Days of Yore... Today's History

November 24, 1948

As the sewer project progress in Grahamsville interesting things continue to turn up. Most recent is part of an old corduroy roadbed which once traversed this area. As the large back-hoe dug deep across from Krum Brothers Store las week it encountered huge logs buried transversely from 3 to 5 feet below the present road bed. The extreme size and the remarkable state of their preservation are almost unbelievable. In view of the fact that they have lain buried for approximately 100 years it is amazing to find them still stout and resistant to the 20th century machines.

Mr. Laskin, the State Conservation Department Trapper who is working in this section, reports that he has trapped 116 foxes in the Grahamsville Section. With laboratory reports into November 1, examination has shown that of 29 of the animals were rabid.

Future Directions for Neversink Renaissance and the Town of Neversink as a Community

Dear community members,

I am reaching out to you today to encourage your attendance at an important meeting to be held on Wednesday, December 5th at 7PM at the Daniel Pierce Library. As you all know, my wife and I have moved out of the area and I have asked Helen Budrock from Sullivan Renaissance to facilitate a discussion about future directions for both Neversink Renaissance as an organization and the Town of Neversink as a community.

The goal of the meeting will be to solicit some open honest feedback from you -- as pillars of the community -- on the issues and problems currently facing Neversink and to chart a course for the future. The only way for me to effectively transition leadership of Neversink Renaissance is to understand how the organization fits into the big picture of where we are going as a town and what projects may be on the horizon.

My only expectation is that you come to the meeting with an open mind and a positive outlook toward the future.

I hope you will join us!

Sincerely,
Dave Moore

Nature Column - Linda Comando

A tribute to the memory of all of the Townsman Ladies that we have lost and loved so much... Peggy DeWire, Avril Pappa, Joan Hall, Polly Hill, Joyce Lockhart, Jean Helthaler, Karen Curry and Barbara Slater.

Our Thanksgiving issue would not be the same without remembering Peggy and her American Wild Turkey story.

Keeping with tradition, as no one could describe the American Wild Turkey better..

... American Wild Turkey

By Peggy DeWire

"Gobble, gobble," said the wild tom turkey sitting on a limb in a maple tree almost hidden in the leaves. "You caught me resting after my lunch of grasshoppers and seeds. I'm called Tom Two Toes and I'll tell you how I got named."

He settled himself more comfortably on the limb fluffing out his beautiful brown plumage, tail hanging down neatly folded and beard tassel on his chest swinging to and fro.

Two years ago when I was a small chick, my Mom moved me and my twelve brothers and sisters away from our nest on the ground hidden in the woods to the edge on an open field.

There we watched how she pecked at ants, bugs and berries (strawberries are my favorite). She showed us things that are good to eat. She walked along very slowly to keep her brood together and stopped often, spreading her wings so we could rest under their shade.

We came to a pond on our way to the next open meadow and the whole family waded in with Mom cackling at us to stay together and paddle quickly across.

All the splashing caught a snapping turtle's attention and it investigated, managing to bite off two toes of the last chick to struggle up on land, safely across. I limped along at first but I kept right up with my family after that awful experience.

I also remember my first flight one summer day when I was about two weeks old. Mom and all of us were feeding together in a field pecking at ants and grass seeds. My keen eyesight helped me get the smallest bits of food as well as keep a sharp lookout for danger.

Suddenly Mom flew up into a tree and landed on a limb six feet off the ground. From there she called perk, perk encouraging us to join her.

One by one we flapped out little wings to get up there, the smaller chicks landing short on the ground and launching themselves again and again till they succeeded. I made it on my first try and snuggled beside Mom proudly. After that day we never slept on the ground but always in a tree.

By the end of my first summer I was nearly as big as Mom and looked like her in my new brown-bronze plumage. My head and wattle turned red, white and blue, my wing feathers brown with white edging. Half-inch long yellow spurs grew on my legs. A grand five-inch brown bristle beard drooped from my chest.

My brothers and I practiced loud gobbling, dragging wing tips on the ground and spreading our tail feathers into wide showy fans.

All this gobbling commotion was too much for Mom and she drove all her young toms out of the flock with loud yelping cries, and led our sisters off and away.

During the winter it was very hard to find enough food until we joined some deer that scraped snow aside uncovering moss and grass. While they foraged, we turkeys with sharp eyesight watched every alert for danger. And then we ate.

I'm now a full-grown gobbler who controls the clearing you're standing in looking up at me. This spring I fought another tom and beat him in a knock-down fight for this spot.

Household Hints

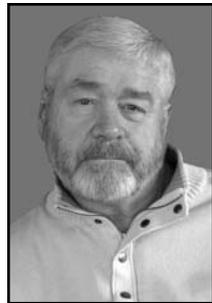

Get those Old Cloudy Glasses Ready for the Holidays

To rid drinking glasses of cloudiness or spots caused by hard water, heat up a pot of equal parts white vinegar and water (use full-strength vinegar if your glasses are very cloudy), and let them soak in it for 15-30 minutes. Give them a good scrubbing with a bottle brush, then rinse clean.

Some Die Nameless

Mysterious Book Report No. 351

by John Dwaine McKenna

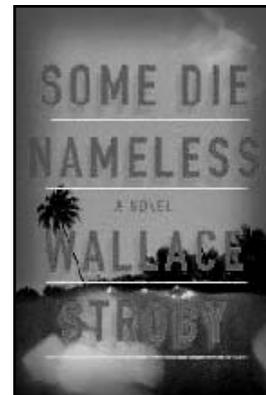

Every single human being on the planet has a past; the deeds, events and situations that have shaped us and made us into the persons we are today. Some of those experiences were happy and good . . . others, not so great . . . and a few of them we do our absolute best to put out of our minds forever. But sometimes, no matter how honest an effort, the past just won't stay in the rear-view mirror. Instead, it drives up, cruises on through, then cuts in front and runs you off of the big highway of life. (What a metaphor!) That's what happens to an ex-airborne army ranger named Ray Devlin in a propulsive new thriller that'll keep you nailed to the page long after you were supposed to be off somewhere, doing something else.

Some Die Nameless, (Mulholland Books/ Little Brown/ Hachette, $26.00, 337 pages, ISBN 978-0-316-44020-2) by Wallace Stroby, begins in Florida, where fifty-four year old Ray Devlin is semi-retired, living on his boat and off the grid. He takes odd jobs in construction to make ends meet, keeps to himself and does his best to put his past as a mercenary soldier behind him. He's seen action all over the world as a sergeant in a tight-knit group of commandos, working for a governmental contracting company run by an elusive man named Kemper. But after Rays last job in South America left him severely wounded, he recuperated, then walked away from life as a soldier of fortune and hasn't seen, or been in touch with any of his old comrades-in-arms for twenty years. He's surprised then, when one of the handful of men who went with him on that last fateful mission, a trooper under Devlins command named Bell, turns up at the south Florida marina where Ray's docked, looking to reconnect. In less time than it takes to drink a bottle of beer however, the two men are locked in a fight to the death.

