Artists Who Fished the Catskills

Kauterskill Falls, Sanford R. Gifford, 1871. Gifford was an avid fly fisherman and one of many artists who painted and fished in the Catskill mountains."

Livingston Manor, NY On Sunday, November 11th, at 3:00pm, the pub-lic is invited to a presentation by noted author Ed Van Put, together with his wife Judy, on artists who fished the Catskills and the art found in fly-fishing. The program will be held at Morgan Outdoors in Livingston Manor.

but also many of our first and finest artists. The presentation focuses primarily on the artists from the Hudson River School of Landscape Painters, including Thomas Cole, Asher B. Durand, and Worthington Whittredge.

There are many beautiful landscape paintings, some of which may be familiar; others will allow the viewers to appreciate what these artists found as they hiked, fished and traveled, particularly in the fall, through the Catskill Mountains. Their paintings brought the public closer to nature and as such, spurred tourism and an appreciation of the environment.

Judy will present the program and explain how fishing and art often overlapped; after which Ed will answer questions - either on the subject or on fishing in general. (Contd. Pg. 3)

Special thank you to Ben Knight and the Webelo Scouts for a Job Well Done!

Over the weekend, despite the weather, the local Weblo Scouts along with Ben Knight were look-ing ahead to spring! They planted over 150 bulbs in the Neversink Community Park that will be ready to add a bright array of color in the spring to the existing beauty of the park. Good work boys!

BCES Trail Officially Opens in Fallsburg

On a crisp autumn morning of October 23, 2018, at Fallsburg's Benjamin Cosor Elementary School (BCES), students, teachers, staff and specially invited community guests came together to celebrate the fulfillment of teacher Leah Exner's dream-to clear the overgrown hiking trail behind the school building and create a new one. Two and a half years ago, she looked at the "trail" and thought "We can create change!"

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ivan Katz welcomed everyone and thanked them for honoring the completion of a special project. He got right to the main point-to thank and acknowledge Leah Exner, for her inspiration, her perseverance and her dedication. She truly championed the BCES Trail.

Substitution into the perseverance and her dedication. She truly championed the BCES Iran. Next Ms. Exner acknowledged former teachers Ms. Jessica Erickson of 25 years ago and Lee Smassanow of ten years ago as teachers who believed that "you could take students out of the class-room to teach them through the outdoor world around them!" Ms. Exner was inspired to act on this vision and began the process by obtaining a Sullivan Renaissance Healthy Community Initiatives Grant, with the help of fellow teacher Mark Spina. "That grant," said the teacher, "would start us off on the path to creating a one mile trail with 3/4 of a mile around the perimeter of the school and 1/4. of a mile into the woodd acotion along a grack" (Contd. Do. 4) 1/4 of a mile into the wooded section alongside of a creek." (Contd. Pg. 4)

A Round About Tri-Valley Carol Furman

Congratulations to Tri-Valley's Varsity Football Team who clinched this year's Eight Man Football Division Title. Fourteen seniors on the team played their last game on their home field on Saturday, October 20th when the team defeated Roscoe by a score of 28-18. Now the team is looking ahead to the playoffs which are scheduled to begin on October 27th.

Congrats to Sherri Reynolds of Sundown, again! He photo of a spider on a fall plant won the Record's "Best Photo of the Week" on October 21st.

The Tri-Valley FFA is now taking fruit, cheese and syrup orders for December delivery. See an FFA member to place an order or give me a call and I'll see that you order is placed.

After reading the Record last Sunday, I see that many schools in Sullivan Ulster and Orange Counties are reporting a decline in student enrollment. Tri-Valley is no exception. NY State Education Department sources state that Tri-Valley's total enrollment in 2014 was 1.192 and in 2018 the enrollment was reported as 1,014. Thirteen of the thirty four school districts in Orange, Sullivan and Ulster counties have an enrollment below 1,500 students. Fewer students and still school budgets seem to increase for most school districts each year. Some schools in Sullivan County were forced to dig into their reserves to shore up successive budgets while trying to limit school tax increases. I'm not sure what the answer is, however, school boards certainly have tough decisions to make. I give them a lot of credit as they attempt to reduce per-pupil costs while trying not to adversely affect education and our sports teams

First I heard that the colors of the fall foliage were going to be bright this autumn due to all of the rain we've had. Now scientists are claiming the fall foliage will be green or muted due to the warm autumn temperatures. Seems like the latter is true. Leaves seem to be falling off of the trees before they have any color at all.

A group from the Grahamsville Reformed Church journeyed to Bushkill Falls, Pennsylvania this passed Thursday evening to be present as their Pastor, Kenneth Ronk, was commissioned as a Pastor in the Reformed Church of America. A delicious dinner was served by the Bushkill Falls Reformed Church.

