History in the Making... Time and the Valleys Museum is Open

Volunteers were busy with with final preparations for the grand opening of the Time and the Valleys Museum, a living and interactive resource that will preserves the past, educate the present and ensure the uniqueness of the Rondout and Neversink watersheds for all generations. The official ribbon cutting ceremony along with the unveiling of the new sign that flanks the entrance to the musuem, was held on Wednesday afternoon. (Story on Page 8)

While We Were "Searching for Our | Roots" We Found Our Museum!

--Historian Carol Smythe

It's the best news yet, folks! Our museum dream has become real! Wednesday, June 22, 2011 has become a banner day for history lovers. How long has it taken us? We started putting together the pieces of a museum in 2002. Just imagine, we've been working at it for nine years.

There had been hopes, dreams and plans for putting together a museum that went back even further than 2002. That was the year that Georgie Lepke, then Town of Neversink Supervisor, hailed Carol Smythe, Town of Neversink Historian and said, "Carol, you've got to do something about this museum." I must have gulped a few times and weakly said "sure, Georgie". (Contd. Pg. 8)

Sullivan County Officials Applaud Senator Schumer's Perseverance

Last week's announcement of the Obama administration rescinding a ban on off-reservation casino proposals that are not in close proximity to the reservation will certainly re-activate interest in developing casinos in Sullivan County. Jonathan Rouis, Chairman of the Sullivan County Legislature, states, "I applaud the efforts of Senator Schumer as he lobbied hard for the lifting of the ban on off reservation casinos. We look forward to starting the process with our Native American partners to secure Native American gaming in the Sullivan County Catskills." (Contd. Pg. 12)

Eureka Market & Cafe has Launched a New Venture

Eureka Market & Cafe has launched a new venture: Eureka Market Direct, which will provide a home delivery service of its food, groceries and wares. The direct delivery idea started out as a way to supply the vacation renters who stay locally through their sister company, Red Cottage Inc., with the fresh, organic produce, local eggs and cheeses, and the tempting selection of home-baked pies, muffins and cookies that they offer through their new market and café in Grahamsville. But since floating that idea around, it turns out there are plenty of weekenders, or simply very busy local people, who would delight in having these goodies brought to their door. (Contd. Pg. 9)

Here Come the Beetles!

A workshop to teach local residents how to do community ash tree inventories in preparation for the anticipated emerald ash borer infestation will be held Thursday, July 28 at 6:30 p.m. at the Catskill Center, Arkville. An inventory of Pine Hill and Phoenicia will begin Saturday, July 30. The data will be used to provide the Town of Shandaken with information for making decisions regarding their ash trees before and after EAB appears. This assistance is being provided by the Catskill Regional Invasive Species Partnership and Elizabeth D'Auria, the Invasive Species Assistant at The Catskill Center (845-586-2611).

Wakefield Exhibit at Museum

Time and the Valleys Museum will feature the most complete collection ever assembled on the art of Manville Wakefield. "Wake" came to Sullivan County in the fall of 1953 when he took the position of art instructor at Tri Valley School Before his arrival he was well known for his black and white illustrations of trains. They appeared on covers of several train magazines and in books by Lucius Beebe. His love of trains took him one step further into model railroading where his art became three dimensional. (Contd.)

Pg. 8)

OLIVE - The community is invited to the June 21 meeting of Olive Boy Scout Troop 163, when an illustrated program about the history of New York City's Catskill Water Supply will be presented. The program starts at 7 p.m. at the Olive Library, Route 28A, West Shokan.

Troop 163 has a special interest in this topic, as 15 Scouts and their leaders will embark August 19 on a trek from the Ashokan Reservoir to Central Park in New York City largely following the route of the underground Catskill Aqueduct which carries 40% of the water used by nine million people. ### Hasbrouck Old Stone House Gains Tax-Exempt Status

The Old Stone House of Hasbrouck, NY, has been officially granted tax-exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service and New York State.

The new status -- commonly known as 501(c)3 because of the section of federal tax code dealing with charitable groups -- allows supporters who donate money to the community center to deduct their donations on personal income tax returns. A group's tax-exempt status can result in dramatic savings for individuals who make large donations, so charitable groups sometimes see contributions spike after becoming tax exempt.

The Old Stone House, originally built about the same time Thomas Jefferson yielded the Presidency to James Madison, was purchased by the grassroots community group Concerned Citizens of Hasbrouck in 1977, as the first step in providing improved local access to regional arts, culture, and history. More than three decades later, the building hosts regular classes in writing, painting and pottery -- for both kids and adults -- along with monthly art and photography exhibitions in its two main display rooms.

The gallery welcomes in July an extraordinary display of photos by local resident Louis Jawitz, to be followed in August by a group exhibition with works by eight noted photographers from around the country.

Just last winter, generous donations of time, money and material allowed The Old Stone House to complete a number of needed interior renovations. The new tax-exempt status, says the group's President, Alana Sherman, "will let more and more area supporters freely contribute to our organization, while gaining the maximum allowable personal tax benefit."

Ms. Sherman asks that contributions be made payable to "Old Stone House of Hasbrouck, Inc." and mailed to The Old Stone House, P.O. Box 355, Woodbourne, NY 12788.

JUNEBUGS

By Peggy DeWire Last night while I was reading in bed, I heard a sharp tapping at the window and got up to see what it was. Buzzing loudly like a bumblebee, a large brown beetle flew again and again against the screen, attracted to the light. It was a Junebug!

Junebugs, all 131 species of the genus Phyliophaga, are named from their annual appearance in June. The adult bugs are emerging from the ground for the first time in their lives to live a few summer weeks flying, feeding on leaves and flowers, reproducing and then dying.

The life cycle begins when a female Junebug constructs an earthen ball 1-6 inches deep among roots for her 50-100 white eggs that will hatch in a couple of weeks. The small larvae or grubs feed slowly on roots for the next 1-3 years, making this development stage one of the longest in the insect world.

Throughout the U.S. as in Grahamsville, this is the most common grub fund when you dig up the ground. It's a plump white C-shape with a brown head and six short legs at the front end. It cannot bite you.

If you look closely, you can see tiny breathing holes (spiracles) along both sides of the body. Also notice two rows of tiny stubby bristles down the back for burrowing. This arrangement enables a Junebug grub to wriggle along either upside down or right side up from root to root.