At the same time, up in Philadelphia, the discovery of a decomposing corpse in an abandoned house triggers a young, ambitious reporters instincts for a major story, even though the failing newspaper she's working for doesn't want her to pursue it. She and Devlin are forced to team up as the two cases unfold, becoming evermore intertwined, sinister and deadly, with hitman and killers lurking on every page. If thrillers are your thing, you don't want to miss Some Die Nameless, because Wallace Stroby is one of the hottest crime fiction writers working today. He's fast becoming a national treasure, as well as one of the MBRs personal favorites!

Interview With The Author:

Wallace Stroby

by John Dwaine McKenna

We're fortunate this week that Wallace Stroby, one of crime fictions hottest young writers, was able and willing to take a short time-out from his swamped schedule down in south New Jersey to speak with the Mysterious Book Report about how he does what he does in such a compelling, forceful and so damned interesting way. It's an honor to speak with one who will most certainly become a giant in the genre. So with all that said, here's the first question:

Where do you write?

In my office at home. I can't write anywhere else and reach the level of concentration I need. I have friends and colleagues who write in public - in coffee shops, libraries, trains, etc - but I don't know how they do it. I'm easily distracted by - and hyper-sensitive to - what's going on around me.

Who's your favorite literary character?

I have a bunch. Of the ones I wish I'd created, foremost would be Will Graham from Thomas Harris' RED DRAGON, and Ray Hicks from Robert Stone's DOG SOLDIERS. They're both multi-dimensional characters in incredibly stressful situations. The same is true of James Lee Burke's Dave Robicheaux - 22 books later, he's still one of the most compelling characters in American fiction. He's a guy with more than his share of demons, but who still strives to do the right thing and live an honorable life.

And though she's not strictly a literary character, I'd include Jane Tennison from TV's PRIME SUSPECT, created by Lynda LaPlante and unforgettably played by Helen Mirren. A brilliant detective and usually the smartest person in the room, but not always right and not always likeable.

I've read, and re-read all of the Robicheaux novels, and I absolutely agree.

Do you plot-outline or wing it?

Once I have the set-up - the characters, situation, etc. - then I wing it. It feels like a more natural process that way. For me, too much advance planning saps the energy of the story, so that it becomes less a journey and more of a task. Sometimes, of course, you end up in blind alleys you hadn't anticipated, and then have to backtrack to find where you went wrong. So either approach is a trade-off.

Do you read your reviews

I dip into them occasionally to get the gist, but I don't read them all, and I try not to take them too much to heart. The exact same book can get a pan from one reviewer, and a rave from another. Of course, the bad ones hurt and the good ones are nice, but the only thing that's ever under your control is the actual writing.

As for dealing with negative reviews, I always quote Hyman Roth from GODFATHER II: "This is the business we've chosen."

What's your advice for aspiring writers?

There's only one piece of advice that means anything: Read a lot and write a lot. Read everything. Find a book you love and reverse-engineer it. Strip it down and take it apart until you see how it works, where the seams are, how the parts fit. Then forget all that and write. Hopefully everything you've processed will emerge organically.

How did your book first get published?

As always, there was a lot of luck involved. I'd finished a draft of my first book, THE BARBED-WIRE KISS, in 1999 or thereabouts and was lucky enough to attract the attention of the legendary agent Knox Burger, who represented Donald Westlake, Lawrence Sanders, Martin Cruz Smith and many others. He led me through a top-to-bottom rewrite of the mss. with some excellent advice and suggestions. Unfortunately, by the time that redraft was done, Knox, who was in his late 70s, had fallen ill and was selling his agency. In the meantime, through my newspaper job at the Newark Star-Ledger, I'd met a writer named Mark McGarrity, who was writing a series of mystery novels set in Ireland, under the pen name Bartholomew Gill. Mark read the mss. and thought his agent, Robin Rue at Writer's House, might like it. When Knox bowed out, I did another rewrite, then sent it to Robin in Feb. 2001. She sold it to St. Martin's Press shortly afterward. Unfortunately, Mark died in an accidental fall in 2002, a few months before the book came out.

Does your style make use of adjectives and adverbs?

I'd write a book totally free of adverbs if I could, but that's not possible (some adverbs, such as "slowly," are too specific to be eliminated). In general, I adhere to Elmore Leonard's Rules of Writing (though each of them has exceptions, as I'm sure Leonard himself would have admitted). Rule #4 is "Never use an adverb to modify the verb 'said'." "I'd add my own rule: If you're relying too much on adjectives and adverbs, then your sentences aren't clear enough to start with.

Elmore "Dutch" Leonard is one of my personal heroes. Many thanks-I enjoyed our time together and look forward to your next one. Stay in touch!

Wallace Stroby is an award-winning journalist and the author of eight novels, four of which feature professional thief Crissa Stone, whom Kirkus Reviews named "Crime fiction's best bad girl ever."

A Long Branch, N.J., native, he's a lifelong resident of the Jersey Shore. His debut novel THE BARBED-WIRE KISS, which The Washington Post called "a scorching first novel ...full of attention to character and memory and, even more, to the neighborhoods of New Jersey," was a finalist for the 2004 Barry Award for Best First Novel. His 2010 novel GONE 'TIL NOVEMBER was picked as a Kirkus Best Book of the Year, as was the second Crissa Stone novel KINGS OF MIDNIGHT. In 2012, the Crissa Stone novels were optioned by Showtime Networks for development.

A graduate of Rutgers University, Stroby was an editor at the Star-Ledger of Newark, Tony Soprano's hometown newspaper, for 13 years.

Tri-Valley Teacher Wins Prestigious Award

(From Pg. 1) The award was then voted on by the Region 7 board.

At NYSATA's annual conference held in Buffalo this year from November 15-17, Ms. Conger will officially be presented with the award. Participants and awardees from the conference will be in attendance.

Ms. Conger is truly an asset to our school and community. This award is very much deserved, and we are extremely proud of her for her accomplishment. Way to go, Ms. Conger--you make a difference!

HEAP: Warming up to it... Stay warm this winter

You don't need to suffer in cold silence in the months ahead, notes County Manager Josh Potosek.