My granddaughter asked me to check her math homework. The assignment dealt with adding and subtracting numbers based on the metric system. Of course, when I attended elementary school back in the mid 40's. we weren't taught anything about the metric system. But, together we managed to complete the assignment. Then, while writing this article, I came across a quote which I thought was kind of witty. Jesse Helms, a politician from North Carolina, said "If God had wanted us to use the metric system, Jesus would have had ten disciples." To this day, I can' say that I ever use the metric system of measurement...inches, feet and yards are good enough for me!

DEC Announces Start of Furbearer Trapping and Hunting Seasons

Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos announced today that furbearer trapping and hunting seasons begin soon in many parts of New York State. Trappers should note special permit requirements for fisher and marten trapping seasons.

"Hunting, angling and trapping are proud traditions in New York that contribute greatly to the State economy, and I'm excited to once again announce the opening of furbearer hunting and trapping seasons," Commissioner Seggos said. "New York's trappers play an important role in our wildlife conservation and management efforts by providing important data to DEC's expert wildlife biologists, especially for fisher and marten management. I encourage all trappers to report their fisher and marten, and provide required samples to help us improve our wildlife management efforts."

Fisher and marten are medium-sized members of the weasel family, which also includes weasels, ermine, mink, and river otters. While fisher have been expanding their range throughout New York State in recent decades, New York's marten are restricted to the Adirondacks.

Coyote hunting season began Oct. 1 across much of the state, and hunting seasons for other furbearers such as bobcat, raccoon, and fox begin on Oct. 25. Season dates and zone boundaries for all furbearers can be found on DEC's website and in the Hunting and Trapping Regulations Guide.

Trappers are reminded of changes to trapping regulations for fisher that began in 2016, including the requirement of a special permit, and expanded opportunities for fisher in select Wildlife Management Units in central and western New York. All fisher and marten trappers must obtain a special, free permit from their regional wildlife office, submit a trapping activity log, and submit the skull or jaw from harvested fishers and martens.

To obtain a free fisher or fisher/marten permit, trappers should contact the regional wildlife office (see table below) or apply by e-mail. Only one fisher or fisher/marten permit is needed to trap these species anywhere in New York where the season is open. Trappers must provide the following information: Name; DEC ID # (from license or back tag); Mailing address; Phone or e-mail; Species (fisher or fisher/marten); If requesting a permit by e-mail, include the county or WMU where you plan to trap fisher and/or marten.

To apply by e-mail: wildlife@dec.ny.gov; type 'Fisher/Marten Permit" in the subject line.

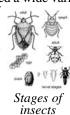

To apply by phone or in-person: DEC Region 3 4 21 South Putt Crns Rd, New Paltz, NY 12561 845-256-3088

Nature Column - Linda Comando A tribute to the memory of all of the Townsman Ladies that we have lost and loved so much... Peggy DeWire, Avril Pappa, Joan Hall, Polly Hill, Joyce Lockhart, Jean Helthaler, Karen Curry and Barbara Slater.

Where Have all the Insects Gone?

With the exception of a fruit fly or spider, all those little and not so little bugs of summer suddenly disappeared. Where did they go? As cold-blooded creatures, insects are particularly susceptible to winter's freezing temperatures. To survive, this class of animals has developed a wide variety of unique adaptations and methods of surviving northern winters, including long migrations, creating their own anti-freeze and even purposely freezing portions of their bodies. For example, the Monarch Butterflies migrate south while the Woolly Bear Caterpillar goes through winter as immature larvae buried under heavy covers of leaf litter or a similar shelter where they are protected. Some simply burrow deeper into the soil to escape the cold.

Ladybugs snuggle together as they practice communal hibernation by stacking one on top of another on stumps and under rocks to share heat and buffer themselves against winter temperatures. Some ladybugs choose to winter over in attics, and other out-of-the-way places in homes and other structures, as do a variety of wasps and flies, including yellow jackets, who are frequently found wintering in the eaves and attics of houses and barns.

A female grasshopper will tunnel into the soil and deposit her eggs as deep as possible in the soil in an attempt to keep her eggs safe through the winter.

The nymphs of dragonflies and mayflies live in ponds and streams, often beneath ice. They feed actively and grow all winter to emerge as adults in early spring.

A few insects lay eggs that survive the winter. In autumn the female Praying Mantis will lay her eggs before she dies. She often deposits them on a branch or twig, but also leaves them on walls, fences and eaves. They are surrounded by a frothy liquid, called ootheca, which hardens into an egg case about the size of a big marble. The following spring the nymphs hatch and burst out of the case in a small army of hungry youngsters, each the size of a small ant. Some insects like moths overwinter in the pupal stage, then emerge as adults in the spring.

Flies do not do well in cold weather. Once in a while you may find a common housefly in your house during the winter, but a housefly only has a life cycle of 20-30 days. Most flies survive in maggot or pupae form until the weather is warm enough for them to starting hatching and mating again.