Because they eat voraciously, large numbers of grubs can damage lawns and orchards.

The Southern Junebug, a lovely iridescent green, is called fig eater and is a scourge on the plant since the grub eats the roots and adult bugs eat leaves and fruit.

By the second summer a grub pupates for several weeks and transforms itself into an adult Junebug. However, it still stays underground feeding on roots until the next spring. In June it emerges one night and flies off to feed on leaves and find a mate.

It's fun to watch a Junebug prepare to take off in a methodical manner, unfolding its tow pairs of wings in correct sequence: the hard cover tops, protecting its body, are lifted into locked horizontal position, then the soft underneath pair of wings are unfolded for flight, move up and down and zoom! Airborne!

The unwieldy arrangement makes landing somewhat uncontrolled, so Junebugs crash land on their target. However, the bi-wing structure works mighty well the next morning when the Junebug burrows into the ground for safety at dawn.

The top hard wings are made of the same protein as our fingernails. Small platelets overlap like a shingled roof. It is waterproof, frostproof and withstands seven times the radiation found in today's atmosphere. This proves that Junebugs developed on Earth millions of years ago when this planet was much younger.

At mating time, receptive females produce a chemical called pheromone that males find irresistible and can detect fifty feet away. They follow the scent trail straight to the female.

Within a week, mother Junebug deposits her eggs in the ground to begin the 3-year cycle all over again. By summer all Junebugs are gone. As Shakespeare said, "The shard-borne chafer (Junebug) sound is heard no more"

Helpful Hint from Mary

Heat leftover pizza in a non-stick skillet on top of the stove; set heat to med-low and heat till warm. This keeps the crust crispy. No soggy micro pizza. I saw this on the food channel and it really works.

THE MYSTERIOUS BOOK REPORT, NO. 5

by John Dwaine McKenna

If Woody Allen had a Harvard degree and was a New York City detective who wrote a novel, Red on Red (Spiegel & Grau, $26.00, 442 pages, ISBN 978-0-385-51917-5) by Edward Conlon would be it. Red on Red has more angst than a busload of teen-agers have drama. It's a police procedural with psychological insights into the daily life of a cop, down to the smallest details.

Frankly, I didn't find this novel as enjoyable as I'd hoped, and had to push myself to finish it. But that fact shouldn't discourage anyone who's interested in the minutiae of the NYPD from reading it . . . nor does it diminish my respect for the author . . . it just never quite struck the right chord in me. Like the old farmer said, "If everybody liked the same thing, all the young fellers would be after my wife!"

The story arc is long and complex, intricate and well put together. Others have described it as "often brutal, and often brutally funny."

The story arc is long and complex, intricate and well put together. Others have described it as "often brutal, and often brutally funny." It is chock-full of insight into what it's really like to carry a detective's gold shield in The Big Apple, and without a doubt one of the finest police procedurals, but with a lot of intellect. Hope some of you decide to give it a try. If you do, let me know what you think of it . . . send a "Dear John" letter to TVTOWNSMAN@yahoo.com. Put Dear John in the subject line. You can send it via the post office too if you'd rather.

Don't forget to check out the new Daniel Pierce Library and Time and the Valleys Museum. See you next week, same place, and the same column. Hope you find time to enjoy a good book, 'cause . . .

SC SHERIFF REPORTS:

Sullivan County Sheriff's Detectives arrested three subjects last week who allegedly preyed upon an elderly resident of Livingston Manor. Phillip Edwards, 25, of Livingston Manor was taken into custody on June 3, 2011 and charged with felony possession of stolen property, burglary and petit larceny. It is alleged that Edwards went to the residence of an 88 year old Livingston Manor woman on June 2, 2011 and told her the she owed him $150 for work he had done and demanded payment. Edwards had in fact done no such work. Edwards also convinced the victim to give him an extra $400 as a loan so that he could purchase parts to fix his truck. The victim was told the loan would be paid back June 1st. The victim felt intimidated and gave Edwards a check for $550. When Edwards attempted to cash the check at the First National Bank of Jeffersonville in Livingston Manor, an alert teller who was familiar with the victim refused to accept it. At the time of Phillip Edwards' arrest, Detectives also recovered silver coins that belonged to the victim's son and had been stolen from the residence. After his arrest, Phillip Edwards asked if he could make a telephone call to his mother to arrange bail. While on the telephone, Edwards instructed his two sisters to go over to the victims house and have her sign a statement that he didn't do anything wrong. Catherine Edwards, 31 and Leslie Edwards, 28, were charged by deputies with tampering with a witness. Phillips Edwards was arraigned before Town of Rockland Judge Frank Gibson and sent to the Sullivan County Jail in lieu of $20,000 dollars bail. His two sisters were issued appearance tickets returnable in the Town of Rockland court on June 21, 2011. Detectives are continuing their investigation to determine if any other senior citizens have been victimized. Anyone who suspects that a senior citizen has been abused or victimized can call the Sheriff's 24 hour senior citizen hotline at 845-807-0159.

Sesquicentennial News

So far this years events commemorating the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the American Civil War, have been a success. Early in the am hours on Saturday June 11th at the Ellenville Public Library &

Museum, the 143rd NYV Infantry Re-enactment group, set up camp on the lawn of the library for a weekend of living history events. Onlookers were fascinated with the encampment and stopped by for demonstrations including drills, presentation of weaponry and stories of battles that the 143rd were engaged in during their 3 year service. The 143rd NY was mustered in October of 1862 in Sullivan County and musterd out in June of 1865 engaging in the major battles in Virginia, Georgia, and the Carolinas. The most memorable campaign to those who survived, was with the campaign with General Sherman and his March to the Sea Nov-Dec of 1864. Several biographical sketches in the Ward Post GAR Ledger at the Ellenville Public Library & Museum, indicate these memorable reminiscences of our local soldiers who were members of the post. This GAR Ledger is being transcribed by volunteers and anyone interested in helping can contact Asha at the library for further details 845 647-5530

OLIVE MUSE -by Charlie Blumstein

Boy Scout Hike and History Lights Up Olive Town Board Meeting

The June Town of Olive Board meeting lit up in rapt attention as Keith Davis and Rob Overton described the revival of Olive Boy Scout Troop 163 and the upcoming Boy Scout hike from the Ashokan Reservoir to Central Park, slated to follow the route of the aqueduct, in order to commemorate the founding in 1910 of Boy Scout Troop lof Olivebridge, which was the first chartered Boy Scout Troop in the country, according to Scoutmaster Davis.