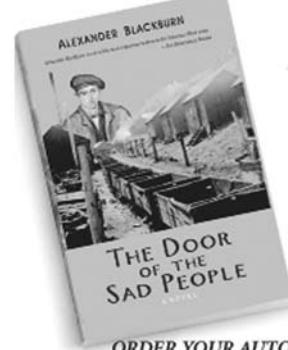

"Most people think you must have an extremely small income - or none at all - to qualify for the NYS Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)," he explains, "but actually the income thresholds are quite reasonable. The whole idea is to keep all of our citizens safe and warm."

HEAP opens for this winter season on November 13, 2018, running through March 15, 2019 unless extended by the State. Eligible applicants can receive financial help in paying for electricity, natural gas, oil, coal, propane, wood/wood pellets, kerosene or corn.

On January 2, 2019, the State's Emergency HEAP benefit will become available for those who are in immediate danger of running out of fuel or having their utility turned off.

New York State also offers funds in the spring for cooling and for heating/ventilation system repair.

To find out more, visit: sullivan.us/Departments/Familyservices/Temporaryassistanceprograms/HEAP/Applyforheap or email HEAP@co.sullivan.ny.us.

The Door of the Sad People is a coming-of-age story that takes place against the background of the Colorado coalmining wars long-remembered for the Ludlow Massacre of 1914. Visionary, the novel traces the tyrannous countenance of a corporate society to its origins in humankind's "sad" limitations and flaws.

The Olive Jar - By Carol LaMonda

I used to think that happiness could be measured by stuff. Now, when I have too much stuff, I realize that stuff is just stuff. It can be lost in a heartbeat by fire, flood, theft, and rot. Stuff is what you accumulate, now what makes you content or happy. In fact, stuff is hard work to maintain; it needs to be dusted, washed, updated, and cared for. My goal now is to get rid of the stuff I have. My plan is to have one thing leave my house everyday. I have kept to this plan for almost a year, but, unfortunately, I think I will be the age of Methuselah when I have things under control.

I do not usually throw things away. I did, however, part with the extensive collection of empty plastic flower pots that reached from floor to ceiling in my garage. My plan is to relocate or return things to where they can do the most good. For instance, my friend Pat mentioned she needed new potholders. Eureka! I can now deplete my stash of two dozen potholders, bought at craft fairs from other sewing friends, that are tucked away in some plastic container because they were too nice to use.

When my cousins lost a lot of their belongings, along with most of their homes, when Super Hurricane Michael devastated Mexico Beach and the lovely, sugar-sanded Gulf beaches along the panhandle, I started rethinking my own stuff.

I realized that most of my "treasured" belongings will be future yard sale bargains. I can picture my kids selling Westmoreland and Fenton milk glass collections for a quarter a piece. My clothes will be stuffed into some roadside collection bin.

My real treasures are my friends and family. They have no sale price (well, maybe just one!) Friends are the ones that stick by you whether you have stuff or not. They let you retell the stories they've heard many times before: they laugh when you repeat corny jokes, and they will cry with you when they share your sadness or disappointment. They have your back no matter which way you turn. Friends cannot be taken from you, even the ones that have passed on because they left you the good memories that have become part of you.

I will continue to repurpose my stuff, but I shall hold fast to the friendships I have shared over the years. I will always remember what my mom wrote to me in a yearbook, "Make new friends, but keep the old; for one is silver, and the other is gold."

DEC Announces Appointment of Bernard "Bernie" Rivers as Director of the Division of Law Enforcement

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos announced the appointment of Captain Bernard "Bernie" Rivers to the position of Director of the Division of Law Enforcement (DLE).

A Hudson Valley native with 27 years of experience with DEC, Rivers has served as Acting Director since March following the retirement of former Director Joseph Schneider. As DLE Director, Rivers will lead 289 Environmental Conservation Police Officers (ECOs) across the state in the enforcement arm of DEC, tasked with safeguarding the state's natural resources and enforcing the Environmental Conservation Law (ECL) that protects fish and wildlife, environmental quality and the citizens of New York State.

"In the time Bernie Rivers served as Acting Director he impressed me with both his leadership skills and his dedication and commitment to DEC and our Division of Law Enforcement," Commissioner Seggos said. "Director Rivers is an experienced Conservation Officer, and like the men and women he leads, he demonstrates tremendous resolve to uphold our mission to protect New York's environment, natural resources and wildlife, and the public. I wish Director Rivers congratulations as he assumes his new responsibilities."

Rivers, 55, a 1981 graduate of Minisink Valley High School, has more than 37 years of law enforcement experience, having spent the last 27 years as an ECO. A graduate of Empire State College and the FBI National Academy, Rivers began his career in law enforcement as a NYS Corrections Officer. He also served as a part-time police officer in Mount Hope, Wallkill, Chester, and Montgomery police departments. He graduated from DLE's 9th Basic School in 1992, and has served in several positions as an ECO in Long Island, New York City, and the Hudson Valley, including as a Uniformed Officer, Investigator, and as both a Regional Lieutenant and Supervising Captain.

"I am honored to have been selected by the Commissioner to oversee DEC's Division of Law Enforcement," Rivers said. "This has been the job and career I've always wanted since my senior year of high school when I first met an Environmental Conservation Police Officer who spoke to our law enforcement class at Orange/Ulster County BOCES."

Rivers most recently served in DEC's Central Office in Albany as the head of DLE's Office of Professional Standards. A father of two adult sons, Rivers lives in the Hudson Valley with his girlfriend of two years and her two children.

The oldest law enforcement organization in New York State, ECOs were first appointed as Fish & Game Protectors in 1880. In addition to enforcing all laws of the state, ECOs focus on fish and wildlife poaching, the illegal sale of endangered species, water pollution, policing the commercial fishing industry and the timber industry, emissions enforcement, illegal mining and any issue that affects air, land or water quality violations.

UC Executive Mike Hein Dedicates Lecture Hall at SUNY Ulster in Honor of Captain Jack Rose

County Executive Mike Hein with the Family of Captain Jack Rose

Stone Ridge, N.Y. - Ulster County Executive Mike Hein was joined by the family of the late Mount Marion Firefighter Captain Jack Rose, Steve Peterson the Director of Ulster County Emergency Management, Everett Erichsen the Deputy Director of Ulster County Emergency Services and Fire Coordinator, SUNY Ulster President Dr. Alan Roberts, Chief Dave Ayers of the Mount Marion Fire Department and Chief James Mullen of the Centerville Fire District, to dedicate the Captain Jack Rose Memorial Lecture Hall in honor of the 19-year-old Mount Marion firefighter who died in the line of duty in 2015. Captain Rose's passion and commitment to pursuing a career as a firefighter led him to realize his life-long dream by joining the Mount Marion Fire Department at the age of 16.