Mosquitoes are out there even though we don't notice them. Certain mosquitoes lay winter hardy eggs in areas where the ground is moist. The eggs lie dormant in the soil until spring when conditions become favorable again and they hatch. Other mosquitoes can survive winter in the larval stage. All mosquito larvae require water, even in winter. As the water temperature drops, it induces a state of diapause (suspended development) in the mosquito larvae, stopping further development and slowing their metabolism. Development resumes when the water warms again.

Honey bees stay in hives during the winter, and form clusters when temperatures fall. They also are able to raise their temperature by vibrating wing muscles.

There are also insects that hibernate as adults. Many large wasps seek shelter in the eaves and attics of houses or barns. In some sophisticated insect larvae, the water content of their body is reduced, and they build up glycerol which acts as an antifreeze. This is one of the most interesting survival methods of Freeze-tolerant insects. They produce ice nucleating proteins. The regulated production allows insects to control the formation of ice crystals within their bodies. This allows the insect to moderate the rate of ice growth, adjust more slowly to the mechanical and osmotic pressures imposed by ice formation. Once freezing is initiated, ice will spread throughout the insect's body.

In general, insects are well adapted to survive cold temperatures in their winter habitats. It will still be awhile before most resume their non-winter lives and will be active again, giving us something else to complain about besides the cold weather!

Household Hints Trap fruit flies

Did you bring home fruit flies from the market? You can make traps for them that can be used anywhere around your house by filling an old jar about halfway with apple cider vinegar. Punch a few holes in the lid, screw it back on, and you're good to go.

The Devil's Half Mile Mysterious Book Report No. 352

by John Dwaine McKenna

Wall Street trickery, corrupt politics, racial strife, gangs, murder... that all sounds like the headlines from today's news, but instead, it's the lead-in on the cover of a nifty murder mystery which takes place in New York City in the year of our Lord, 1799. Through the skill of Alexander Hamilton and the formation of a Federal Bank, the new nation has recovered from the depression of 1792, but the financial panic back then ruined a great number of speculators, and many of them are still trying to claw their way back to prosperity in a marketplace with few restrictions, no regulations and zero oversight.

to claw their way back to prosperity in a marketplace with few restrictions, no regulations and zero oversight. The Devil's Half Mile, (Forge/Tom Doherty Associates, $24.99, 289 pages, ISBN 978-0-7653-9913-7) by Patrick "Paddy" Hirsch, is an exciting debut murder mystery in the form of historical crime fiction. The novel begins in New York City in the summer of 1799, where a young man named Justice Flanagan had just returned from Ireland with a brand-new law degree and a burning desire to find out who murdered his father. Before he can make it down the gangplank of the ship that brought him home however, he's a spectator to the racial violence that's happening throughout the city between the increasing numbers of free blacks and poor immigrant Irishmen who've been coming into the city in huge numbers, as a fight breaks out on the dock between the two groups over who will get the job of unloading a nearby ship. The melee breaks up and the work is awarded to the blacks after the body of a murdered young woman of color is pulled from the harbor, right in front of the combatants. Justy realizes that the city has changed substantially while he's been away . . . the ghosts of the past seek retribution, while at the same time more bodies keep turning up and the crimes of the present demand attention. Against the backdrop of the infamous Tontine Coffee House – where more nefarious schemes were hatched than eggs at a Tyson chicken farm – Justy and his friend Kerry struggle to solve the murders, avenge his father, and along the way, uncover a plot that could destroy the young country while at the same time, keep from getting killed themselves. The action never ceases in this fine-tuned and carefully plotted mystery that'll educate readers at the same that it entertains them by bringing the last year of the 18th century to colorful, vivid life!

BCES Trail Officially Opens in Fallsburg (From Pg. 1) Soon Cornell Cooperative Extension of Sullivan County began assisting BCES through the Creating Healthy Schools & Communities. Other grant opportunities and student groups kept growing! As a member of the teaching society for women educators, Ms. Exner applied for and obtained The DKG NYS Educational Foundation Grant. Within the last year, FCSD was also able to assist with the trail through The Empire State Afterschool Grant.

Meanwhile students from multiple grade levels and school maintenance community partners became involved in trail projects as well as snowshoeing through the district's Extended Day program. Ms. Exner thanked the community for rallying around this trail since day one. She acknowledged the voluminous donations of material, equipment, time, and expertise from more than 25 members of Sullivan County.

There are also many who have adopted The BCES Trail. This trail brings to life thoughts, ideas, and opportunities across curriculum, wellness, and relaxation. She especially thanked her family for all of the week nights and many weekends over the last two and a half years that they've spent building the trail. In conclusion, Leah Exner reaffirmed to all, "Yes, we can create change!"

