors exceeding $1 million.

To further their nearly decade-long scheme, Carro and Doyle allegedly engaged in a pattern of excuses and delay tactics regarding their inability to repay investors. These delay tactics included telling investors that the bank would not release their funds, when in fact the funds were already depleted; alleging that repayment checks were in the mail, only for investors to receive empty envelopes; and creating a fictitious attorney to act as in-house-counsel for Endeavor during disputes with investors' over the return of their investments.

The felony complaint also lays out how the two defendants engaged in a complex money-laundering scheme to conceal and promote their ongoing crimes. Carro and Doyle allegedly used bank accounts at multiple financial institutions in an effort to disguise and conceal the true source and ownership of the money. The complaint further charges that the proceeds were laundered in a Ponzi-like manner to make repayments to previously defrauded investors, without revealing that the actual source of the repayments was funds from newly defrauded investors. While the defendants repaid some investors a very small percentage of their investment, most investors received no repayment at all.

The OAG's 42-count felony complaint - filed in Walton Town Court in Delaware County - charges Carro and Doyle, acting in concert, with two counts of Money Laundering in the Second Degree (a class "C" felony), 19 counts of Grand Larceny in the Third Degree (a class "D" felony), 20 counts of Securities Fraud under the Martin Act (a class "E" felony), and one count of Scheme to Defraud in the First Degree (a class "E" felony).

Carro and Doyle were arraigned today before the Honorable Jacqueline Lampert. Carro was remanded and Doyle was released on his own recognizance.

The charges are merely accusations, and the defendants are presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty in a court of law.

The OAG would like to thank the Delaware County District Attorney's Office for their invaluable assistance in this investigation. The OAG would also like to thank the New York state Department of Financial Services, as well as the New Hampshire Bureau of Securities Regulations, the Maine Office of Securities, and the Connecticut Department of Banking for their assistance.

Assistant Attorneys General Philip V. Apruzzese and

Maureen L. Grosdidier are prosecuting the case, with the assistance of Legal Support Analyst Jamirah Williams-Johnson, under the supervision of Supervising Analyst Paul Strocko and Deputy Supervising Analyst Jayleen Garcia. Forensic accounting was performed by Principal Auditor Investigator Meaghan E. Scotellaro, under the supervision of Chief Auditor Kristen Fabbri and Deputy Chief Auditor Sandy Bizzarro of the Forensic Audit Section. The Criminal Enforcement and Financial Crimes Bureau is led by Bureau Chief Stephanie Swenton and Deputy Bureau Chief Joseph G. D'Arrigo.

Detectives Mitchell J. Paurowski and William Lynch of the Investigations Bureau handled the criminal investigation, under the supervision of Supervising Detectives Mark Spencer, Michael Leahy, and Sylvia Rivera, and Deputy Bureau Chiefs Antoine Karam and John McManus. The Investigations Bureau is led by Chief Oliver Pu-Folkes and First Deputy Chief John Reidy. Both the Criminal Enforcement and Financial Crimes Bureau and the Investigations Bureau are part of the Division for Criminal Justice, which is overseen by Chief Deputy Attorney General José Maldonado.

Initial complaints were received by the OAG's Investor Protection Bureau, which is led by Bureau Chief Peter Pope and Deputy Bureau Chief Kevin Wallace. The Investor Protection Bureau is a part of the Division for Economic Justice, which is overseen by Chief Deputy Attorney General Chris D'Angelo.

Gillibrand Secures $360M in Federal Funding for Lead Hazard Control in FY 21 Spending Package

Washington, D.C.--U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand today announced the inclusion of $360 million for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)'s Office of Lead Hazard Control and Healthy Homes, including $60 million for the Healthy Homes Program and $95 million for lead-based paint reductions, in the recently passed FY 2021 government spending package. This funding provides competitive grants to cities and municipalities to reduce lead paint-based health hazards and correct serious threats to residents' health and safety caused by lead exposure. These funds are prioritized for low-income households with young children.

Gillibrand also announced $25 million for lead reduction for federally-assisted housing through the Public Housing Fund. The funding will help protect children and families living in federally subsidized housing from easily preventable health hazards by identifying and treating individual units with lead hazards, improving oversight and remediation, and upgrading substandard housing with healthy homes interventions.

"Too many of our children have been exposed to lead paint, which studies show can have long-term, devastating health and development outcomes," said Senator Gillibrand. "As we fight against this second COVID-19 wave, no one should be put in a situation where following public health guidance and staying home means risking exposure to lead paint poisoning. I won't stop fighting until lead paint is a relic of the past and no longer a threat to New Yorkers."

Gillibrand wrote to appropriators urging support for $376 million for HUD's Office of Lead Hazard Control and Healthy Homes, including $100 million for the Healthy Homes Program and $6 million for the Lead Technical Studies Program.

Senators Gillibrand and Schumer, along with Rep. Brian Higgins previously announced $15.5 million in federal funding for lead hazard reduction in nearly 900 households across New York State.

JESS'S
PICK

After the year we've had, when I look for a book to read, I look for something easy on the mind, something without politics or viruses, something that is an easy read, keeps me interested, and is a feel good story. David Rosenfelts' Andy Carpenter Series always have a complicated mystery to solve, keeping your attention from beginning to end. In his book Muzzled, he yet again, did not disappoint. Andy Carpenter is the main character, who tries to avoid practicing law at all costs, but always ends up on the defense of a complicated murder trial. In Muzzled, a man presumed to have been killed in a boat explosion walks in to Andy's dog rescue, to claim is dog. And just like that Andy ends up representing him as his lawyer and is tasked with the seemingly impossible job of proving his clients innocence. Mistaken identity, pharmaceutical secrets, mystery girlfriends, and potential mob involvement, are all stumbling blocks for Andy to work through to free his client.

GREEN BOOK

(PG-13 2018 Comedy Drama 2HR 15 min)

At a time when the world is in turmoil we need peace. Here is a true story of love and understanding in our every day lives. "Green Book" is one of the best motion pictures for all of our seven and a half billion people in the world. It promotes the spirit of love for all of our thinking beings. It teaches honesty, integrity, understanding of others and our surroundings and respect for others while standing up to the bullies of the world.

The film is about part of the life of Dr. Donald Walbridge Shirley (January 29, 1927 – April 6, 2013) an American classical and jazz pianist and composer. He recorded many albums for Cadence Records during the 1950s and 1960s. He experimented with jazz using a classical influence. He wrote organ symphonies, piano concerti, a cello concerto, three string quartets, a one-act opera, works for organ, piano and violin, a symphonic tone poem based on the 1939 novel Finnegans Wake by James Joyce, and a set of "Variations" on the 1858 opera Orpheus in the Underworld. The film begins in 1962 when Dr. Don Shirley, an African-American pianist embarks upon a tour in the Deep South. In need of a driver, he hires Tony Lip, an Italian-American who works as a bouncer. Armed only with the 'Negro Motorist Green Book,' an essential guide to safe travel for people of color during the Jim Crow era, the unlikely pair develop an understanding for one another and a surprising bond. Take a lesson from the "Green Book," and Mahatma Gandhi – peaceful protest by all who feel they have been wronged is totally in order. May God Bless.