The County worked together with SUNY Ulster to renovate the Burroughs 120 lecture hall, creating a modern state-of-the-art lecture hall that will host critically important programs and courses as part of the new county-wide comprehensive Ulster County Fire Training Center program. The Fire Training Center is part of the County Executive's Firefighter Investment Recruitment Service and Training (F.I.R.S.T.) Program, and includes a shared services network plan at multiple locations with significant classroom instruction provided at SUNY Ulster and two satellite sites providing live burn and extrication training. The plan ensures that all 50 fire departments in Ulster County will have convenient access to a training facility.

Michael P. Hein, Ulster County Executive

"Captain Rose's legacy will continue on through the education of the countless students that will learn within the lecture hall now named in his honor and it will also

"I believe ensuring our firefighters and all first responders have access to modern technology and the best possible education and training is our humble obligation to the brave men and women who place their lives at risk each day to protect our community. I would like to thank the Rose Family and his fellow firefighters for participating in this very special event honoring Captain Rose's memory."

The Rose Family

"We are humbled that the Memorial Lecture Hall at Ulster County Community College is dedicated to the memory and honor of our son, brother, and uncle, Jack Rose. We want to thank County Executive Mike Hein and Dr. Alan P Roberts President of Ulster County Community College and everyone involved in making this honor happen. We believe that this is so fitting as Jack was very dedicated to training and furthering, not only his own knowledge and skills, but those of his fellow firefighters as well. We know that Jack would be so proud that you saw fit to honor this memory this way. For all firefighters and first responders who attend lectures and conferences in this new hall, please know that the Rose Family thanks all of you for your service and dedication. Get home safely after each and every call."

Mike Hein with the Family of Captain Jack Rose and members of the Mt. Marion Fire Department and Centerville Fire District.

Steve Peterson, Director of Ulster County Emergency Management and Services

"Captain Rose was devoted to his family, profession and community; he ran toward danger to protect others from it, and rendered aid to many during their time of greatest need," said Steve Peterson, Director of Ulster County Emergency Management and Services. "The Captain Jack Rose Memorial Hall will help provide Ulster County's firefighters with the training and education they need to stay safe while helping others. I would like to thank County Executive Hein for helping to ensure that future generations will continue to learn about Captain Rose's legacy." (Contd. Pg. 7)

The Family Memoir, PROSILIO...

... in Greek means "Toward the Sun," was written by Carol Olsen LaMonda. Carol writes the column "The Olive Jar" for Ye Olde Tri-Valley Townsman. This local author has been busy guesting at book clubs who have chosen this local memoir as their book choice. Each year, as summer approaches, the story of a carefree vacation in the Catskills should be added to your summer "must-read" list. The memoir is available at Amazon or Barnes and Noble on-line as a soft or hard cover or as a downloadable e-book for Nook or Kindle. Lecture Hall at SUNY Ulster in Honor of Captain Jack Rose

Everett Erichsen, Deputy Director of Emergency Services/Fire Coordinator

"Captain Jack Rose was an exemplary member of the fire service demonstrating professionalism, integrity, and commitment beyond his years," said Everett Erichsen, Deputy Director of Emergency Services and Fire Coordinator. "There is no better way I can find for us to remember him than by dedicating this lecture hall to him for those from the fire service who will train here through the years to come. We must respect the memory of every firefighter who has made the supreme sacrifice and learn from it. I thank County Executive Hein for this important tribute which will help in carrying on Captain Rose's memory."

Dr. Alan Roberts, SUNY Ulster President

"SUNY Ulster was pleased to collaborate with Ulster County and Ulster County Executive Mike Hein on the renovation of the College's Burroughs 120 Lecture Hall into a state-of-the-art lecture facility," said Dr. Alan Roberts, SUNY Ulster President. "SUNY Ulster students engaged in academic coursework (primarily STEM courses ranging from chemistry to Veterinary Technology are held in the room) and firefighters in Ulster County (participating in training programs and certifications) will benefit from the use of this newly renovated space on the College's Stone Ridge Campus as well as the SUNY Ulster community at large. The significantly upgraded technology, the improved sight-lines in a relatively large lecture hall, and the enriched acoustics and seating all contribute to an enhanced learning experience for our students and ensures they are learning in facilities that are contemporary and designed to meet the needs of a generation of digital natives. We were deeply honored to memorialize Captain Jack Rose's service to his community as a courageous volunteer firefighter in the naming of, Captain Jack Rose Memorial Hall."

Utilitarian Art Exhibit and Opening Reception at the Catskill Center's Erpf Gallery

ARKVILLE, NY - The 3rd annual exhibit, Function or Form: Utilitarian Art, will be on display in the Erpf Gallery in Arkville, November 19, 2017 through January 4, 2019. It will feature beautiful functional items created by local artists.

An Artist's Reception will be held on Friday, November 16, from 6-8 PM. Many handmade items we use daily are not only useful, but are also beautiful, ie. homemade furniture, clothing, pottery, quilts... In 2016, the Catskill Center's Erpf Gallery hosted the first Utilitarian show to celebrate local people that create art with both function and beautiful form. The show was such a success that the Utilitarian Art show has become an annual event. This year's show will feature some returning artists and several new artists.

Artists exhibiting in 2018 include: Rosalind Dickinson - pottery; Howard Harrison - lights; Annie Hayes - hooked rugs; Linda Heller - ceramic plates; Susan Kukle - jewelry and floor coverings; Lisa Marie Layman - soaps; Judy Mensch - hand decorated napkins; Betsy Gude - shoulder bags; Michael Tweed - guitars.

Function or Form: Utilitarian Art, is on display November 19, 2017 through January 4, 2019 with an opening reception Friday, November 16 from 6-8pm. The Erpf Gallery, located at 43355 Route 28 in Arkville, NY is open Mon - Fri 9:30 am to 4:30 pm.

Minnewaska State Park Preserve in Ulster County has Parks and Trails for Non-hunters to Explore During Hunting Season

A vast portion of this favorite hiking destination--basically, the area south of Fly Brook and Sanders Kill--is off-limits to hunters. A hunting map provided by the park shows the zones. Minnewaska State Park Preserve was once the site of two mountaintop hotels. Many of the scenic trails and historic carriageways wind their way around two "sky lakes." Lake Minnewaska and Lake Awosting are the centerpieces of the park preserve, from which most other scenic attractions can be reached. These lakes are well known for the exceptional clarity of their water and their aquamarine color. Go to <https://www.nyn-jtc.org/park/minnewaska-state-park> for Minnewaska, where you can download a pdf of the map.