Special thanks to Assemblywoman Aileen Gunther for acknowledging Ms. Exner and FCSD for their focus on health and well-being in Sullivan County and for sharing this wonderful idea with other school districts. The Sullivan County Chamber of Commerce had four administrative members handle the ribbon cutting ceremonies, with the help of sixteen BCES students from all grades that contributed hands on volunteer work to create the Trail.

Funding Available to Diversify Dairy Farms-Applications Due by November 15 Monticello, NY - Funding for dairy farm diversification is still available from the income generated from the Agri-Business Microenterprise Loan Program originating from New York State Office of Community Renewal.

The program recently granted close to $94,000 to Ma & Pa Creamery, LLC to fund the business planning, engineering studies, and equipment required to develop a producer-operated dairy processing facility. This project is a collaboration with local dairy farms and supporting partners including Hudson Valley Agri-Business Development Corporation, Cornell Cooperative Extension of Sullivan County, Sullivan County Funding Corporation, Agricultural and Community Development Services, LLC, Sullivan County Government and Assemblywoman Aileen Gunther's office.

"Dairy farms are integral to agriculture in Sullivan County, directly contributing more than $7 million to the local economy," said District 4 Legislator Catherine Owens, chair of the Legislature's Parks, Agriculture and Sustainability Policy Committee. "Loss of any more dairies in the County will have a ripple effect throughout the economy, with the potential loss of millions of dollars of revenues. Therefore, Sullivan County is committed to supporting local dairy families through grants at the County level." Additional funding is available from the County for dairy farmers interested in creating niche and value-added products, a stated priority of the adopted Sullivan County Agriculture and Farmland Protection Plan. While job creation is not a requirement of funding, proposals that address employment are encouraged. However, grants cannot be made for daily operating expenses without diversification.

If you are a dairy farmer interested in applying for funding to support niche and value-added diversification on your farm, please submit a letter of interest with a project description and proposed budget to the Sullivan County Division of Planning, Community Development and Real Property at 100 North Street, Monticello, NY 12701. If you have questions or need more information, please contact the Division at 845-807-0527. Letters must be submitted by November 15, 2018 to be considered.

Coming soon: The Peer Connection Center

Introducing the Sullivan County Peer Connection Center - a place people can come when in need of assistance for mental health and chemical dependency issues. They will be greeted by peers who will assist them with a caring ear, information to educate on questions and services available, and linkage and access to services.

We have acquired a space due to the generosity of Action Toward Independence (ATI). A task timeline was developed in order to address what needs to be accomplished in the coming weeks to meet our goal opening date of January 2019, including funding opportunities, policies and procedures, days and hours of operations, and staffing.

We have a committee of caring members who are providing support and their expertise where needed: ATI, Independent Living, Rehabilitation Support Services, Access, Mobile Mental Health, 911 Center, local law enforcement, NYS Office of Mental Health, Office of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse, Catholic Charities, Sullivan County Department of Family Services, Department of Community Services, CRMC, the District Attorney's Office, Legal Aid, Sullivan County Public Health, and the Legislature, to name a few.

HEAP: Warming up to it... Stay warm this winter

You don't need to suffer in cold silence in the months ahead, notes County Manager Josh Potosek.

"Most people think you must have an extremely small income - or none at all - to qualify for the NYS Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)," he explains, "but actu-ally the income thresholds are quite reasonable. The whole idea is to keep all of our citizens safe and warm."

HEAP opens for this winter season on November 13, 2018, running through March 15, 2019 unless extended by the State. Eligible applicants can receive financial help in paying for electricity, natural gas, oil, coal, propane, wood/wood pellets, kerosene or corn.

On January 2, 2019, the State's Emergency HEAP benefit will become available for those who are in immediate danger of running out of fuel or having their utility turned off.

New York State also offers funds in the spring for cooling and for heating/ventilation system repair. To find out more, visit:

Sullivan County Manager earns top Partnership award

The Sullivan County Partnership for Economic Development chose County Manager Josh Potosek as this year's recipient of its Distinguished Service Award. "To be selected for this particular award means a great deal," Josh stated afterwards. THE TOWNSMAN

The Olive Jar- By Carol LaMonda

Voting

Women's suffrage in the United States of America, the legal right of women to vote, was established over the course of more than half a century, first in various states and localities, sometimes on a limited basis, and then nationally in 1920.

My mom was born in 1921, the year after women were allowed to vote. She had to be twenty-one to vote then, so the first time she could cast her ballot was 1942. I consider her to be one of the first modern women because she graduated Bay Ridge High School, went to NYU, worked in the city, and raised a family while my father was away in World War II. And she voted! As the election draws near, I think of her striving for independence and self-worth. She is the inspiration for me to vote and to encourage everyone I know, especially women, to vote and express their voice. There are many mothers and grandmothers who went through oppression to earn that voice.

A vote can determine a candidate's win or loss and can the influence the direction of legislation. The stakes are too high NOT to vote.