Officials from the NYC DEP have granted permission and are assisting the Scouts in planning and making the journey as a means of commemorating a little known aspect of local history and in doing so they have made it clear that this is a once in a lifetime event for the scouts which likely would not happen again.

Scoutmaster Keith Davis described a busy schedule of public service performed by the scout troop which was re-chartered about 16 months ago as Olive Troop 163 after a short hiatus. Training for the scout hike includes a requirement to hike 4 of 6 Catskill high peaks and participation in numerous long bicycle rides.

Scoutmaster Davis said that "By 1912 there were 23 Eagle Scout ranks awarded and 5 were from Olive. We are actually celebrating 101 years this year as a Boy Scout troop and it was started right here in the Town of Olive. On Aug. 18th we are having a kick off celebration prior to the hike at the reservoir aerators and we encourage the community to come celebrate with us. The Commissioner of the DEP is supposed to be coming up and I encourage members of the Town Board and the public to join us at the celebration."

"The first day we will hike 12 miles and camp at the Mohonk Mountain House overnight, then on to New Paltz to make camp at the fairgrounds. We will then hike to Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh and receive a tour of the air-base prior to going on to West Point where we will receive a tour of the base and camp out nearby."

Once they cross the Hudson, possibly by boat, they will make their way down the aqueduct to the Bronx, where they will be met by a Boy Scout troop from the Bronx, who will guide them through the subway system to Central Park where they will camp out in the oceans exhibit of The Museum of Natural History after visiting the Hayden Planetarium and exploring the museum at night by flashlight.

Rob Overton, Committee Chair said "A lot of people in the area do not know much or see much about the aqueduct. The DEP agreed to open up the pump-houses and gate-houses and give the scouts a real tour of the pipeline and how it works. The craftsmanship of what was built is incredible. It's really a once in a lifetime opportunity for the kids and us as well. The first Boy Scout troop was formed here in Olive in the shadow of the reservoir and that is why the DEP is allowing and helping us with this. Olivescouts.org has an article that describes in detail how and why Sidney Clapp started the Olive scouts."

The Boiceville Inn will be hosting a concert fundraiser to assist with the Boy Scout hike expenses on July 23rd featuring Dorraine Scofield and members of Thunder Ridge.

In more mundane matters the latest draft of the new Olive Comprehensive Plan is being reviewed by the Town Board which is aiming for a public hearing on the new plan sometime in August.

The June meeting of the Olive Town Board was adjourned in memory of Witold Grabowski.

The boys will hike and bike more than 80 miles, concluding the expedition on August 27 at the Central Park Reservoir where Ashokan water was first introduced in 1917.

The history of Troop 163 is linked with this monumental event because it was formed 100 years ago when Sidney Clapp, an assistant engineer working on the Ashokan project with the NYC Board of Water Supply, organized 20 local youths into one of the first Boy Scout Troops in the US.

Diane Galusha, author of Liquid Assets, A History of New York City's Water Supply, will share the story at the June 21 program. Galusha is on the staff at the Catskill Watershed Corp., which is assisting with the coordination of the "Ashokan to New York City Trek," along with the NYC DEP, the Watershed Agricultural Council, and many other entities.

The public is most welcome to the free presentation. Read more about the Troop and the Trek at www.olivescouts.org.

RESERVOIR MUSIC NOTES- Fred Perry, Owner of Reservoir Music Center, 3179 Route 28, Shokan, NY 12481. 845-657-6127.

As I write this I am bristling with anticipation because I'm going to be on my way to see DAVE ALVIN and LOS STRAITJACKETS at Club Helsinki in Hudson in an hour. As my regular readers know, I've been touting the merits of this show for the last 3 weeks, and now it's finally here. I'll be looking forward to seeing my old friend, Dave, and the guys in Los Straitjackets, again, who are also friends, but there will be a touch of sadness in it for me because this is the first time I've hung with Dave since the passing of our dear friend, Chris Gaffney, a few years ago. Chris was Dave's partner in crime for many years, and I am proud to have counted him as a friend. We had a lot of good times together all over the country, and Chris was also a major talent in his own right (check out his band, Chris Gaffney and The Cold Hard Facts). Chris and The CHF were one of the bands that kept my own band, The Brooklyn Cowboys, out of the #1 position on the Americana Music charts, a few years back, but after that we met and became fast friends. I owe my friendship with Dave to Chris, and I really miss him. RIP buddy.

We've got a couple of cool shows coming up this week at The Bearsville Theater, starting tonight, June 23, with TODD RUNDGREN. Todd will be bringing his crack band with him, which includes area resident Jesse Gress on guitar, longtime bass player, Kasim Sulton, and Prairie Prince, formerly of The Tubes and Jefferson Starship, on drums. Every one of these guys is world class on his instrument, and this will be rockin!

Two days later, on June 25, TUBA SKINNY, returns to The Bearsville Theater. Tuba Skinny is a new band, at least to me, but I have heard amazing reviews of their past shows, so I'm very interested in checking these guys out. I don't know what to expect, but from what I've heard, you won't be disappointed.

And if you're in the mood for a road trip, WILCO brings it's SOLID SOUND FESTIVAL to North Adams, Mass., on the weekend of June 24-26. Wilco, The Levon Helm Band, Thurston Moore from Sonic Youth, and 20 other bands, comedians, and other interesting acts will be appearing. For more info, visit www.massmoca.org.

For you musicians out there, there's a pretty cool open jam that takes place every Friday night in the summer. at the home of my friends' Steve and Dona Crawford in Olivebridge. All are welcome. They have drums and an PA, so all you have to bring is your axe and amp. On the third Friday of every month, Charlie Blumstein brings his home made, portable pizza oven and serves up the best pizza this side of Brooklyn! In nice weather, the stage is outside, but last week, the third Friday of this month, it rained, so the Pizza Jam will be this Friday night, June 24. Steve and Dona's address is 49 Weber Lane, Olivebridge, NY 12461 and the jam starts around 7:30. More information can be found on Facebook at the Pizza Jam page. Once on Facebook, just search for "Pizza Jam", and it will come up.