The southernmost promontory of the Shawangunks is a massive cliff called Sam's Point, which affords broad views extending from the Hudson Highlands in the southeast to High Point State Park and the Kittatinnies in the southwest. The name "Sam's Point" has also been used to designate the plateau-like mountain-scape north of the promontory formed of thick slabs of Shawangunk conglomerate. A miniature forest of evergreen heaths, blueberries, and pitch pines finds a tenuous foothold in this harsh, rocky environment. According to The Nature Conservancy, "the majestic views and unique landscapes of Sam's Point represent one of the best examples of a ridgetop dwarf pine barrens in the world."

Sinterklaas! Send off Celebration in Kingston

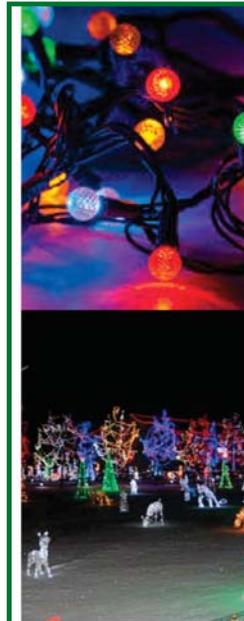

(From Pg. 1) The Sinterklaas Festivities draw on the Hudson Valley's Dutch heritage, but with some modern day twists. Children are the focus - becoming kings and queens for the day, turning the switches of the original story into royal scepters. Children make scepters and crowns for themselves at the Crowns and Branches workshops. (Contd. Pg. 11)

Blossom Rozman at ERH Foundation Annual Gala and Silent Auction

On Saturday, October 20, 2018, the Ellenville Regional Hospital Foundation honored Blossom Rozman at its annual Gala and Silent Auction. The event was held at The White Wolf Restaurant and Lounge in Napanoch, NY. Presenting the award to Ms. Rozman was William Brown, Chairman of the Ellenville Regional Hospital Foundation Board, and Steven L. Kelley, President and CEO of Ellenville Regional Hospital.

Blossom Rozman

Ms. Rozman has been a member of the Ellenville community since 1956, having moved here with her husband Joe Among her numerous community activities, Blossom has been an ERH Auxiliary Board member for many years. In that capacity, she has served as co-chair of the Auxiliary's Annual Luncheon Committee. In addition, in the early 1960's, Blossom envisioned and developed the Auxiliary's annual NYS Theater trip fundraiser, which still continues today!

The Foundation would like to recognize the generous sponsors of the Gala: Athenahealth, Coombe, Bender and Co., Constable Custodial Services, Inc., Emergency Medical Associates, Gillette Creamery, Health Quest, Mobile Life Support Services, Nevele Resort & ProSport Campus, Orange Regional Medical Center, Sterling National Bank, The Institute for Family Health, Travers O'keefe, Villa Veritas Foundation, White Wolf Restaurant and Lounge, and the Westchester Medical Center Health Network.

Centerpieces for the Gala were once again generously created and donated by the members of the Shawangunk Garden Club.

Ellenville Regional Hospital is a leader in healthcare innovation, collaboration and quality care. It is our mission to bring advanced services to our community and beyond. Some of our current top initiatives include our Opioid Abuse Reduction Program, implementing a Hologic Genius™ 3D Mammography™ unit and our innovative Swing Bed Care with our Barthel Index Project. Both our Opioid Abuse Reduction Project and the Swing Bed Project have gained statewide and national attention. Both initiatives are being replicated in sizable hospitals and healthcare systems statewide based on our effective results. Proceeds from the Gala, which raised over $70,000, supports the development of such programs and technological advancements to keep the mission of the hospital thriving. For example, funding has supported the recent purchase of the Hologic Genius™ 3D Mammography™ Unit, which has the fastest compression time and provides better, earlier breast cancer detection.

The Scene Too

By Jane Harrison

So much to tell you about! Thursday, Nov 8, I was part of the audience for Historian John Conway's talk "Sleeping With The Fishes" about the relationship of Murder Inc in the 1930s to the 1940s with Sullivan County at the Fallsburg Library. Now this is something I heard about from natives, particularly around Hurleyville and Loch Sheldrake, from almost my first day here. Now according to Mr Conway, 8 bodies - 6 found, 2 unaccounted for - were attributed to this area directly connected to Murder Inc. I believe this to be true. But, according to the natives again, that was then. There was still the 40s, 50s and 60s. One notable State Patrolman said to me once "I hope they never drain 'that' lake".

If you have never been one of John Conway's talks, you really need too. He will be leading a talk/walk on Saturday, Dec. 1 down the Rails to Trails in Hurleyville at 2pm, that will include information on the 1907 train engine explosion that left three crew member dead. He will be joined by Eve Minson, Healing Gardens Coordinator for the Center for Discovery who will speak about the ecosystem of the wetlands along the trail.

All this is part of the December 1st Holiday in Hurleyville. Mark it on your calendar. See alpacas, stop in at Fiber on Main, pop into the Hurleyville Market or check out the dance troupes at the Hurleyville Arts Center. Last year they had two groups, Debbie Fisher and Company and Lion Zen, performing outside in weather that was not conducive to humans. I sincerely hope they have more respect this year. Aside from that, I had a most enjoyable day and look forward to another this year.

Within the next few weeks, I will be visiting Sullivan County's newest animal rescue sanctuary. This sanctuary will be one of the few to be a sanctuary for neglected farm animals. ARTHUR'S ACRES ANIMAL SANCTUARY near Parksville was featured recently in the Democrat and Todd Friedman and I have been in contact for a while. I look forward to covering this good work. This week:

Saturday Nov 17, THE AQUAINTANCES will be at the Pickled Owl in Hurleyville; 6:30. This is an excellent group of guys and well worth going to see

If Italian is more your thing, go see my other friends Friday Nov 16 and Saturday Nov 17; AL DEFINO and LARRY RAVDIN will be at SORELLA'S in Kauneonga Lake

And Sunday brunch at the Catskill Distillery, BARRY SCHIENFELD AND FRIENDS

Get out and enjoy, before winter really sets in!

Sinterklaas! Send off Celebration in Kingston

(From Pg. 8)

They will be showcasing a variety of artists and makers from the community to celebrate the wonderfully rich maritime and immigrant history of the Rondout.

When the early Dutch settlers came to America, they brought with them their venerated old bishop. St. Nicholas and their favorite holiday, Sinterklaas. Indeed, the Dutch explorers dedicated their first church on the island of Manhattan, in 1642, to Sinterklaas. When the British took control of New Amsterdam in 1664, they merged Sinterklaas with their Father Christmas - the merry, roly-poly, Falstaffian figure in high boots.