The Elections Project notes that, in 2016, there were 251,107,404 people who classify as members of the voting-age population, therefore 115,449,897 of the voting-age population (or 46.3 percent) did not vote. More citizens will become eligible this year as they turn eighteen. Unfortunately, the younger voters were the greatest number of non-voters in the Presidential election. I predict many more will get out to vote this time around, and without the Electoral College, each vote gets stronger.

I urge you all to vote. There are people around the world that cannot vote or be sure their vote counts. Don't waste that privilege we have as Americans. My Norwegian grandmother voted for the first time when FDR was running. I remember her saying, "I cancelled out my husband's vote." When I vote this year, I will remember that my vote counts, and may cancel out someone else's vote, but the apathetic, uncounted votes will make the biggest difference.

Letter to the Voters of Ulster County,

For the past six or so decades, I have lived, worked and raised my family here in Ulster County. For more than forty of those years I have known Paul VanBlarcum. Nobody is entitled to be elected, but if there is one person on the ballot this year who has earned it, it's Sheriff Paul VanBlarcum. I will not waste this precious space touting his qualifications; you can find all of that online.

His opponent's resume, while brief, includes service in the Marine Corps, for which he has my thanks and gratitude. I have had the privilege of knowing many men and women who serve and have served in the United States Military. Every one of those people served with honor and pride. I can tell you that not one of those people would lessen the reputation and esteem of the institutions they served by stooping to the level that Mr. Figeroa has. Every one of the honorable service men and women I have spoken to are embarrassed and ashamed that one of their own would sign off on a shameful campaign of smear and slander.

It really says something that, unlike my friends in the military, local Democratic electeds do not seem to hold the same values and fidelities. It is deeply disheartening that Ulster County Democrats have not stood up and decried accusations of racism and prejudice against a man they have known, served with, and endorsed for over a decade. That Ulster County Democrats would endorse a man who has leveraged race to spread falsehoods, inflame the community, and perpetuate an already divided and dangerous political climate is truly unbelievable. This is exactly what is wrong with politics today.

I've known Mr. Figeroa for years. And I've liked him. However, he crossed a line when he directed his minions to defame the reputation of an individual who has faithfully served the residents of this county with distinction his entire life. For what purpose? At whose urging?

This is as strong as an endorsement and urging as I have ever given for a candidate for public office. Your choice for Ulster County Sheriff should be based on character and qualifications. From what I have seen these past few months, Mr. Figeroa has neither.

Please join me in re-electing Paul VanBlarcum on November 6.

Thanks, John Parete Boiceville Inn Boiceville, NY

At the Center of Opportunity

The Emerald Corporate Center in Rock Hill is on the cusp of new development. Long the home of Crystal Run Healthcare's 80,000-square-foot medical center, the Center's 24acre back lot is being subdivided to attract tenants and complete the vision for this property.

Commercial office space isn't the only available use, however. Zoning now permits business support services, research and development, laboratories, medical facilities, home healthcare equipment rentals, film and audio production studios, light manufacturing, art galleries and other flexible spaces.

Sullivan County is currently seeking a proven commercial real estate agent to market the properties. For more information, contact planning@co.sullivan.ny.us or call 845-807-0527.

Our Boots are Made for Walking!

Thanks to the Sullivan County Employee Wellness Initiative, our workers and their friends and families have enjoyed memorable hikes to some of the County's most scenic and hidden locations: Mullet Brook Falls near Rock Hill, the Parksville and Hurleyville rail trails, the Roosa Gap Fire Tower above Wurtsboro and Mongaup Pond north of Livingston Manor, to name a few.

The walks range from mild to moderate and are open to the public, as we want them to experience the benefits of great exercise - and the thrill of a "good find" - as much as our employees! If you'd like to be on the email list for upcoming walks, just drop a request to dan.hust@co.sullivan.ny.us.

Agents of Change at the Community Level

There's a reason why they're called probation "offi-They're on the front lines in the fight against cers." crime, ensuring public safety and security as much as any police officer. Considering Sullivan County's probation officers are also badged, armed, extensively trained and (as peace officers) have certain police powers specific to probationers, the only external difference is the uniform. Nevertheless, the job is distinct from other law enforcement.

"Our overall goal is to protect the community," says Probation Director Barbara Martin. "In doing so, we have two major roles: supervising offenders in the community and preparing pre-sentence investigation reports for the courts.

Probation is not the same as parole, however.

"Probation is serving a sentence in the community. Some probationers may receive sentences that involve a 'split bid,' where they serve a short term of incarceration and the remainder of the sentence on probation," Barbara explains. "Parole is when a person has been sentenced to a period of incarceration in a State prison and is released

Frost Valley Counselor in Training Wins YMCA Alliance Youth Volunteer of the Year

CLARYVILLE - The New Jersey YMCA State Alliance recently held its 18th Annual Recognition Celebration to highlight YMCA initiatives and recognize individuals who have demonstrated leadership and support for New Jersey YMCAs in one of the Y's three focus areas: Youth Development, Healthy Living, and Social Responsibility. Williams Babalola, a Frost Valley YMCA Counselor in Training (CiT) program participant, was one of the individuals recognized at the ceremony on October 15, 2018.