That's about it for this week. It's time to turn off the computer and get ready to rock!

State Grant for Solar System to be Pulled Due to Antiquated Woodstock Zoning Law

Willow, NY. A $123,000 NYSERDA grant for a solar array at the Woodstock Farm Animal Sanctuary (WFAS) will be withdrawn if installation does not begin by the end of June. WFAS is a nonprofit organization dedicated to rescuing neglected, abused and abandoned farm animals, as well as educating the public about the horrific treatment of animals raised for food. NYSERDA is a New York State program that helps fund green energy solutions. The installation, begun briefly last October, was halted due to Woodstock's laws regarding accessory structures, which stipulates a maximum number of ten that may be on any given lot. While one might think of an accessory structure as a shed or guest cottage, solar arrays are also included in the code.

Sweet Sue's is back!

Sue Taylor pours a cup of coffee for her son, Max, as the two take a break from work at Sweet Sue's. The popular Phoenicia eatery was shut down for a few weeks when flooding caused its septic system to fail. Sue's engineer, working with the Ulster County Health Dept. and the NYC DEP, designed a replacement system for the business and an upstairs apartment. Partially funded by the CWC, it allowed Sweet Sue's to reopen in time for the busy Memorial Day holiday. A community wastewater system for the entire hamlet of Phoenicia is still under discussion

A new media, painting in oils, appeared when he began his teaching locally. Prior to this he had proven his skill at watercolors, scratchboards, ink wash, etchings and wood cuts. Samples of those skills will be on exhibit at the museum starting Wednesday June 22 and will continue until August.

Mr. Wakefield's oil paintings will show the development of his talent with the first one painted in October 1953 to when he died in 1974 at the age of 50. In twenty short years he produced a legacy of art through outstanding murals at Sullivan County Community college and the M & T Bank in Liberty, three books, several slide shows on local history, award winning paintings, an unforgettable model railroad, and over 200 paintings. During that time he continued to inspire students in Grahamsville and moved on to head the commercial art program at SCCC as well as becoming Sullivan County Historian.

Wake passed away in 1975 at the age of fifty.

While We Were "Searching for Our Roots" We Found Our Museum! (From Pg. 1)

The good news was that the museum building and location was not my problem. The bad news was that I didn't know anything about starting a museum. Worse news - not a single person who I contacted knew anything about how to begin a museum.

By November 15, 2002, a group of interested persons that included Helen Kwasinowicz, Raymond & Dorothy Muthig, Joann Gallagher, Margaret Coombe, Barbara Purcell, Philip Coombe Jr and myself were meeting. We were working on naming the museum, filing for charter, planning basic museum space and more.

Time went on and more talented people joined us. Some folks had to drop off for different reasons. We developed our mission statement, our by-laws, and all the rest of the paperwork. The two important needs at that time were to apply for not-for-profit status with the Internal Revenue Service and to be chartered by the State Education Department.

We did fundraising - we got support from our friends, neighbors, family, and co-workers as we went along. You attended our Old Time Fairs and bought our new edition of "Time and the Valley". Then we asked for Charter Members to help support the museum and you were there for us. The Town of Neversink gave us space to work in and treated us like part of the family! Wonderful volunteers came out and helped us every step of the way - whether it be fund-raising or educational programs, putting labels on envelopes or gathering history for special projects. The Townsman printed our articles and gave us space to advertise our events. The list goes on ... there are all of you to thank!

But nobody knew it would take nine years! We got tired but we kept going; the building got built and now we've got some space of our own. Please take time from your busy lives to come out and visit the brand-new Time and the Valleys Museum.

GRAHAMSVILLE...YESTERDAY ---A poem by a local Bard of 1905

A little village nestled down Among the hills of Neversink town; A busy village too, you'll find, If to visit it you feel inclined; Although quite small as regards size, It is with business well supplied.

Three daily stages bring the news, And whatever errands you may choose To have them execute for you Will promptly be attended to; While a tri-weekly on the road Brings passengers and freight, a load.

Should you wish to buy your wife a dress, You certainly will find no less Than four good stores from which to choose, They all sell dry goods, boots, and shoes.

Groceries-whatever you may wish,
From a barrel of flour to a pound of fish.
Crockery, tinware, and many things more
Are found at George E. Currey's Store;
While to find fine dry goods you've a chance
If you wish to go to G. C. Grant's.

M. Brannan, a little farther down,
With John L. Porter last in town,
Can all supply you what you need,
Your forms to clothe, your mouths to feed,
While L. T. Hornbeck at the Hall,
Dispenses groceries to all
Who call on him, and he'll supply
Notions to all who wish to buyAnd if a shave or cut of hair
You need, why you can get it there.

Perhaps when you are driving through
You'll find your horse has lost a shoe,
But do not be at all dismayed
Just call a blacksmith to your aid;
We've two good shops, and four good men
To attend to all your wants, and then
You'll find the Blacks are very kind,
While Richards is not left behind--Richards and Miller both, of course,
Ready to shoe your off-side horse,
Or mend a wagon, set a tire,
Or anything of blacksmith hire.

If you are hurt, or feeling ill,
And need a powder or a pill,
A tooth extracted, or anything more,
We've two physicians Dr. Hoar
And Dr. Sproat, who're not averse
To dispense drugs and fill the purse;
But if medicine should not avail
To stop disease and you should fail.
Or if your friends should fade and die,
G. E. Bryers can your wants supply--Coffins and caskets, and a line
Of burial robes both neat and fine.

Young married people too should go To call on him, for he can show A stock of furniture to please And set you wholly at your ease---For when you look at his supply You sure won't go elsewhere to buy.

We've country homes, where city guests May come for quiet and for rest, And up in town a market neat, Where G. Hornbeck supplies the meat To feed the city folks who come To make with us their summer home. In summer when the weather's hot---Or if it's cool it matters not,---You'll see his wagon on the road; Just look inside you'll see a load Of meat so nice and fresh and sweet, "Tis fit for any one to eat. Besides his wagon, we have two Or more in summer passing through Who sell their meat and take our dimes, And say it helps to make good too.