Over the next few generations, Sinterklaas found his way into American literature. In 1809, writer Washington Irving (a man who lived not far from Rhinebeck) created a jolly Sinterklaas for his popular Knickerbocker Tales. Then in 1822, an Episcopal priest named Clement Moore (who also lived near to Rhinebeck) wrote "A Visit from St. Nicholas" which featured a jolly old elf, his descent down a chimney on Christmas Eve, and a sleigh drawn by eight tiny reindeer. The Father Christmas image stuck, but he acquired a new name - Santa Claus - a direct derivation from Sinterklaas.

Today, in the Hudson Valley, we celebrate Sinterklaas in both traditional and new ways. We move away from the commercial Santa and back to the wonders that began the legend - The Good King, the Noble Soul, the one who brings light out of darkness, befriends children and animals, and inspires our souls.

What is the meaning of the Crowns and Branches that are made by and carried by the Children in the Parade? Since St. Nicholas loved children so much, it makes sense on his name day, that children - who at all other times of the year are the least powerful people in the society - are turned into the most powerful for just one day. Children are crowned kings and queens!

in our Sinterklaas story is transformed by the power imagination and art into a symbol of empowerment and love to become the Branch - the Royal Scepter - a symbol of creative power in the hands of today's children.

The rods are turned to Royal Scepters and the Children are crowned royalty for the day!

There will be workshops in both Kingston and Rhinebeck for children to create their Crowns and Branches at the Crowns & Branches Workshop at The Maritime Museum Barn Noon-3:00pm.

Hundreds of beautiful branches will be laid out alongside lots of beautiful, glittery, and fanciful materials-jewels, ribbons, glitter, lace, streamers-with which the children can create their royal garb! At the end of the day each child has a scepter to carry in the Parades and to take home. Each child will be asked to tie 3 WISHES onto their branch - one for family, for community and for the World.

And in the same location, is the Wish Ladies, who help children make their wishes.

The STARS are a unique addition we've made to the Sinterklaas celebrations. These STARS make families, friends, and relations the active myth makers of our community and its future!

From the moment you take possession of your star, you assume a key role in a community ritual. On the last Saturday in November, carry your stars in the Maritime Children's Parade in Kingston as you see Sinterklaas off for his trip to Holland.

On the first Saturday of December, carry your stars in the Children's Starlight Parade in Rhinebeck. Hundreds of your neighbors, friends, and family join in an illuminated pageant through the heart of town.

A gathering constellation lights the path for the many children who, bedecked with their crowns and branches, are the honored Kings and Queens of the Day. At the end of the procession, everyone gathers for the final ritual of the pageant. The Master of Ceremonies calls upon all those present to honor our children, our hope for the future, our joy of today.

He asks you to bow down on one knee to the children and hold your STAR at the children's waist level, elevating the children on a sea of stars above everyone in the community. Then you are asked to stand again and raise your star above your heads - thus placing you, the children and the entire community in its proper place in the firmament - all of us as one and at peace under the stars. And you can bring your star back next year, adding to an ever-expanding universe of stars, helping to nurture a Rhinebeck tradition.

This year the STARS are available online and at select stores in Rhinebeck and Kingston, including on the festival days.

THE HAVDALAH

Just before the Children's Starlight Parade begins in Rhinebeck, a special ceremony, havdalah, takes place at the foot of the hill on West Market Street. Led by the children and folks from the Rhinebeck Hebrew School and Temple Emmanuel, this beautiful Jewish Ceremony marks the end of the Jewish Sabbath and opens up the secular time of The Sinterklaas Parade. The Havdalah Ceremony weaves together all of our community in a web of interdependence, symbolized by intertwined candles.

After the Parade the beginning of the Christian Sabbath starts with the Living Nativity at the Reformed Church.

Governor Cuomo Announces Cashless Tolling at Yonkers Toll Barrier to Go Live

Governor Andrew M. Cuomo announced cashless tolling will go live at the Yonkers Toll Barrier (I-87 North and South) early Friday morning, November 16, with switchover operations beginning at approximately 6 p.m. the night before, weather permitting. The official switchover to cashless tolling is expected to take place shortly after midnight following a brief traffic stoppage for northbound and southbound motorists. When fully operational, cashless tolling is expected to improve traffic flow on the Thruway corridor that serves more than 17.5 million vehicles per year, which accounts for more than 6.5 percent of the Thruway's overall toll traffic volume.

"New York is leading the nation by making historic investments in infrastructure, ensuring our transportation network is fit for the 21st century," Governor Cuomo said. "The implementation of cashless tolling in Yonkers is a critical step in our efforts to minimize traffic disruptions, ease congestion and decrease carbon emissions, creating a smarter, greener New York for generations to come."

When cashless tolling goes live, motorists traveling through the Yonkers Toll Barrier will drive under a gantry with state-of-the-art sensors and cameras that read E-ZPass tags and take license plate images so vehicles no longer have to stop to pay the toll. Vehicles with E-ZPass tags are automatically charged and Vehicles without E-ZPass tags will have their license plate image captured and a toll bill will be mailed to the registered owner of each vehicle. Customers who pay using Tolls By Mail will pay the same toll rate as previously paid by cash customers, and E-ZPass customers with New York accounts will continue to receive a five percent discount.

Once the new tolling system is fully operational, the existing Yonkers Toll Plaza will be removed in several phases, which will result in altered traffic patterns. For a short period of time, drivers will continue to travel through existing toll lanes at reduced speeds without stopping until the booths are removed and the road reconfiguration is completed. Drivers are strongly urged to use caution around the toll plaza during this time, as it is an active construction zone. The posted speed limit when traveling through the toll lanes will be 20 MPH.

The Yonkers Toll Barrier will become the Thruway's fifth cashless tolling location, in addition to the Gov. Mario M. Cuomo Bridge, Grand Island Bridges and Harriman Toll Barrier. As Governor Cuomo announced in June 2018, all remaining fixed toll barriers in the lower Hudson Valley will be converted to cashless tolling by the end of 2018. The remaining barriers include New Rochelle (I-95) and Spring Valley (commercial traffic only). The Thruway's ticketed system (I-87/I-90 from exit 16 - exit 50 and exit 55 - exit 60) is scheduled to be converted to cashless tolling by the end of 2020.

As part of the Thruway's transition to cashless tolling, the Thruway Authority is encouraging all motorists to sign up for E-ZPass NY and save on tolls across the state, including a five percent discount along the entire 570-mile New York State Thruway. E-ZPass offers a variety of discount plans and payment options to fit the needs of every motorist, including Pay Per Trip, which is linked to a bank account, not a credit card, and pays tolls incurred once per day and a prepaid E-ZPass account balance is not required.