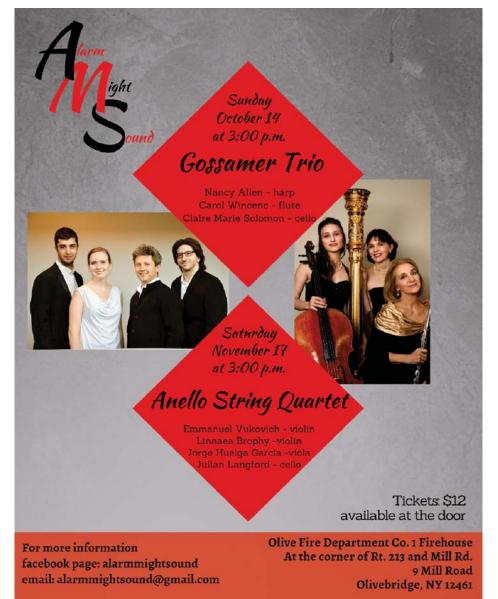

The evening honored 25 teens who give back to their neighbors and local communities by volunteering through the YMCA. Helping young people to understand the importance of service to others is at the core of the New Jersey YMCA State Alliance's mission.

Williams Babalola, a Frost Valley CiT, was among those honored that evening with the NJ YMCA State Alliance Youth Volunteer of the Year award. During his time as a CiT at Frost Valley, Williams took part in an extensive trail-clearing project. Additionally, Williams helps run events for his high school and serves in his church by cleaning the facilities and handing out the Holy Communion.

"The thing I'm most proud of is the time I've spent at Frost Valley," says Williams. "Even when I wasn't a CiT, there was always something about that place that encouraged me to do more and it's thanks to Frost Valley that I am who I am today."

Also given out that evening were the Social Responsibility Champion Award, which was presented to John McManus for his dedication to giving back and providing support to his neighbors and the Martin Bartner Award, which was presented to Gloria Ron-Fornes for her leadership in promoting the Y's core values of diversity and inclusion.

The Scene Too By Jane Harrison

While so many people were hunkering down with extra bread and milk for the first predicted (thankfully wrong) ice/snow event, I got in my car and went to Parksville and CABERNET FRANK'S to see THE JOHNNY JULES BAND. My rationale? If I'm going to get stuck inside until March (May? June?), I'm going out to see my old dear friends first. Their style is unique, mixing bluesy rock with old time bluegrass all made to seem more authentic with the gravelly quality of Johnny's voice. Audiences and owners love them which was quite evident this past summer where their full calendar included THE FAT LADY CAFÉ and THE BASHAKILL on a regular basis. Johnny (guitar and vocals), David D'Arcy (bass) and Bobby D (Dobro) always provide listeners with a smile and foot tapping evening. And I had heard rumors that they had recently included an accordian. This I had to see, not quite sure how that would work but work it did, with Dan Goodman adding, albeit sophisticated, tinge of Appalachia.

And now, since this edition comes out on Halloween, I have something for you to ponder. I've known Johnny Jules for almost a decade and it was at one of his parties that I first heard of the Pauper's Cemetery in Hurleyville. But hey, it was a party, and I tucked it away in my memory bank. Then in talking to a Hurleyville native, the subject of this cemetery came up again, and it seemed to val-idate that first story. And since I have not researched this, I will portray this as 'a rumor'. Rumor has it that there was a Pauper's Cemetery somewhere in the vicinity. Rumor has it that even though it served the less fortunate, many had markers and some had actual headstones. At some point, rumor has it, that this land was sold along with the parcel next to it. The new owners, wanting to build a home, rumor has it, had the remains removed and dumped into a mass grave in a plot of land butting against another cemetery. It is also rumored that if you can sneak onto the original land, you can still find headstones that had been tossed into the brush.

Not enough crazy for you? Historian John Conway will be giving a talk entitled "Sleeping with the Fishes" at the Fallsburg Library Nov 7, which will explore Murder Inc's association with this area. (registration required, online or in person)

Chabad of Ulster County has released the the following statement on the murder of 11 fellow Jews at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh;

Earlier today we, the Jewish community, experienced once again the horrible tragedy of our brothers and sisters being murdered solely because they are Jews. This tragedy hits especially close to home for us as 2 of our rabbis (Rabbi Itkin - Águdas Achim Kingston and Rabbi Deren - Ezrath Israel Chabad Ellenville) grew up in the Squirrel Hill neighborhood of Pittsburgh, just blocks away from the Tree of Life Synagogue. Our prayers are with our brethren in Pittsburgh and all of those who have lost loved ones in this hateful murder.