We have two churches, and a hall For lectures, parties, shows and all The incidentals that will pass Through every town for every class; And then our Fairs, that come each year-"Twill surely pay you to stop here Next fall and just attend our fair;
It can't be beaten anywhere;
Thousands of people throng the ground
Where every autumn may be found
Choice stock of every breed and grade,
To throw all others in the shade.
Fast horses, cattle, sheep and swine,
And more productions---in the line
Of poultry, fruit and grain a show,
And vegetables that we can grow.
In fact all products of the farm
Can here be found, and there's no harm

In mentioning the ladies' tent,
Where an hour or two will be well spent
In looking o'er the works of art
Which comprise the ladies' part.
Their fancy work department's full
Of pretty things, and as a rule
The bread and butter, cakes and pies,
Canned fruits and jellies that meet the eyes
Are fine; and all we have to grieve
Is that these good things we must leave.

But if you choose to look around You'll find right here upon the ground A table ready spread with all That one could wish; and best of all, "Tis to be eaten, not for show, And many hungry people go And get a meal---and they get there Their money's worth, if anywhere.

Just out of town, upon the hill, Along the road toward Ellenville, Our pretty cemetery lies, Where many people, good and wise, The grave, the gay, the young and old, Are resting there beneath the mold. Fine monuments to us will tell Who in this peaceful city dwell. The lovely walks, so clean and neat Make it in summer a retreat, For spreading trees with branches high Cast grateful shade where loved ones lie. And lovely flowers sweet and fair Diffuse their fragrance in the air, While rustic benches add a grace And comfort to this lovely place.

And just across from it there stands
Our village school, where busy hands
And busy eye and busy brain
A store of knowledge seek to gain.
Our scenery is something grand;
The breezy hills on every hand
Afford a lovely, cool retreat
From the oppressive summer heat.

Old Thunder Hill, whose summit high Seems almost to touch the sky, Affords a view that's worth the time And effort to the top to climb. A charming view is there spread forth. From west to east, from south to north, Are forest-clad hills, and valleys green Where fields of waving grain are seen, And peaceful homesteads here and there All make this view a picture fair.

Of water pure and cool and clear, You'll find the best there is right here, In wells and brooks and tiny rill, Where you may pause and drink your fill. So stop and drink, 'tis better far Than can be found behind the bar; 'Twill save your money and your health, Which is more precious far than wealth.

A turnpike road too we have got,
But ah, a railroad we have not.
And never will I greatly fear
Although we think 'tis needed here.
Some people seemed to think 'twould come
Where the Rondout Valley Road should run;
Talk is cheap, but it takes coin
To build a railroad and keep it going.

Now if you ever take the time
To stop and read my little rhyme,
Although a stranger you may be--Have never seen the place or me
I think from this description you
Will have no trouble to get through.

"Peaceable Kingdom"- a group exhibit at Loft Gallery

"Peaceable Kingdom," an exhibition about the world of animals and curated by the Outsider's Studio Collective, opens at the Loft Gallery at the Delaware Arts Center in Narrowsburg, NY on Friday, July 1, with a reception from 7-9 p.m. The show will be on view through July 23.

The animal kingdom is rife with meaning and importance. Humans relate to animals for sustenance, inspiration, courage, and companionship. By examining aspects of the animal world in nature and in relation to artists, the Outsider's Studio delves into the chasm of their own collective psyche, reflected in humans' relationships to beasts and other bodied kin on this planet.

"Whether we portray them as sentient beings or as monsters of predation, cutie-pie kittens or future porterhouse steaks, humans have been creating animal talismans since the beginning of time. We are intrinsically intertwined," says the Outsider's Studio Collective. "As artists in this show, we are very influenced by our pets and how we communicate with them. In our work, they are icons, saints, fables, metaphors, circus acts, and clinical studies-or, as Beston writes, 'fellow prisoners of the splendor and travail of the earth."

The Outsider's Studio is a mobile arts event entity dedicated to "Bringing the Arts to Other Places and Spaces" in and around the Catskills, showcasing artists, filmmakers, writers, and musicians. The name "Outsider" refers to its original creators, Andrea Brown and her husband, Jeff Lackey, both transplants from New York City, and their support of untrained (outsider) as well as trained artists who work beyond the fringes of traditional art. Its new form is an artist collective comprised of four women who push for the nuances of art brut, and the "outsider's" quality of transcending the traditions of what one might expect. The nine artists showing work in the "Peaceable Kingdom" exhibit include photographer Elizabeth Ennis; painters Andrea Brown, Jan Harrison, Michael Staats, Patricia Sprott, and Susan Moody Ward; multimedia artists Joanna Hartell and Margaret Hillary Moore; and sculptor Joni Wehrli.

Loft Gallery is located at 37 Main Street, Narrowsburg, NY, and is open Tuesday - Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call (845) 252-7576 or visit www.artsalliancesite.org.

Free and open to the public, the exhibit is sponsored by the Delaware Valley Arts Alliance, the Arts Council for Sullivan County, NY, and is made possible with public funds from the New York State Council on the Arts, celebrating 50 years of building strong, creative communities in New York State's 62 counties.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Dr. Adam Law concerning the Health Effects of Hydrofracturing Technology describes with scientific expertise the nature of our concerns. We provide here a weblink to some of that testimony in case you missed it:

http://www.youtube.comwatch?v=1mhDFYUQdq0 http://blip.tv/shaleshock-media/1-sandra-stein-grabber-5217824

Much of Ulster County sits atop the Marcellus shale formation. Although our County Legislature unanimously passed a resolution prohibiting the leasing of county-owned land for shale gas drilling, those lands are only a small percentage of the county. We fear the leasing of mineral rights is already underway throughout the county and assert that although there is much to say about money and energy when it comes to gas mining, it is first and foremost a public health issue.

The partial moratorium on Hydraulic Fracture

Patterson last December is due to expire in July. We feel, as does Dr. Steingraber, that to proceed with this technology without first conducting comprehensive health studies is a tragedy in the making. In light of responsibilities assigned the health departments in the DSGEIS, we would like to support our local Health Department to have a strong voice in policy making decisions. We also need information and leadership from you. If the following questions can't be adequately answered then we request that your office join us in prevailing upon state health authorities to support a ban on shale hydrofracture mining of any kind.