E-ZPass On-the-Go tags can be purchased at 26 Thruway Service Areas system-wide, more than 800 locations across the state including select grocery and convenience stores, and government offices, state-operated DMV offices, and select cash toll lanes across the Thruway's 570-mile system.

Average County Tax Bill Will Decrease Under Proposed 2019 Sullivan County Budget Solid Waste Access Fee to Go Down by a Third

Monticello, NY - Building upon the vastly improved economy and bright future of the region, Sullivan County Manager Joshua Potosek today presented a 2019 Tentative Sullivan County Budget to the Legislature that promises to reduce property owners' County tax bills.

"As proposed by my office, the 2019 Tentative Sullivan County Budget invests in what's important to our residents: transportation, access to government, economic development, community beautification, and broadband connectivity," Potosek says. "At the same time, however, it does not burden taxpayers with further costs. In fact, it reduces them."

The $235,196,663 budget, as currently proposed, stays under the state-mandated property tax increase cap, and thanks to a 4.5% increase in the County's total taxable assessed value, the average property taxpayer will see the County portion of their tax bill decrease by 1.6%, or approximately $19 per $100,000 of assessed value.

Sullivan County Manager
Joshua Potosek

It additionally proposes a $1.9 million decrease in the Solid Waste Access Fee, dropping the commercial rate from $300 to $200 per year and the residential rate from $120 to $80 per year.

Full details of the budget are available at www.sullivanny.us (click on "County Manager's Office" in the dropdown "Find a Department" menu, then click on "Budget" in the left margin).

Highlights include:

- $8.8 million for road and bridgework throughout the County, in addition to an already-approved $10 million bond that's replacing five aging bridges
- An additional $900,000 to maintain the Sullivan County Land Bank's incredibly successful pace in acquiring and rehabbing/demolishing eyesore structures
- $200,000 for local towns and villages to demolish unsafe structures via our RUST Program
- $200,000 to undertake an environmental analysis of potential shovel-ready sites along Old Route 17 in the towns of Liberty and Thompson
- $200,000 for a broadband pilot project that will bring high-speed Internet access to underserved areas of the Village of Monticello and Town of Thompson - if successful, this venture can be replicated Countywide, utilizing existing County communications towers
- $150,000 for new Public Transportation routes, set to debut this April
- $50,000 additional for the Legislature's Discretionary Funds Program, expanding the County's assistance to deserving nonprofits and community groups
- $40,000 to update historical signage Countywide
- Adding a clerk in the Department of Motor Vehicles Office to reduce wait times
- $15,000 more for the Sullivan County Youth Bureau to expand its reach and assistance to youth programs Countywide
- Funding to increase the minimum wage for all County employees to $15 an hour, beyond the state mandate, in order to attract and retain qualified personnel in a competitive market

The budget also provides the necessary funds to operate two jails for 6-9 months while personnel, inmates and equipment are gradually transferred from the old jail to the new facility.

This proposal takes into account costs that are out of the County's control, including a projected 7.5% hike in health insurance premiums and a $2 million increase in foster care expenses.

Legislators now have until December 13 to review, discuss and adopt the budget. Public hearings on the budget proposal will be held on December 11 at 5:30 p.m. and December 13 at 9:30 a.m. in the Hearing Room of the Sullivan County Government Center in Monticello.

Ulster County Maintains "AA" Bond Rating as County Executive Hein Continues to Expand and Improve County Services S&P Global Rankings Cites Strength of County's Financial Management and Budgetary Performance as Factors Leading to Positive Rating

Kingston, N.Y. - Ulster County Executive Mike Hein is pleased to announce that the County has maintained its strong 'AA' overall credit rating in the latest S&P Global Ratings report. In recognition of the County Executive's commitment to excellence in fiscal management, the report notes that Ulster County's management is "strong, with good financial policies and practices." The report also credits the County for its budgetary flexibility, noting that the available fund balance is sufficient to allow for future capital spending and tax relief purposes.

"Especially as we move through the 2019 budget process, we are proud that bond rating agencies continue to acknowledge our financial strength under County Executive Hein's leadership," said Commissioner of Finance Burt Gulnick. "Our strong financial footing is the bedrock that allows us to pursue the County Executive's ambitious agenda for new and expanded County services, such as our $70 million investment in roads, bridges and trails and the Brighter Futures Initiative to positively impact generational poverty."

With the County's continued strength in the eyes of bond rating agencies comes a benefit to taxpayers in the form of lower borrowing costs. Particularly as interest rates continue to climb, a strong bond rating makes it possible for the County to continue to invest in long-term projects that require bond financing.

In its RatingsDirect® report, S&P Global Ratings has assigned a bond rating of 'AA' to Ulster County's previously issued bonds, which is consistent with last year's rating. The agency also noted that it sees Ulster County's financial condition as "stable," which indicates no anticipated change in the bond rating over the next two years. Credit ratings range from a top rating of 'AAA' to 'D' for cases where the debt is in default, or for debt issuers who have not met their financial obligations.

UC Executive Mike Hein Hosts Interfaith Security Forum Following Pittsburgh Tragedy - Religious Leaders Joined Local Law Enforcement Agencies to Discuss Common-Sense Practices To Increase Safety At Houses of Worship (From Pg. 9)

Ulster County Executive Mike Hein

"Houses of worship are, by definition, open and welcoming places rather than secure fortresses," said Ulster County Executive Mike Hein. "As such, they are inherently vulnerable to acts of random violence. But we can and must take common-sense steps to protect those who practice their faith peacefully, and to do our best to avoid the kind of tragedy that has befallen other communities across the nation. In the wake of the recent events in Pittsburgh, I felt compelled to convene this meeting to help provide the information and resources that our faith communities need in order to better protect both themselves and their congregations."

The forum, which was held at the Kingston Center of SUNY Ulster on Mary's Avenue in Kingston, provided an opportunity for participants to learn about best practices and an opportunity to ask frank and honest questions to law enforcement professionals. Following the forum, religious leaders are encouraged to work with the New York State Police and other local law enforcement agencies to conduct security evaluations of their houses of worship.

"I am grateful to Captain Drake, the New York State Police and our local law enforcement agencies for their willingness to work with local houses of worship to address the issues and needs that are specific to their particular locations," said County Executive Hein.

Captain Michael Drake, New York State Police

"Within hours of the shooting in Pittsburgh, County Executive Hein called me to discuss his concerns about security at local houses of worship," said Captain Michael Drake of the New York State Police, who facilitated Thursday's forum. "We immediately launched into a planning process together to ensure that our community is as well-prepared and protected as possible, and with the hope that we can avoid future acts of violence. I thank the County Executive for his leadership, my colleagues in local law enforcement for their participation and their dedication to their communities, and the participants for their thoughtful and insightful questions. I look forward to continuing to work with our faith-based organizations to help them achieve a careful balance of safety and openness."