While there is no reason to believe that there is any immediate or increased risk to our community, we have been in touch with local law enforcement and they have reassured us that they have increased patrols around all houses of worship.

The Lubavitcher Rebbe taught that darkness is not swept away with a broom, but by adding in light. In that spirit we echo the call of Rabbi Yisroel Rosenfeld, director of Chabad of Pittsburgh to respond on an individual level by "chasing away the darkness with positivity, with acts of goodness and kindness" in order to bring a little more light into these dark times.

Open Letter from the RJC to : Congregation Etz Chaim and Pittsburgh Jewry

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

We have never met and hundreds of miles separate our two communities. We know you not through name, but through Ahavat Yisrael / love thy neighbor and our shared purpose to elevate the world through kindness and good deeds. This spirit binds us to you as we share in your grief over the horrors inflicted upon you during Shabbat Kodesh.

It's doubtful that words exist that will lighten the burdens of your pain. With the days ahead beset with deep pain and sadness we stand with you, our brethren, in unity and loving concern in hopes that we might bear a small measure of your burdens. Your sorrow is our sorrow. Your loss is our loss. Your hope is our hope. Our sincere prayers are that together, through increasing in Torah and

Our sincere prayers are that together, through increasing in Torah and Mitzvot, we succeed in ushering in an era of true peace when the entire world will be united in brotherly love, and there will be an end to war and hatred. May this happen speedily and in our days, through the coming of Moshiach.

UC Esec Mike Hein Announces a National Achievement Award for Its UC Bystanders Against Sexual Assault Program (UCBASA)

The National Association of Counties ("NACo") has recognized Ulster County with a 2018 Achievement Award for its new program titled Ulster County Bystanders Against Sexual Assault(UCBASA) in the category of Human Services. The NACo awards honor innovative, effective county government programs that strengthen services for residents. NACo President Roy Charles Brooks said, "Counties seize opportunities to deliver services more efficiently and build stronger communities every day. Achievement Award-winning programs are examples for counties that are determined to enhance services for our residents."

Achievement Award-winning programs are examples for counties that are determined to enhance services for our residents." The UCBASA is a ground-breaking program that provides bystander training for restaurant/bar staff as it aims to prevent sexual assaults before they occur and reduce the overall number of sexual assaults that take place. It is the first such program in New York State and can serve as a model for the development of a state-wide initiative. The Ulster County Crime Victims Assistance Program launched UCBASA in New Paltz earlier this year and has so far trained 45 staff at 7 bars. Establishments that complete the training receive a certificate. Ulster County is currently offering training sessions in the City of Kingston. The next UCBASA training session will be held onOctober 29, 2018 at 2:30 p.m. at the Kingston Center at SUNY Ulster. The UCBASA initiative will also be expanding to the Town of Saugerties. To register please call 845-340-3800 or

THE TOWNSMAN

Michael P. Hein, Ulster County Executive

"I am honored that NACo has recognized the Ulster County Bystanders Against Sexual AssaultProgram and I want to thank the National Association of Counties for this important recognition," said County Executive Hein. "UCBASA is a cutting edge preventative measure in its ability to teach bar staff how and why sex offenders offend, what qualifies as sexual assault and why consent is vital. This program would not be possible without the critical efforts of Nancy Schmidt, Director of our Probation Department, and our Crime Victims Assistance staff, Sarah Kramer-Harrison and Cynthia Craft. The work they do is exceptional, developing a curriculum and providing training to educate bar staff about this serious issue. I hope this program can serve as a model for other communities, and we look forward to providing this essential training in other areas of the County."

Nancy Schmidt, Ulster County Director of Probation

"I am very proud of the UCBASA program developed by two members of our Crime Victim's Assistance Program staff Cynthia Craft and Sarah Kramer-Harrison," said Nancy Schmidt, Director of Probation. "This prevention and education program has been a big success in the Village of New Paltz, and as we expand to the City of Kingston and elsewhere in the County we hope establishments realize the importance of this training for their staff. We are very grateful for the support and encouragement of County Executive Mike Hein who helped get this program underway. His continued support and promotion of this program has helped to get more bar staff trained which is the key to successful implementation. We are also grateful to New Paltz Police Chief Joe Snyder and New Paltz Bar and Tavern Association President Mike Beck for their efforts to engage bar staff and owners in this program, as well as City of Kingston. Mayor Steve Noble and City of Kingston Police Chief Egidio Tinti for their assistance in Kingston. It is hoped that providing this program to bar staff will improve the safety of men and women in Ulster County. I am very pleased that Ulster County was awarded the NACO award in recognition of this outstanding program."