What can we do as individuals to protect our drinking water and our health if a drill rig comes to our neighborhood? Will the county keep a data base that reveals the location of lands that have been leased? If people act to test baseline water samples in a timely manner, what are the legitimate protocols and what official body will archive the results? In what ways can the Health Department help citizens demand accountability from polluters when the public health is at stake? What role will the Health Department play in helping doctors recognize and alleviate the symptoms of environmental poisoning? This letter is an invitation to work together with us to bring local health issues to the forefront in the shale gas mining discussion. We are planning a two day Walk About Water on Sunday June 19 and Monday Jun 20, a twenty mile distance. We anticiatrics followed by a walk to your office door.

We hope you will be willing to greet us there with an official public Health Department statement in response to our concern for the waters and the health of our community.

SC Officials Applaud Senator Schumer's Perseverance (From Pg. 1)

Only five tribes gained approval for offreservation gaming since passage of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act. The St. Regis Mohawks managed to get all approvals for a proposed casino next to the Monticello Casino & Raceway but were denied when former Interior Secretary Kempthorne introduced the commutable distance guidance memorandum, and refused to take the land into trust. "It has been an ongoing struggle to secure gaming in Sullivan County and I am cautiously optimistic that the federal government sees that bringing Native American gaming to Sullivan County will create an economic stimulus for not only Sullivan County, but also the Hudson Valley region and New York State," said Leni C. Binder, Minority Leader of the Sullivan County Legislature.

"The added jobs to the community as well as the revenue from a possible casino hotel would surely add a needed economic boost to the Sullivan County Catskills." The recent interest by retailers looking to locate in Sullivan County will be enhanced by the addition of a casino resort," cited Alan Sorenson, District 9 legislator where the casinos are slated to be located.

There is strong support for Indian gaming in Sullivan County which has state approval for three casinos. This announcement offers a renewed opportunity to pursue a Catskills casino. Elwin Wood, Vice Chair of the Sullivan County Legislature and Chairman of the Community and Economic Development Committee, stated "We look forward to the renewed interest in developing a casino in Sullivan County. Such a project could bring upwards of 2,000 permanent jobs and 2,000 construction jobs to the area." "The one thing that Sullivan County needs is a spark that will ignite economic development in Sullivan County, the placing of a first class gaming facility will bring additional stimulus to the projects that we as a legislature have been working to develop through our economic development corporation.'

Sullivan County Manager David Fanslau envisions this economic opportunity as one of the major puzzle pieces to secure fiscal vitality once again throughout our county. "The Sullivan County economy will benefit from additional tourism venues and jobs for County residents," concluded Fanslau.

Hinchey Visits Ellenville to Stress Importance of Federal Infrastructure Investments Wastewater Treatment Plant and Streetscaping Projects

Ellenville, NY --Congressman Maurice Hinchey (D-NY) today visited the Village of Ellenville to tour a newly completed streetscaping project in Liberty Square for which he secured $296,000 in federal funding. Hinchey also announced that over $7 million dollars in American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding, which he strongly supported, is providing for the construction of a badly needed wastewater treatment plant that will spare local ratepayers the added financial burden while helping to foster economic development in the village.

"Each time the federal government invests in American infrastructure jobs are created and economic development is allowed to move forward," said Hinchey. "We're seeing those kinds of results here in Ellenville. Not only have we beautified Liberty Square, but we are helping to sustain the small businesses that surround it by improving the water and sewer infrastructure they rely upon. We provided work for people who badly needed it in a down economy, gave people a source of pride in their community, and spared local rate and taxpayers much of the cost. I'm so proud to have helped to secure these federal investments and hope we can do so much more in the future."

Hinchey used his position as a member of the House Appropriations Committee to secure the streetscaping grant in a Fiscal Year 2008 Appropriations Bill. Nearly $1 million in additional state and private funds also supported the effort to completely overhaul Liberty Square. The new layout for the square was based on historical documentation and pedestrian flow analysis. Benches, trash receptacles and lighting were also chosen based on historical colors and materials. Open space in front of the library was preserved as a gathering place for concerts and other entertainment and new crosswalks were created to increase pedestrian safety.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, also known as the economic stimulus, is providing the majority of the funding for a new wastewater treatment facility in Ellenville, which will soon be constructed. It provided a $1.9 million grant and a $5.2 million low interest loan - both administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development Agency. The grant, which will help save considerable money for the community, was made possible because Ellenville is located in a USDA Rural Economic Area Partnership (REAP)

Zone, a designation which Hinchey established in 1999, which gives the village preferential treatment when applying for certain federal grants. Ellenville also benefited from $1.5 million in ARRA money to repair the Beckley Street Bridge, which had been listed as one of the bridges most in need of repair in "These kinds of federal investments make a real impact," said Hinchey. "Both the United States Chamber of Commerce and national labor unions are calling for increased federal investment in infrastructure projects -- and these organizations hardly agree on anything. With one in five construction workers nationwide currently unemployed, now is not the time to be cutting back on these investments. We need to continue strengthening our nation's transportation, water and energy systems. We can't afford to fall behind in the global economy, but unfortunately many in Washington are trying to cut the very programs which funded these projects in Ellenville."

Last week, a Republican led majority voted to dramatically cut rural development programs in the Fiscal Year 2012 Appropriations bill. Energy, water and transportation infrastructure investments are are also slated for cuts. Hinchey supports the opposite approach and is now working to pass the National Infrastructure Development Bank Act of 2011 to establish an infrastructure development bank that would issue bonds and provide financing for infrastructure projects throughout the country.

Senate Passes Legislation to Help End Abuse by Non-Proits of Tax Exempt Land Laws State Senator John J. Bonacic today announced the passage by the full Senate of legislation (S.2544) to stop land banking by non-profit organizations.

Land banking occurs when tax exempt organizations buy land, take it off the tax rolls, and fail to use it. Sometimes those corporations simply hold the land and sell it for a profit. Land-banking contributes to New York's high property taxes and is a substantial unfunded mandate on communities in the Catskills and Hudson Valley. After debate, the legislation passed with bi-partisan support, by a margin of 40-21.

"There are many non profits who perform important services and use their land actively. This bill is not aimed at them. It is aimed at the abusers. It is aimed at the non- profit corporation that buys land, and then fails to use it. This is the first shot across the bow against the abusers," Senator Bonacic said.

Under current law, if property is held by a tax exempt group and not used, the non-profit corporation must merely show the entity has plans "in good faith" to use the land for an exempt purpose. That can mean decades of non-profit entities holding the land without any actual use of it.