Any religious organization or house of worship that was unable to attend Thursday's forum is encouraged to reach out to Captain Drake at the New York State Police with any questions or to request assistance with security measures. Catskill Art Society, will present Summerland

LIVINGSTON MANOR, NY, The Laundry King, a Project of the Catskill Art Society, will present Summerland, an audio work for 24 computer-controlled telegraph sounders by Matthew Ostrowski. The Laundry King, 65 Main Street, Livingston Manor, NY. Gallery Hours: Saturday, December 8, Sunday, December 9, 11:00am - 6:00pm. Opening Reception: Saturday, December 8, 4:00-6:00pm

About the exhibition:

Samuel F. B. Morse's electromagnetic telegraph, commercially available in 1844, was history's first readily available system of instantaneous communication over great distances. Morse himself, although anxious to bring the world together through his invention, did not want to bring it closer. He often railed against vague foreign conspiracies and was a fierce opponent of immigration. For him, this new technology was as much a way of keeping people apart as bringing them together.

The achievement of mastery over the invisible force of electricity stirred great interest in the potential existence of other forces which might offer means of communicating with points even farther removed: the realms inhabited by departed spirits. This movement was born four years after the introduction of the telegraph: Adolescent sisters Kate and Maggie Fox reported mysterious tapping sounds in their house near Rochester, New York, which they attributed to the ghost of a murdered man buried in the basement. The news rapidly spread, and within a few years both of the Fox sisters achieved fame as professional mediums, their bodies acting as transmitters between the two worlds. Mediums and séances sprang up everywhere, marking the beginning of Modern Spiritualism, a religion oriented around communication with the Summer Land, or spirit-world.

The electromechanical technology of the telegraph and the spiritual technology of mediumistic communication remained closely linked throughout the infancy of the communications era. While 'electricians' such as Samuel Morse and Benjamin Franklin often appeared at the other end of the spiritual telegraph, as it was often called, respected engineers such as Cromwell Varley, who laid the first transatlantic cable, and Sir Oliver Lodge, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, were confirmed Spiritualists.

In the context of contemporary magical thinking about media, Summerland looks back at the archaeology of communications, seizing from the ether the dead voices of two individuals at the tangled nexus of 19th-century information technology: Samuel Morse and Kate Fox. Attempting to reproduce their words through taps and clicks, texts from Morse's articles on immigration and Fox's automatic writing encounters with the inhabitants of the Summer Land are materialized in an electromagnetic séance of digitized speech.

Summerland, sponsored by Harvestworks, is made possible by the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.

SCDW's 'Rabbit Hole' to go to Statewide Competition

(Hurleyville, NY) The Sullivan County Dramatic Workshop production of David Lindsay-Abaire's Rabbit Hole staged at the Rivoli Theatre in July has been chosen to go on to Statewide competition at the Theatre Association of New York State (TANYS) Festival in Auburn, New York. In preparation for Festival and in order to offset the costs associated with taking the show to statewide competition, a dress rehearsal is being opened to the public for one night only - Wednesday, November 14th at the Sullivan County Museum in Hurleyville. If you missed this powerful production in July, you have one more opportunity to catch it now - if you've seen it already, come see it again - and help the Cast and Crew on their way to Festival.

Winner of the 2007 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, Rabbit Hole is an intensely emotional examination of grief, laced with wit, insightfulness, compassion and searing honesty. Becca and Howie Corbett had a picture-perfect family life in the suburbs of New York until a random, tragic accident took the life of their four-year old son. Rabbit Hole delves into the complexity of a family navigating deep grief and learning what it means to try and regain a meaningful life with a re-defined sense of "normal."

The production staged in July earned TANYS awards for Excellence in Direction (Lori Schneider), Excellence in Technical Direction (Jim Schmidt) and Excellence in Ensemble Acting to the Cast (Terri Mateer, John Neails, Taylor Lamerand, Carol Macadam, Cole Phillips). In preparation for their Festival performance, the Workshop is opening its final dress rehearsal of this award-winning production. In addition to seeing the performance, audience members will experience a taste of the Festival requirements as everyone in the cast and crew and every item (set pieces, props, costumes) have to start in a 10 x 10 square "backstage," be set in 10 minutes, and then after the final curtain call, the set must be struck and return to the 10 x 10 square in 10 minutes. The Cast and Crew will be rehearsing this as well as the show itself in order to prepare for their Festival performance the weekend of November 16th. For a unique theatre experience and the opportunity to help defray the cost of Rabbit Hole going to the TANYS Festival, don't miss this one night only show, Wednesday, November 14th at 7:00 pm. All tickets are $10 and will be available at the door at the Sullivan County Museum, 265 Main Street, Hurleyville. For additional information, log onto www.SCDW.net or phone (845) 436-5336.

"Knarf's Classic Movie Trivia"
Starting Thursday 9:00 AM November 22, 2018
Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade
 The annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City, the world's largest parade, is presented by the U.S.-based department store chain Macy's. The tradition started in 1924, tying it for the second-oldest Thanksgiving parade in the United States with America's Thanksgiving Parade in Detroit (both parades being four years younger than Philadelphia's Thanksgiving Day Parade). The three-hour Macy's event is held in Manhattan starting at 9:00 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on Thanksgiving Day November 22, 2018, and has been televised nationally on NBC since 1952. Employees at Macy's department stores have the option of marching in the parade or not. Don't want to watch the Parade, watch our choice of a masterful film, starting at 10:00 AM with wonderful actors:

National Velvet (1944)
 Enchantingly beautiful Elizabeth Taylor at age 12 became a movie star by starring in this classic about a British farm girl fights to train a difficult horse for the Grand National Steeplechase. She, and her jockey pal (Mickey Rooney) overcome many hurdles to transform an unruly horse to win the Grand National Steeplechase. Directed by Clarence Brown. Starring Mickey Rooney, Elizabeth Taylor, Donald Crisp, Anne Revere, Angela Lansbury, Reginald Owen, Norma Varden, Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, Terry Kilburn. Five star family film Taylor is irresistible, Rooney was never better, and they're surrounded by a perfect supporting cast. Revere won a Best Supporting Actress Oscar as Taylor's mother. Screenplay by Theodore Reeves and Helen Deutsch, from Enid Bagnold's novel. Followed years later by INTERNATIONAL VELVET a TV series.
Quiz: In "National Velvet"
 1. Who played Edwina Brown?
 2. Who played Mr. [Herbert] Brown?