Sarah Kramer-Harrison, M.Ed., Ulster County Crime Victims Counselor/Educator

"Unfortunately, for too many decades, society has looked to the victim to prevent sexual assault. What we know now is that a person is only at risk of sexual assault when they are in the presence of someone looking to commit a sexual assault," said Sarah Kremer-Harrison, M.Ed., Ulster County Crime Victims Counselor/Educator. "Cynthia Craft and I thought it was important to create a program that identifies offender behavior and arms bar staff with skills to appropriately intervene. This program creates a community-minded approach to preventing sexual assault. Ulster County Executive Michael Hein saw the potential of this program and provided us with the support to make it a reality."

Suspected Bomber will be Brought to Justice

Justice will be served for the suspected bomber who targeted President Obama, Secretary Clinton, and others. Actions like these run counter to our core American values and serve to do nothing more than divide and terrorize our country. I am grateful for the Secret Service, the FBI, and local law enforcement who work tirelessly to keep our country safe.

Tackling the Opioid Crisis Head-On

The opioid epidemic claims over 100 lives every day. Congress came together this week to reverse this dangerous trend when the President signed into law a bipartisan opioid package, the largest effort Congress has ever undertaken to address this crisis. I was proud to take part in this historic moment.

The enactment of this landmark bill builds on our commitment to tackling the opioid epidemic head-on. This package is the result of months-long work in both the House and Senate to provide our communities with the resources they need to increase our safety, prevent addiction and encourage recovery. Two measures I championed were included in the package - the STOP Act, which gives law enforcement the tools they need to identify and intercept shipments of deadly synthetic opioids through the U.S. Postal Service, in addition to the Medicare Opioid Safety Education Act, which bolsters opioid education for Seniors on Medicare. I had the privilege of meeting Dee Dee at the ceremony,

I had the privilege of meeting Dee Dee at the ceremony, a Dutchess County resident who is recovering from addiction. She's a local seamstress working at Unshattered in Hopewell Junction, a non-profit whose mission is to provide women battling addiction a pathway to employment, independence, and a better chance at maintaining their sobriety.

Honoring Blossom Rozman of Ellenville

I joined members of the Ellenville Regional Hospital community to honor Blossom Rozman, a local Ellenville resident who has spent decades serving the greater Ulster community. Through her passion and dedication, she continues to work to improve the world around her.

Among her many activities and accomplishments, Blossom was vital to the implementation of the holocaust studies program in the Ellenville Central school – the first full-year program of its kind in the country. She has also participated in numerous organizations, including serving on the executive board of the Ellenville Regional Hospital Auxiliary and as past president of the Sisterhood of Congregation Ezrath Israel.

DEC Reminds Public to Avoid Caves and Mines to Protect New York's Bat Populations National Bat Week Raises Awareness That Human Disturbances Are Harmful to Threatened Bats

At the start of National Bat Week, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) today is urging outdoor adventurers to suspend exploration of cave and mine sites that may serve as seasonal homes for hibernating bats. Human disturbances are especially harmful to the State's bat population since the arrival of the disease known as white-nose syndrome, which has killed more than 90 percent of bats at hibernation sites in New York.

"White-nose syndrome makes bats highly susceptible to disturbances," said DEC Commissioner Basil Seggos. disturbances." "Even a single, seemingly quiet visit can kill bats that would otherwise survive the winter. If you see hibernating bats, assume you are doing harm and leave immediately."

All posted notices restricting the use of caves and mines should be followed. If New Yorkers or visitors encounter hibernating bats while underground, DEC encourages them to leave the area as quickly and quietly as possible. When bats are disturbed during hibernation it forces them to raise their body temperature, depleting their fat reserves. This stored fat is the only source of energy available to the bats until the weather warms in spring.

The message comes at the start of National Bat Week, observed Oct. 24-31, a celebration of bats and their role in nature organized by representatives from conservation groups and government agencies in the United States and Canada.

Two species of bats are currently protected under feder-al and State endangered species law. The Indiana bat, which is sparsely distributed across New York, is a federally endangered bat listed before white-nose syndrome began impacting bat populations. The northern long-eared bat is protected as a threatened species under federal and New York State Endangered Species law. The current population for this formerly common bat is approximately one percent of its previous size, making the species the most severely impacted by white-nose syndrome. Nonetheless, northern long-eared bats are still widely distributed in New York. Their presence is documented in most of the 100 or so caves and mines that serve as bat hibernation sites in the State.

Anyone entering a northern long-eared bat hibernation site from October 1 through April 30, the typical period of hibernation for bats, may be subject to prosecution.

There is currently no treatment for bats suffering from white-nose syndrome. Along with the New York State Department of Health, DEC is partnering with researchers from the National Wildlife Health Center in Madison, Wisconsin, and experts at several universities across the country to better understand the disease and develop a treatment. This collaborative effort helped identify that reducing disturbances at hibernation sites during the winter can help the remaining animals survive.

For more information about white-nose syndrome, visit the White-Nose Syndrome Response Team website. Details about the protection of the northern long-eared bat can be found on DEC's website.