Under the legislation the Senate has passed, the entities would have to prove by clear and convincing evidence - a higher legal standard than normal, their intent to actively use the land. The entities would further have to physically commence the planned improvements associated with that use within five years, and complete the improvements within seven years.

Furthermore, under Senator Bonacic's legislation, if the entity did not meet the required timelines, they would have to pay taxes back to the local governments and schools for the seven year period they were exempted for, and be required to pay taxes prospectively as well.

"Every time land comes off the tax rolls, that tax burden is shifted to homeowners and small businesses. Land banking is a real problem in the Hudson Valley and the Catskills. This legislation, if enacted by the Assembly, would provide relief to property taxpayers across New York State" Senator Bonacic said.

Call Gillibrand/Bishop for Nationwide Recall in Wake of Recent year PV system at our house - saving about 1,000 pounds of CO2 per month and my electric Fire Pot Explosions

Over The Last Three Months, Eight Injuries Have Been Directly Linked to "Safe" Ceramic Firepots Containing Liquid Fuel

Washington, DC - In response to reports of severe burn injuries involving liquid fuel and ceramic firepots, U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand and Congressman Tim Bishop called for an immediate recall of all forms of liquid firepot fuel while the Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC) evaluates their safety for use. The lawmakers also urged CPSC to investigate manufacturer's labeling which claimed that the "product was safe for use."

The potential dangers of liquid fuel have been demonstrated in a number of recent incidents involving accidental ignition, with victims suffering severe burns due to the fuel's resistance to conventional extinguishing methods. Fourteenyear-old Riverhead resident Michael Hubbard remains in critical condition at Stony Brook University Hospital after suffering severe burns from an explosion of liquid fuel marketed as FireGel, "the Safe Pourable Gel." While three New Yorkers suffered severe burns involving pots and fuel from Napa Home & Garden Inc., similar products are still on the market from other manu-

"These harmful products have caused unnecessary pain and damage to the lives of many across the nation," said Senator Gillibrand. "With the summer season underway, we must stop these defective products from being manufactured and sold before more burn accidents take place."

"Basically, the design of these products means we have napalm for sale in the garden aisle," said Congressman Bishop. "I fear that the upcoming barbecue season could lead to more tragedies unless they stay off shelves pending a full investigation. At that time, we can consider if there is any safe way for this product to be sold or market-

"We want these products off the market so this never happens to anyone else," said Fran Reyer-Johnson, aunt of burn victim Michael Hubbard.

The ethanol-based fuel burns blue or clear with almost no smoke, making it difficult to determine if the flame in the pot is lit, with an explosion possible if additional fuel is added to the already-lit pot. This month, the CPSC opened an investigation after eight similar incidents involving FireGel and similar products were reported nationwide. The ceramic firepot products, a wick-less alternative to traditional Tiki Torches, began appearing in stores in 2008.

"We are concerned that other brands of pourable fuels may cause similar injury to users and ask that this investigation be expanded to include the larger category of all liquid firepot fuels. While this investigation is underway, we ask that all forms of liquid firepot fuels be removed from the marketplace to prevent any fur-ther injuries to consumers," Bishop and Gillibrand wrote in their letter to the CPSC

On the Local Scene - Chris Mathews has announced his intention to run for Councilman in the Town of Neversink, with Independent, Republican, and Conservative endorsements. Chris is a strong candidate for the seat. Chris, a successful building contractor in our area for many years is qualified and set to tackle the toughest jobs of local government. Good luck Chris!

On the National scene, Senior's Worry that the Republican budget will end Medicare and put insurance company bureaucrats between seniors and their doctors. Their budget provides a windfall of trillions to the health insurance industry. paid for on the backs of seniors - it would force seniors to pay $6,359 more in out-of-pocket expenses for health care in the first year alone more than double the cost under current law. Republicans falsely claim that today's seniors will not be impacted by their reckless plan - but the fact is that starting next year, nearly four million seniors will be forced to pay $2.2 billion more in prescription drug costs. In addition, the Republican budget slashes billions in health care for seniors through Medicaid, putting seniors at risk and costing thousands of private sector jobs. Democrats are committed to protecting and strengthening Medicare and Medicaid by cutting waste, fraud, and abuse - not benefits.

A note from Vic Work

I signed, and we have a 10,000 Kwh per usage on the grid is negative for the year. Ask, President Obama to put them back on the White House as a demonstration of the commitment to green renewal energy and make the White House carbon neutral. President Jimmy Carter did it 35 years ago and President Ronald Reagan took them off and killed the Energy Department. Gasoline was not $4.00 per gallon then and it still made a lot of sense.

U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand Makes Early Endorsement of Jon Sennett for UC District Attorney

Grahamsville, New York

Jon Sennett received the endorsement today of United States Senator Kirsten Gillibrand in his race for Ulster County District Attorney.

In her endorsement, New York's Senator Gillibrand highlighted Jon Sennett's experience, strong work ethic and his dedication to public integrity. A former Bronx Assistant District Attorney, Sennett has extensive experience as a prosecutor, in criminal defense and in family court.

"I am very excited to support Jon Sennett for Ulster County District Attorney," said Senator Gillibrand. "He brings a passionate commitment to the rule of law, public integrity and is focused on fighting crime at all levels.

"Senator Gilibrand's support means a lot to me and to my campaign," said Sennett. "I am truly honored and proud to have her support. Senator Gillibrand is a great leader for New York and is working on the issues that matter to our families and our communities. From her work to bring us open and transparent government, to her dedication to law enforcement and our first responders, Senator Gillibrand is an inspiration. I plan to make the people of Ulster County and Senator Gillibrand proud of my service as the next District Attorney.

Sennett has been very outspoken about the need for a strong emphasis on violent crimes committed against our youth, seniors and our families, as well as crime in our streets, schools and in our government.

The election for Ulster County District Attorney will be held on November 8, 2011.

Appropriations Committee Republicans Block Lowey-Hinchey Amendment Prevent Increased Financial Conflicts of Interest on U.S. Department Of Energy-Sponsored Fracking Panel On a Party Line Vote,-Committee Rejects Lowey-Hinchey Amendment to Make Shale Gas Panel Unbiased and Impartial

House Appropriations Committee Republicans today rejected an amendment offered by Congresswoman Nita Lowey (D-NY) and Congressman Maurice Hinchey (D-NY) that would have prevented natural gas industry executives from serving on what is supposed to be a neutral federal advisory panel on shale gas drilling. The Lowey-Hinchey amendment would have eliminated report language authored by House Republicans that would force the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to have at least one-third of the members on the newly-created Natural Gas Subcommittee of the Secretary of Energy Advisory Board be shale gas industry representatives.

The Lowey-Hinchey amendment was offered during a markup of the Fiscal Year 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations bill and was rejected by the Republican majority on the Appropriations Committee in a party line vote. Currently, the DOE has filled six of the seven panel slots, including the chairman position, with individuals who have financial ties to companies involved with hydraulic fracturing operations. The Republican measure, which Lowey and Hinchey were unable to overcome, would require the DOE to replace or add panel members with individuals who are employed by the very shale gas industry the panel is supposed to independently assess.

"It is outrageous that the Republican majority opposed our common-sense effort to ensure members of federal advisory boards are unbiased and without conflicts of interest," said Lowey. "Allowing the shale gas industry to put a thumb on the scale of this board makes it more likely that the decisions it makes will focus more on profits and less on the safety of our water sources, Americans' health, and environmental preser-

"Federal advisory boards are supposed to be unbiased, impartial bodies that advise our agencies, but almost everyone who currently serves on the shale gas advisory panel has direct financial ties to the oil and shale gas industry," said Hinchey. "Now the Republican majority is calling for an even greater bias by requiring that one-third of the panel work directly on behalf of the shale gas industries. This isn't an honest effort to give industry a seat at the table. Instead, it's a blatant attempt to rig the decisions of the panel in favor of industry and against the safety and security of our environment, drinking water and public health."

A number of recent reports and incidents are raising serious concerns about hydraulic fracturing. A study by researchers at Duke University found a statistically significant correlation between methane contamination of drinking water wells and their proximity to shale gas drilling sites. On April 20th of this year thousands of gallons of hydraulic fracturing fluid spilled into the Susquehanna River watershed, following a major fracking well blowout in Leroy Township, PA.

The text of the amendment, which was rejected on a party line vote follows:

Pages 99 and 100, strike "The Committee is concerned that the selected panel members will not adequately represent industry perspectives, and therefore will not foster a spirit of partnership among industry, environmental, and governmental parties. In order to strengthen these partnerships and industry support for any subsequent recommendations, no less than onethird of panel members should be industry representatives who actively work in the shale gas industry. Further, the" and insert "The".

Drive with reason...it's farming season!

Cornell Cooperative Extension Sullivan County partners with Thunder 102.1, Callicoon Cooperative Insurance Company and Mike Preis Insurance Company to highlight driving safely on our rural roads! A new public service campaign will be airing on the radio to remind travelers to drive with reason as it's farming season!

During the busy farming seasons such as spring planting, summer and fall harvest, Cornell Cooperative Extension offers some tips for motorists.

What is an SMV sign?

SMV stands for slow moving vehicle. It is an orange triangular sign outlined in red reflector material. The SMV sign must be displayed on all farm equipment designed to operate at speeds 25 miles per hour or less when traveling on the road.
When you see a SMV sign:

Slow down immediately and use caution.

Avoid passing on double yellow lines, around blind curves or hill crests, or other vehicles in line behind the farm equipment.

 Watch for hand signals, turn signals, driveways or other signs that indicate the slow moving vehicle is preparing to turn.

 Pass with caution, slowly and deliberately, watching for other traffic and sudden turns. Obey normal traffic laws.

 Above all, be patient and kind by staying behind. Farm equipment may use other safety alerts like: Lights and reflectors positioned to the extreme left and right of their sides

 Driver use of turn or hand signals Reflector tape (usually white, silver or red)

 Use of lights from sundown to sunrise An escort vehicle that may display a flashing, oscillating or rotating light or warning lights.

Is that farmer pulling over to allow me to pass? Not Accidents occur when motorists hurry around farm vehicles, resulting in injury or death.

o Large farm equipment making a left turn needs extra space. Equipment may be pulling over to turn left. Depending on the field entrance, tractors also may appear to be pulling toward the center or left but will be turning right. Wait until the tractor & equipment clear the roadway for you to continue

 Tractors move into the center lane to avoid hitting guardrails or mailboxes that those following can't see. Tractor operators can't always pull off the road immediately due to ditches or unavailable safe space.

One final note:

SMV signs may only be used for motorized vehicles designed to travel at speeds of 25 miles an hour or less on the road. Any other use is illegal. Examples of illegal uses include marking stationary objects such as mailboxes, driveways, gates or using the sign on vehicles moving faster than 25 miles per hour like trucks or vans.

Slow down for slow moving vehicles; remember to drive with reason, it's the farming season!

Guaranteed FUN!

The Franklin Furnace is a non-profit group whose mission is to preserve avant-garde art. Warning: The program contains nudity and adult material.

"Flicks from the Underground" screens at the Tusten Theatre at 210 Bridge Street in Narrowsburg on Saturday, June 25 at 7 p.m.

Knarf's "Classic Movie Trivia

Mister Roberts (1955) a naval officer longing for active duty clashes with his vainglori-ous captain. Directed by John Ford, Mervyn

LeRoy, and Starring Henry Fonda, James Cagney, William Powell, Jack Lemmon, Betsy Palmer, Ward Bond, Nick Adams, Philip Carey, Harry Carey, Jr., Ken Curtis, Martin Milner, Jack Pennick, Perry Lopez, Pat Wayne. Superb comedy-drama with

Fonda recreating his favorite stage role as restless officer on WW2 cargo ship who yearns for combat action but has to contend with an irascible and eccentric captain (Cagney) instead. Fonda, Cagney, Powell (in his last screen appearance) as a philosophical doctor, and Lemmon (in an Oscar-winning performance) as the irrepressible Ensign Pulver, are all terrific. Thomas Heggen and Joshua Logan's Broadway hit was adapted for film by Logan and Frank Nugent. LeRoy replaced Ford as director sometime during production... but it cer-tainly doesn't show. Sequel: ENSIGN PULVER. CinemaScope.

On TCM Saturday June 25, 2011, 5:45 PM, C-121 min. Rated TV-PG
